"When a Girl Marries"

By ANN LISLE

A New, Romantic Serial Dealing With the Absorbing Problem of a Girl Wife

CHAPTER CCCXXXIII.
(Copyright, 1919, King Feature Syndicate, Inc.)

At an unearthly hour the morning after I chaperoned Neal and Phoebe for their weekend at the lake, my phone woke me. It was a long distance call from Jim, who had just gotten near enough to civilization again to speak to me.

"I'm taking the train to come back to you, dear, in an hour," he explained. "But I wanted you to know, so you'd keep the evening open for me."

"Don't joke. You've a guilty conscience because you didn't write," I replied, trying to be jocular. "I wouldn't be reproachful. Are you rested? Did you have a fine time?"

"Yes," irritably. "Only don't hold me up—because I've an important message for you. Call Neal and tell him to catch the eight forty-five—same train I took. Pat's here and will meet him. There's some property to go over—and, besides, Uncle Ned and I aren't keen to leave Pat up here alone, and the old gentleman has to come back same as I do. Neal's not to miss it. Important."

"But Neal can't come," I protested. "He has plans. There's something important for him here."

"Neal must come. He must, I say. Tell him."

Then Jim's voice burned off, and the connection was broken. Phoebe stirred uneasily in her sleep; but I had to wake her, because I knew well enough she'd never forgive me if I didn't get her up in time to see Neal off.

Again a whirl of dressing, and coffee, and farewells, as Neal came in to breakfast with us and then whirled off to the station, unhappy, but like a good soldier. When he'd whispered a warning to me to keep silent, he and Phoebe hurried off. Then I sat about unpacking and ordering my household for the day; and in the midst of everything Tom Mason phoned and pleaded, beyond my powers to refuse, that I lunch with him.

"I'm a guilty conscience!" I asked myself, as I taxied down to the appointed place.

I was soon to know, for directly the lunch was ordered and the waiter off attending to it, Tom plunged in:

"Why did you skip out of the dining room last night the minute you caught sight of me, Donna Anna?"

There was an evocation ready to hand, and I took advantage of it.

"I was waiting for Phoebe and Neal, and just as I got to the dining room door, Neal appeared. Moreover, I was glad to avoid you for fear you'd be hurt at me for not chaperoning your party and then chaperoning another."

"Do you know me so little?" asked Tom reproachfully. "Do you actually think I demand explanations of my friends? Am I petty?"

"Indeed you're not," I said honestly, adding mischievously, "that's not one of your faults, T. J. M."

"Got plenty without," he replied, with that disarming frankness of his. "But why did you skip without a howdy?"

"I've told you."

"You have—not! Because if that was it, why didn't you come back and say a word or two—instead of avoiding the dining room so long that I took the hint and skipped back to the city without trying to see you?"

"Please don't ask," I begged, hating to get right back into the role of administrator of other people's welfare—and fairly god-mother.

"Anne Harrison are you misinterpreting my friendship for the little Condon girl?" demanded Tom. "Forgive me for this—but you force me to say it. You introduced us, she's your friend, isn't she? Now, why under the sun should you avoid me—or her—when I take her out to dine?"

"To?" he will have it. I thought you wanted—to be avoided. You're

THREE PROMOTED BY BELL TELEPHONE COMPANY

VICTOR L. C. HASSKARKL

C. B. ZIEGLER

R. O. DEMMING

H. C. Kunkel, division superintendent of plant of the Bell Telephone Company of Pennsylvania announced to-day several changes in the Bell organization.

Victor L. C. Hasskarkl, construction foreman of the Bell Company of the Harrisburg district has been promoted to district superintendent of plant at Williamsport. Mr. Hasskarkl entered the employ of the Bell company in 1903 and since has held various positions of responsibility.

He has been located in Harrisburg since 1915. In June, 1917, Hasskarkl entered the service, enlisting with the First Telegraph Battalion which later was the 40th and was composed entirely of Bell Telephone men. C. B. Ziegler of this city has been appointed construction foreman to succeed Mr. Hasskarkl. Announcement was also made that R. O. Demming, of Williamsport, had been transferred to Harrisburg as superintendent of methods. Mr. Demming is a former Harrisburg boy.

"I'm not much of a homebody. Probably wouldn't have you there now—if I weren't so dead anxious to get in right with that fine old gentleman of the fine old school."

The Beta Phi Society of '21 gave a masquerade dance, in honor of the Society of '20, last evening, at St. Paul's Church, Second and Emerald streets. The dance was chaperoned by Mrs. Silks and W. P. Stuart.

Refreshments were served to the Misses Winifred Tripper, Mary Rose, Ruth Marks, Evelyn Snyder, "Polly" Long, Margaret Brown, Doris Stuart, Vivian Showers, Dorothy Rankin, Ida Myers, Elva Myers, Amy Botts, Florence Burnett, Evelyn DuBree, Edythe Hockley, Homer Balsbaugh, Donald Brinser, George Myers, Curt Tripper, Timothy Euker, Gilbert Mattson, Eugene Walter, William Euker and "Budd" Lingle.

Miss Georgia Bailey Takes Aeroplane Trip

Miss Georgia Bailey, of Ardmore, who sailed from New York, September 17 enroute to Paris, where she will take a course of study at the Sorbonne, has written to friends in this city telling of her first flight in an aeroplane. Stranded in England on account of the railroad strike, which affected the shipping facilities across the English Channel, Miss Bailey and her party boarded a huge Handley-Page plane, were locked in and comfortably ensconced in wicker chairs, and in four hours had made the trip from London to Paris.

The Eighth Anniversary Ball of the Hebrew Women's Benevolent Society will be held at Chestnut Street Auditorium, Wednesday evening, November 13, with the Sourbeer-Meyers Orchestra playing for the dancing.

Says Churches in Northern Tier of State Are Dying

Philadelphia, Oct. 24.—The Rev. Dr. George T. Donahoe, of Coudersport, speaking at the executive meeting of the annual session of the Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania here, said the churches in the northern mountain section of Pennsylvania are dying.

"There, in the most civilized State on earth, native-born Americans live and die in conditions unbelievably wretched," he continued. "Yet we talk only of doing aid and mission work among Armenians, Syrians and other war-stricken countries. Let us help these, our own peoples, first."

His statement followed an assertion by the Rev. John Harvey Lee, Philadelphia, to the effect that the synodical home mission committee, with a bank balance of more than $19,000, bids fair to have an overflowing treasury and no work to do.

Gasoline Production Increases in Canada

Calgary, Alberta, Oct. 24.—Gasoline production from natural gas by the absorption method, practiced successfully in the oil fields of the United States, has been introduced in Alberta and in view of the vast natural gas deposits of the province, promises to develop into a large industry.

The Hope Engineering Company of Ohio has installed a plant at the Dingman natural gas wells near Calgary and is producing from 15 to 20 barrels a day of high-grade gasoline. Operations have been carried on only two months, but the venture is declared already to be beyond the experimental stage.

This is the first time the absorption process of making gasoline from natural gas has been attempted in Canada on a commercial scale. The method is a combination of what is known as the horizontal and vertical vaporizations.

Says Country Faces Huge International Financial Problems

Atlantic City, N. J., Oct. 24.—The United States faces the problem of extending by next summer approximately $2,000,000,000 in international credits to the war-torn countries of Europe, Dwight W. Morrow, of J. P. Morgan and Company, declared in an address on "The Problem of International Credits," before the International Trade Conference here last night.

He said that the people in this country would have "to produce and save" to aid in this big financial plan.

European countries are not coming to the United States seeking charity, Mr. Morrow said, but they are asking us in our strength to co-operate with them in their strength to rebuild and restore their productive capacity."

King Finds Relatives Living in This City

When Albert, King of the Belgians came to Harrisburg this morning he little thought he'd find one of his relatives residing here, but stranger things than that have happened.

Mrs. Samuel Z. Shope, of 616 North Third street, who before her marriage was Miss Elizabeth Lentz, of Mauch Chunk, is of the same lineage as King Albert, through her paternal grandfather, both being descendants of the Duke of Saxe-Coburg Saalfeld. Mrs. Shope's cousin, Horace De Young Lentz, of Mauch Chunk, is called "King Albert's Twin."

Halloween Dance Cards Issued by Alpha Gammas

Russell Baker, Ed. Craig and Harry Rensel, a committee from the Alpha Gamma society, formerly the Army Club, have sent out cards of invitation for an informal Halloween dance Thursday evening, October 30, in Frey's Hall, Front and Pine streets, Section.

Music will be furnished by "The Syncopators" of this city, which promises a fine dance program. This club is composed of the same members giving many delightful social entertainments and dances last winter.

Simplicity is the dominant note in these smart new pumps

"Isn't she attractive? A casual remark, but what a compliment! It tells of thoughtful attention to the smallest details of dress.

The choice of dainty slippers to accompany your costume—whether simple or elaborate, is one of the very important things to consider if you would create such an impression.
