

IRELAND CASHING MINERAL WEALTH

Development of Rich Resources of Country Getting Under Way

London—Ireland is making some headway in regard to the development of her mineral resources, but much remains to be done.

Active prospecting and development work is being carried out upon the copper deposits situated in the Vale of Avoca, county Wicklow, and there is every reason to believe that this industry, which years ago produced a very considerable amount of copper sulphur will be soon revived.

Efforts are also being made to develop further the lead mines at Glendalough, county Wicklow, and Ballysodare, county Sligo, while deposits of lead in counties Clare and Monaghan are being prospecting.

During the period of the war a large amount of silica was quarried in the neighborhood of Tinahely, county Wicklow, and shipped for use in explosive works.

MISS F. K. L.—Making the pores smaller has a direct result in the elimination of wrinkles. The reaction for this is that when the pores become smaller the texture of the skin becomes finer.

and the tissues are thereby braced up. Coarse skins are usually full of wrinkles. Just try this method once and you will realize that you have found a powerful wrinkle secret. Get a two-ounce package (one cent's worth) of epot from your druggist, and mix this powder with one tablespoonful of glycerine in a half pint of water. Apply this cream very freely on the face every day, and you will be astonished to find the difference it will make in our appearance.

"EFFY"—A glorious head-wash. Yes, here it is, and a wonder, too! Just dissolve a teaspoonful of egg in half a cup of water, and use as a head-wash. You will be surprised at the remarkable cleanliness of your scalp and the glossiness of your hair, as a result. For twenty-five cents you can get at the druggists enough egg to last for many weeks.

MISS M. O. N.—A really wonderful way, and the easiest and quickest way to remove superfluous hairs is to dissolve them. This is done by moistening the hairs with a solution, which you can get at any druggist for one dollar. This never leaves a scar or red spot, always works, whether the hair is very thick or downy, and on the most delicate skin. It is the only safe way, and is exceedingly simple and quick.

GEORGE W. MUSSER East Pennsboro Township Cumberland County Candidate for County Commissioner

A lifelong citizen of his county, he served his township as road supervisor 4 years, was a member of the school board 9 years, its efficient treasurer for 5 years. He wishes and solicits the support and influence of the taxpayers of Cumberland County, regardless of their party affiliations. He pledges himself for a fair and just equalizing of all the assessed valuations of the county—equalizing of valuations will greatly lower taxation. If elected County Commissioner will go into office a free man beholden to no political leader. This is the sort of men Cumberland County should have for County Commissioners.

stone is being mined near Lough Gartan, county Donegal. Cement and Building Stone A cement factory has been erected near Maghera, county Antrim. It has been producing cement for the last two years, while at Skerries, county Dublin, where suitable materials have been found, a proposal is on foot to start the manufacture of cement on a large scale. Ireland also possesses valuable deposits of building materials, granite, marble, limestone, sandstone, slate, flagstone, brick and pottery clays, and, in some cases, the working of these deposits could be further developed.

Considerable progress has been made in the working of road-making materials, and well-equipped quarries with up-to-date crushing machinery, are now being worked. There are iron ore and manganese and saltpetre in county Antrim, carbide of calcium is made at Coloney, county Sligo, and Askeaton, county Limerick. Should prospecting, as at present being carried on at the Coalfield, county Tyrone, prove successful and warrant development, there would appear to be great industrial future before this district, inasmuch as large deposits of fireclay are known to exist in the neighborhood, and there is an excellent opening in Ireland for an extensive trade in fireclay goods. Again, on the shores of Lough Neagh, at Washing Bay, deposits of sand occur which are capable of making a fair quality of glass. It may also be possible to open up the deposits of iron ore which occur in the vicinity of Cookstown, county Tyrone, and thus create an iron industry.

Some progress has also been made with regard to the utilization of peat deposits. Peat, which is the principal material manufactured, and there are factories working at Ferrabee and Edenderry, King's county; Maghera, county Tyrone; Rathfriland, county Wick; and Castleconnell, county Limerick; Monasterenevagh, King's county and Portlaoine, county Wick. A producer of peat plant, using peat instead of anthracite coal, has been running for some years past with successful results at Messrs. Hamilton, Robb's weaving works, Portadown, county Antrim.

A circumstance in Irish conditions which tends to facilitate the development of minerals is the fact that under the land purchase act of 1903 and subsequent years, the mineral rights of land sold are, as a rule, vested in the Irish land commission. The policy of making the land commission in this matter is to give fair and equitable terms to the prospector. Their dead rents and royalties for a two years' prospect lease, which carries the option for a lease proper, are low, so as to encourage the prospector.

Beau Brummels Are Scarce Now

London.—There are still a few Englishmen who are among the best dressed men in the world. But the vast majority are wearing the latest fashions, garments which, before the war they would have handed over to their servants or given to a charitable society.

Nowadays frayed trouser legs and shiny coat elbows are not signs of penuriousness; they are proofs of economy. For suits of clothes that sold for $20 or $25 in the piping times of the war, now cost $40 to $50. Indeed, the clothes of five years ago cannot be duplicated at any price, for the materials of today are shoddy; there is precious little wool in them.

Many a suit that looks new because it was made of good stuff is an old suit turned inside out. And to have that done costs less than to have the little tailors whose work consists chiefly in making repairs and alterations are making their fortunes. The government's anti-profiters act does not reach the tailors, it seems. Take this melancholy instance: A gentleman living in Holborn complained to one of the 15,000 tailors that have been established throughout the country that his tailor demanded ten shillings and sixpence ($2.67) for pressing a suit, whereas the previous charge was three shillings and sixpence (90 cents). The Holborn man, with much vehemence, vowed that to charge $2.67 for pressing a suit was a little worse than highway robbery and only a degree less criminal than piracy.

Kings Are Spared Much Gift Giving

London.—With the toppling over of numerous empires and kingdoms and the consequent elimination of the unfit from the ranks of monarchs, the surviving sovereigns are saved from one source of great expense which, in these days of the high cost of living, will mean much to their bank accounts. "In the old days there were officials who were deemed indispensable and made themselves so by keeping track of birthdays, wedding anniversaries and other anniversaries on which it was prudent for emperors and kings to make substantial presents to the monarchs, to grand dukes and other notables who had to be "remembered."

The gossip about the reported gifts which President Wilson and his official peace family carried home, caused a sophisticated European to smile. For in the time of secret diplomacy official presents cost millions annually. Most monarchs knew they had given presents only when they saw their expense books for the month. They formed that such a king or other personage had been given a turquoise ring or an elephant to the paths of secret diplomacy more negotiable.

Battalion of War Dogs in a Parade at Milan

Milan.—A feature of the military review here on the national fete day was the march past of 700 war dogs, some wearing war stripes and decorations. They were lustily cheered.

OUR WILD WEST "Well," said the Fox West mayor to the English tourist, "I dunno how you manage these affairs in your country, but over here when some of our boys got tied up in that that bankrupt telephone company I was tellin' yer about they became mighty trusty." "Oh!" "Yes, they didn't like the way the receiver was handlin' the business no-how." "Indeed!" commented the earnest listener. "Then may I ask what they did?" "Bartly; I was goin' to tell yer. They just hung up the receiver."

Col. W. Churchill May Get New Job

London.—For private reasons Lord Milner is not averse to retiring from the government, and there is some speculation as to whether he will avail himself of his mission to Egypt or hand over the Colonial office to somebody else. Winston Churchill is spoken of as a possible successor. There will be a great deal of work at the Colonial office when the League of Nations gets into it stride and Great Britain assumes her mandates over the former German colonies.

one difficulty in the way of his return is that there may not be room enough in the Ministry for both him and Mr. Bonar Law. They do not love one another. In the War Office, a political writer asserts, "Winston Churchill has succeeded only in adding to his unpopularity. He is credited with the chief responsibility for the military meddling and muddling in Russia; he has done little or nothing in the way of army reorganization, though, the delay in dealing with certain questions, notably the future of the Territorials, may have grave consequences; and retrenchment has no place in his political vocabulary. "Lord Rothermere, we may be sure, will bring back into practice that effective civilian control of the department which has been in abeyance during the war, and will not be deterred from drastic economies by the obstruction of high-placed officials."
