Year" in Effort to Disarm Republicans

SEE COMPLETE DEFEAT

Overwhelming Majority

are exciting amused comment among practical political workers because of the ostrich-like tactics that have been resorted to in order to camoufage the absolute break-down of the Democratic campaign in the city and county. The afternoon organ of the machine declares that "one of the features of the present campaign for mayor is that it occurs in a so-called "off year," when national issues are in no sense involved. No Republican, for instance, need concern himself for a moment with what effect on the national situation.

Action while the other two died of disease. The town has a real festival attire, and one big holiday has been declared by the residents of the district. Early in the day people started to gather for the afternoon's events, overcast skies and chilly weather having but very slight effect on them. Impromptu events of various natures were staged by small groups of the day, but the scheduled events did not get under way until 1.30 o'clock. For almost an hour before this, however, three big divisions were forming for this procession.

Many in Parade

George H. Horning, chairman of Republican, for instance, need con-cern himself for a moment with what effect on the national situation his vote for mayor will exert, be-cause it will exert none." Republicans are not being deceiv-called "off year," when national issues are in no sense involved. No Republican, for instance, need concern himself for a moment with what effect on the national situation his vote for mayor will exert, because it will exert none."

Republicans are not being deceived for one instant by this sort of silly argument. They recall that the nonpartisan law, an alleged reform backed by Democratic severywhere as a means to achieve minority victories, was used over and over again to "put over" Democratic machine twerthy among Republican candidates. Every party worker understands quite well that a conspicuous victory this year will put the Republican and indifference to Republican candidates. Every party worker understands quite well that a conspicuous victory this year will put the Republican lines in fine shape for the greater battle of 1920. So they are going to "concern" themselves with getting out a big vote notwithstanding the efforts of the Wilson machine here to divertheir attention from the main issue.

Gasp For Breath

Gasping for breath in the effort to overtake the tremendous lead of the Republican workers in this city and county are men who declares that "ninety per cent. or more of the organization's (presumably Republican) workers in this city and county are men who declares that "ninety per cent. or more of the organization's (presumably Republican) workers in this eity and county are men who hemselves have a selfish interest in the election; they either hold the jobs themselves or are related to those who are in the public service." This remarkable discovery is followed by the statement that they, the workers, "care nothing for the service, and county are men who died in the service with the broad of the procession. Many the greated of the general committee, acted as chief marshal of the greated committee, acted as chief marshal of the greated committee, acted as chief marshal of the greated of the general committee, acted as chief marshal of the greated to Brick Church Road, to Enola Road, to Enola Road ice." This remarkable discovery is followed by the statement that they, the workers, "care nothing for the qualifications of a candidate or campaign issues; the sole issue with them is keeping that job and for that reason many of them would as readily support a felon as a saint." Of course, say the Republican workers, the sainted Democratic politicians are only interested in helping their own alleged pursuits to office and have no desire whatever to promote the interests of the Democratic machine. In the same amusing appeal the morning organ of the Wilson outfit in Harrisburg after this wall over the awful Republican workers who have no interest in the public welfare, declares that the "average voter" has only one concern which is the "keeping down of public expense and having public business administered honestly and efficiently."

Looking toward Washington and its awful record of inefficiency under the present administration the "Average voter," when he is a Republican, can only grin at the duplicity of the machine outgivings in Market Square.
