Visiting the Shops with Adele

AN OUT-OF-TOWN matron recently came to the city in search of a good ladies' tailor. Unable to find one, she became thoroughly discouraged and was about ready to give up her quest when she accidentally met a friend at the Penn-Harris who sent her to Louis, at his shop, opposite the main entrance of the Capitol. On finding the lovely materials rich fur trimmings, and excellent models that Louis is showing, she asked in amazement why he failed to advertise. "Because," answered Louis, "for me it is unnecessary. My satisfied patrons and the garments I produce are all the advertisement that I need." Which is true indeed! Louis' wonderful work speaks for itself.

DO you remember my speaking of an exhibition of hand-painted china to be given by one of the city's foremost artists an dher pupils at the Saltzger Art and Antique Store? I was afraid of divulging a secret; but now I am free to tell you all about it. And here are the facts: Miss Quigley, with her pupils is at present exhibiting a beautiful assortment of hand-painted china of every description and sort at the Saltzger store. If you are at all interested in art, you can't afford to miss it. Spare some moments sometime before Wednesday, when the exhibition closes, to steal away to 222 North Second street, where a rare treat awaits you.

LITTLE bits of ribbon. Little bits of lace, plus a larger bit of pale blue satin combine to make the charming chemise over which so many people exclaim in admiration as they pass the Cloth Shop windows. Made most attractively, one of its especially appealing features is the touch of orchid in its two-toned blue and orchid ribbon. Then, too, a tiny rosebud nestles in the softness of its lace. By its side stands the cunningest little pair of silk ribbon mules that you'd ever want to see and inside the shop is a camisole of its exact design. Many more mules are also displayed within, some silk quilted and others of ribbon, in shades of lavender, pink and blue.

Enthusiastic Speakers
Frank B. Wickham, assistant District Attorney of Dauphin County in speaking on "The Relation of the Alumni Association to Alma Mater," insists that it is the solemn duty, and should be the real delight, of every alumnus of "Old Normal," to lend every possible aid to the Alma Mater in this great movement for the uplift of the teaching profession and through it, the real Americanization of the men and women of the future. He plead for a constant display of real affection toward the "beloved mother" on the part of the sons and daughters who owe so much to that "mother."

Dr. H. H. Balsh, chairman of the State Teachers' Retirement Board, Professor J. S. Helges, Dean of the Normal School, Mrs. H. R. Omwake, secretary of the association and J. Zeigler, of Tech. H. S. faculty were also among the speakers. The president of the association then proposed that the local alumni association of Dauphin and surrounding counties amalgamate and thus produce a united army of workers in the great cause. This was enthusiastically and unanimously adopted. The Central Pennsylvania Alumni Association of the Cumberland Valley State Normal School was immediately organized and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: President, Dr. Samuel Z. Shope, 610 North Third street; vice-presidents, Professor P. L. Hocker, Harrisburg; Superintendent H. W. Wickey, Middletown; Assistant State Librarian H. H. Shenk, Anville; Superintendent John C. Wagner, Carlisle; Dr. L. A. Carl, Newport; Mrs. Mary Hartman Hoechst, York; F. B. N. Hoffert, Mt. Joy; Secretary, Miss Grace Eshenower, Harrisburg; assistant secretary, Mrs. William C. Bowman, Lemoyne; treasurer, Professor John F. Kob, Harrisburg.

Miss Minerva L. Adams, Professor of Vocal Music of the Shippensburg Normal School, delighted the audience with a number of vocal selections. Miss M. Margaret Stroh, Professor of Reading and Public Speaking of the Normal School, gave those assembled some amusing and pointed advice in her two readings entitled, "The Danger of the Motorcycle" and "After the Wake," which highly pleased the recipients.
