Visiting the Shops with Adele

FURS, furs everywhere, but none to excel those found at the shop of Louis, the Ladies' Tailor, 414 North Third Street! Louis has something, somewhere, colored in an assortment of beautiful pelts such as few furriers can obtain this season.

VERY few of us can visit the great picture galleries of the world. But each and every one of us may view excellent copies of the masterpieces, right here in our own city.

HAVE you ever noticed that business men, as a class, wear sensible, comfortable looking shoes? Some morning as you sit in the street car, just take a look at their feet.

SPEAKING of dinner gowns—have you seen the one in the Cloos Company window? Truly, it is lovely enough to make one wish for a constant succession of dinners and a constant succession of just such creations.

It is impossible for any shop to retain as a permanent customer every person who ever purchased there. For one thing people move away. But I believe that it is possible to achieve this result insofar as a square deal and a desire to render complete satisfaction will accomplish it.

The other day I went over my books; selected the names of customers who had not purchased recently and mailed a letter inquiring why.

I received just one letter of criticism. It was from a woman who said she had been badly fitted.

I asked her to bring in the suit. She acceded to my request; I discovered that she was absolutely justified in her complaint, and I promptly made a cash adjustment entirely to her satisfaction.

I can not too strongly emphasize the fact that I am trying to build a business that will be permanent. I realize that to achieve this I must not have one dissatisfied customer. If through some error due to haste or oversight you have any criticism of my service don't fail to come and tell me. Rest assured you'll find me only too ready to make a satisfactory adjustment.
