

TECH WARRIORS GET DOWN TO HARD WORK TODAY--JOHNNY BECK WITH BETHLEHEM

BABE RUTH TELLS HOW TO BECOME GOOD BATSMAN KEEP YOUR EYE ON THE BALL

New York, Nov. 4.—"Keep your eye on the ball!" sounds like golf, but Babe Ruth, Boston's leading manufacturer of home runs, was speaking about baseball. Babe doesn't believe in trying to score base hits with his chin, but every once in a while he can be persuaded to go to bat in the conversational league, and when he does he generally knocks a couple of verbal home runs.

Naturally at this time the all-important question for Ruth to answer is "What is the secret of successful batting?" It was in reply that Babe unhesitatingly answered:

"When a pitcher is preparing to deliver a ball try to guess what he intends to throw, a curve or a fast one," continued Ruth, "but just because you have made up your mind he is going to throw a curve do not be too sure of it. Always remember the pitcher that is trying to outguess the batter. That is part of a pitcher's work."

Watch the Pitcher

"Once he releases the ball never take your eye off it. If you do you are gone. Watch it all the way. Watch it as it breaks and watch it as you start your swing. The batter who watches the ball only part of the way in its flight to the plate seldom becomes a good hitter, for if the pitcher is throwing a curve it seldom breaks until it is within a few feet of the plate. It is almost impossible to tell whether a thrown ball is going to curve or not until the actual break occurs. For this reason it is necessary for a batter never to take his eye off the ball."

"When I was a youngster just beginning to play any kind of real baseball a veteran player impressed upon me the necessity of keeping my eye on the ball, and I have never forgotten it. It has become second nature with me, and yet I never step to the plate that the warning, 'Keep your eyes on the ball,' does not flash through my mind.

Free Swing Essential

"Next to keeping his eye on the ball a batter must learn to hit with a free and easy swing. He must not hold his elbows tight against his sides. It is impossible to get a free swing if the elbows are held tight to the body, but they should be held out from the body, but they must be given all the freedom of action that is possible.

"Hitting power is generated in the wrists, forearms, and the muscles behind the shoulder blades. Therefore it is necessary to swing so hard that you spin all this way around. The main power swings in this way loses time in getting away from the plate. Getting started quickly toward first base is something that demands close attention. Many a base hit has been lost by a slow start from the plate and many a base hit has been made by getting away quickly.

"The batter who swings completely around loses his balance and before he recovers himself he has lost the equivalent of at least two full strides. Two strides of say five feet more than three yards in the thirty-yard dash to first. And three yards is quite a handicap.

"There are many more things about batting, but these are the chief things to remember and to practice."

Yale Won't Play Penn, Is Latest From New Haven

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 4.—Pudge Hefflinger, who last played with Yale 23 years ago, and George Moseley, an all-American end on Captain Black's 1916 team, has arrived to aid in the coaching of the Yale eleven and will remain until the Harvard game. The team came through Saturday's game without injuries. It is reported that Captain Callahan would probably play against Brown if the field is dry next Saturday. Otherwise he will be saved for the Princeton game. It was stated that he has practically recovered from an injury due to the wet field, which has kept him out nearly all season. Thorne Murphy, who was hurt in the game against Boston College, will not be able to play against Princeton, and there is little doubt that he will play against Harvard.

It is said the reports that Yale will play against Penn next year are without foundation. It rests with the football committee and the Board of Control. There is unanimity of feeling among the coaches and players that coming at the end of the season after a heavy enough schedule, and if another big eleven was taken on it would mean the resumption of contests between Yale and West Point. The possibility of a resumption of these relations would be remote were it not for the fact that Harry E. Danford is now commandant of cadets at West Point and is anxious for a game. He formed and was the first commander of the R. O. T. C. at Yale.
