SPOOKY REVELS OF Y. W. C. A. GIRLS

Many Mysterious Occurrences to Transpire Next Week at Association Building

Many queer and mysterious "doings" will occur next week at the Y. W. C. A. according to reports current in various quarters. Just exactly what will transpire remains a dark secret, but if rumors can be relied on, ghosts will walk, masked figures will sit to and fro, and jack-o'-lanterns will grin wickedly from unexpected corners.

The trouble is to commence Tuesday night, 7:45 o'clock, when the High School Club, under the direction of Miss Mary Irwin, adviser of the social committee, of which Miss Elizabeth Cronise is chairman, gives a Halloween party in John Y. Boyd Hall.

The guests will come masked and in costume to the hall where constables, chimney hands, ghosts, and many other uncanny objects will greet them. No one but the committee knows exactly what will happen and it won't tell.

Home Department Party. On Wednesday evening, at 8 o'clock in John Y. Boyd Hall, the girls of the Home Department, including the girls who live in the building and the various secretaries, will have an opportunity to encounter all sorts of spooky things.

Visiting the Shops with Adele

HAVE you ever heard of the Ivanhoe Opal Glass Lamp Caps? If you haven't, it's about time you did. To say that they save your eyes is putting it mildly, when reflectors of types that do not conceal the lamps from direct view are used. In such cases and in instances where lighting units are not high enough to be out of the ordinary range of vision, provision should be made against glare, the enemy of the eyes. This can be accomplished by the Ivanhoe Opal Lamp Caps, which improve illumination by hiding the brilliant lamp flame from view, diffusing the light and cutting down the glare. They are made of Genesee glass in sizes to fit snugly over the bulbs of Mazda C lamps and can be purchased at the Dauphin Electrical Supplies Co., 434 Market street.

SOMEONE remarked the other day that Mr. Roshon must be a photographer all the people in Harrisburg in the course of a year, considering the number of new faces constantly appearing in his cases. It does seem that doesn't it? One day a photograph is there, the next day another has taken its place. Personally, I oftimes cross the street, just to see what new portraiture is being exhibited in that interesting entrance. Recently, a constant succession of lovely brides has passed before my gaze, on just such visits. Only yesterday a new one appeared, remarkable both as a likeness and as a bit of artistic work, and I thought as I looked at it "No wonder everyone goes to Roshon when he produces such beautiful realistic portraiture."

Do you by any chance have a room that seems dead—just lifeless and lacking in character? Perhaps it needs but a dash of color, a vivid bit of something to make it attractive and cheery. But the question is, "With what shall the transformation be accomplished?" Even though you know that something is lacking you are at loss to supply the proper remedy. Now I can make a suggestion that may help a lot. Go to the store of J. Porter Harris and Son, 221 North Second street, and ask to see the quaint, old-fashioned chairs and rockers, rush seaters and finished in black, but flaunting bright bits of painting in various shades. To describe them would not do them justice. Needless to say, however, they'd add just the proper note to many a dull, drab room.

A prominent society matron of Baltimore was recently in our city. While here she purchased several lovely waists at the Closs Shop. As fate would have it, I yesterday heard, in an indirect way, that she was more than delighted with them. In fact, she stated that she felt she'd have to pay the shop another visit. To tell the truth, I cannot blame her. Visiting it several times a week, as I do, I never tire of seeing the attractive garments constantly arriving. Today I was greeted by a stunning new blouse of hand embroidered, fleshorgette, with flit vest, collar, and cuffs, and another navy blue, also hand embroidered and heavily beaded with jet. Both were very dainty, very smart.

Tonight! Meet Mr. Baruch and inspect his $125,000 assortment of magnificent furs at the Penn-Harris.

Mr. Baruch represents one of New York's leading fur houses. He has brought to Harrisburg what is undoubtedly the most impressive exhibit of beautiful furs the city has ever seen. I have arranged for their display at the Penn-Harris this evening, all day to-morrow and to-morrow evening, because my own shop is too small for a proper showing of this sumptuous merchandise. They have been gathered from the uttermost ends of the earth and represent at least $125,000 in value. The assortment includes wraps of mink and broadtail; wraps, coats and dolmans of mole; kolinsky coats; Alaska seal wraps; natural squirrel coats, coatees and dolmans; sport coats and three-quarter and full-length coats, dolmans and wraps of Hudson seal; also many handsome combinations of taupes nutria, squirrel, skunk, stone marten, kolinsky, dyed Hudson Bay sable with mole trimming. In neckwear will be represented silver fox, ermine, Russian and Hudson Bay sables, foxes of all kinds, as well as skunk, stone martens, baum martens, lynx, mole and squirrel pieces.

Evening Showings for the Benefit of Husbands

Purchasing furs is an investment requiring thought and judgment. I feel that husbands will appreciate a voice in the matter, hence the evening showings to-night and to-morrow. Mr. Baruch is an importer and maker. By ordering these furs direct, you naturally are saving a substantial percentage.

The exhibit will be held under the auspices of my shop and every piece displayed carries, therefore, the same guarantee as any piece of merchandise shown by me. Remember, Wednesday evening, Oct. 23d, all day; Thursday, Oct. 24d, including Thursday evening—at the Penn-Harris—in Parlor A. Ballroom floor.
