What Will You Say When the Solicitor Calls?

PRIVATES

The Red Cross always did more than was even expected of them, especially in the care of the wounded.
Pvt. William E. Mower,
Hq. Co., 112th Infantry.

Have you ever heard any of the boys who were on the other side say anything detrimental to the Red Cross? I haven't.
Earl A. Owen
Pvt., 465th Aero Squadron.

JOIN

The credit for bringing back my eyesight after having been blinded by gas, is due to the efforts of the American Red Cross.
Henry M. Cocklin
Pvt., Btry. E., 108th F. A.

The Red Cross huts were like second homes to us.
Pvt. W. T. Senseman, Jr.,
Motor Mechanics.

COLONELS

Every man who was in the service can recall with pleasure the many deeds of kindness the Red Cross did for him.
E. H. Schell,
Late Lt. Col. Q. M. C.

JOIN

In every case in which the work of the Red Cross came under my observation it proved to be most efficient. The field director with the Twenty-eighth division was always untiring in his efforts to give help wherever it was needed.
Col. Maurice E. Finney,
28th Division.

The Red Cross is the symbol of unselfish service. On battlefield, in hospital, abroad, at home, it never once failed. Ask the doughboy. He knows!
E. J. Stackpole, Jr.,
Col. 8th Regt, N. G. P.

The Red Cross was the Alladin's lamp of the war and deserves the support of every man, woman and child in America.
J. B. Kemper,
Colonel.

CAPTAINS

In the late war the Red Cross erected, in the memories of the boys it served, a monument that will stand for all time.
Capt. Samuel S. Froehlich,
M. G. B'n., 157th French Division,
Gourand's Army.

JOIN

From the fighting front to the General Hospital in the United States I observed the results of the Red Cross effort and knew that because of its work dark days were made brighter for many.
B. S. Behney,
Capt., D. C., 112th Inf.

My first bite to eat in 48 hours was given me by the Red Cross under fire in the Argonne. Maybe hot chocolate and vanilla biscuits don't taste good under those circumstances.
Frank Aul
Captain, 316th Inf.

The Red Cross man who served our unit was a D. S. C. man. Need I say more?
H. A. Souders,
Capt. 103d Fld. Sig. Bn.

SERGEANTS

For an organization whose work was done largely by women, the management of the Red Cross could hardly have been more efficient.
Sgt. Clarence W. Wolfe,
103d Ammunition Train.

JOIN

The Red Cross Canteen service from camp to Europe and back was marvelous. They were everywhere.
Warren A. Farwell,
Ord. Sgt.

The daily visits made by the Red Cross workers were the one big thing looked forward to in the hospitals on the other side.
Wilson E. Kirkpatrick,
Sup. Sgt., 107th M. G. B'n.

Can personally testify that American Red Cross was everywhere with the boys in France.
Sgt. Phillip T. Meredith.

MAJORS

In France, the Red Cross was the least advertised and the most efficient of all the war work organizations.
F. C. Mahin,
Major.

JOIN

The Red Cross was one organization upon which we could rely to smooth off many of the rough spots associated with the life of a soldier.
Major T. P. Rose,
102d Field Signal Bat'n.

The Red Cross proved itself efficient in time of war and deserves the support of everyone now.
Geo. W. H. Roberts,
Major, 108th F. A.

Without the Red Cross, the men of my organization would have been subjected to far more hardship than was their lot.
Major T. O. F. Shirley,
Dental Corps.

LIEUTENANTS

Had it not been for the Red Cross, the soldiers would many times have lost that "home" feeling which the workers so well kept up.
A. H. Stackpole,
Lt. Field Artillery.

JOIN

In my travels in demobilization work all over the country, I called upon the Red Cross for service. The work done was a boon to the men physically and bolstering their spirits.
Richard C. Jacobs, Jr.,
1st Lt., Inf.

The Red Cross seemed to always be looking for something that would make both the boys on the line and those in the hospitals more comfortable.
George J. Shoemaker
2nd Lt., 108th M. G. B'n.

The American Red Cross was an oasis in an otherwise barren desert "up front" in the A. E. F.
Charles W. Thomas,
1st Lt., 112th Inf.

CORPORALS

Red Cross workers were never too tired to do even more than "their bit" for the boys on the other side.
Corp. F. O. Lyter,
Battery E., 108th F. A.

JOIN

No more effective work was performed overseas than that of the American Red Cross.
Corp. Bion C. Welker,
Batt. F., 311 F. A.

I cannot praise the Red Cross too highly, having seen so much of their noble work while serving in the U. S. Army in France, and recommend everybody to give all the support to the organization they possibly can afford.
Moe L. Cooper,
Corp. 64th Inf.

The Red Cross did more for us than any other organization "over there."
Corp. Clyde Fisher,
Battery F., 108th F. A.
