gifts For Christmas

A new variety of Fulper Pottery has just been received for holiday buying. The beautiful and odd combinations of color tones, and the very unique shapes place this pottery on an unequalled level. So diversified are the colors and tones that "contrasting harmony", so desired in living room, den and library, may be obtained no matter what the prevailing color scheme may be.

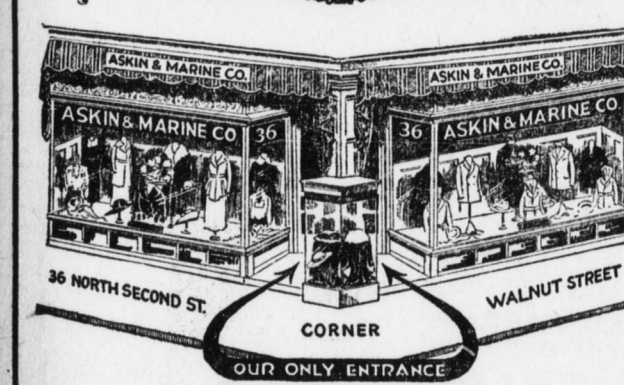

A piece of Fulper Pottery makes the ideal gift for a lover of flowers.

A pair of decorated candles and candlesticks, a set of bronze or Polychrome book-ends, a Wallace Nutting study—a gold or mahogany easel photograph frame—any of these makes an excellent gift.

You must conserve your powers of efficiency. Presbyopia or "old sight" generally makes itself known to a man at about forty-five years. There is nothing that will produce normal vision and keep it normal except glasses. You may, of course "hide over" a few years longer but it will gain you nothing and will lose you much in efficiency of profession and ebbing vitality. Come to us for an examination of your eyes. Visiting the Shops with Adele

HAVE you ever heard of the little elephant with the insatiable curiosity? Kipling tells us all about him and the troubles that he met. Poor little fellow! His desire to see a crocodile nearly ended in his ruin. Just the same, he saw his crocodile and was satisfied ever after. Perhaps he felt as I did one evening last week. I had determined that I was going to hear the new glitz orchestra at the Penn-Harris grill. Every one was talking about it and my curiosity was decidedly aroused. So, in spite of the fact that the rain was pouring down in torrents, I ventured forth—and, while I'm still sneezing, I'm satisfied. It's some orchestra! Rain or no rain, I'd go to hear it any day, anywhere. As someone remarked, "No wonder one meets all one's friends in the grill." Such an attractive setting and such good music cannot help but prove an irresistible bait.

ACCORDING to Serviss, "There are strange things done 'neath the midnight sun," but things just as strange sometimes occur in our own little city. For instance, an unusual event transpired last week in the heart of our business section. A discriminating burglar, hearing the fame of the McFall coats and suits, decided to obtain some by hook or crook. All else failing, in desperation, he cut his way through the ceiling and entered the store. Can you beat it? Scarcely! It isn't every day that one finds suits of such quality as to bring a man through the roof to get them. It took McFall's to start that style.

"W HAT good-looking new shoes you're wearing!" exclaimed a friend several days ago. "Where did you get them?" "Oh, they're not new at all," I confessed; "you only think they are. I've worn them dozens of times. In fact, I wore them all last year." "Well, I don't recall them, I'm sure," was the retort. "Perhaps not," I admitted, "and, to be perfectly frank, I can't blame you for it. I dyed them brown. Don't you remember those soiled gray ones I wore early in the spring? Well, here they are, a la dispoise, bought the dye at the Army and Navy Shoe Store, Court street, and did the job myself. To tell the truth, I'm real proud of it. I also dyed another pair black with dye purchased at the same place. My brother made his school shoes waterproof with their shoe grease, and we all use their shoe polish. It comes in both paste and liquid in tan, brown and black. Then, too, they sell lacers for men in all lengths and colors."

CHILLING breezes have arrived at last, bringing warm clothing to the fore. Perhaps they came to herald Winter, or perhaps they merely wish to give Milady an excuse for wearing a stunning winter coat, who knows? No matter what the motive, the opportunity has been presented and she who accepts it clad in Cloos Company style will be most fortunate, indeed. One handsome coat of stone blue silvertone, with huge shawl collar and deep, soft cuffs of racoon, is fairly luscious for a chance to fight old Winter's freezing nips. Simply made, with its effect and gorgeous lining, it boasts attractive lines calculated to look well on either a stout or slender figure—a quality seldom found.

R USKIN leaves little to be said on the subject of pictures. Sometimes I think he has completely covered the ground, omitting only this one bit of advice: Get them at Saltzger's! We can't blame Ruskin, for he never knew of this most interesting Art and Antique Store. But we can blame ourselves if we purchase inferior pictures when at Saltzger's we find good prints of the best works of the masters. Mr. Saltzger also has a large, new line of picture moldings with which to properly frame them. And a good picture, properly framed, is a joy forever.
