989,754 Cars of Coal Behind 1918 Production

On May 31, 1919, according to the U. S. Geological Survey—we were 989,754 cars of coal behind 1918 production—and yet—in 1918—in order to supply manufacturing plants and provide consumers—it was necessary for us to have a fuel administration and very stringent regulations regarding the use of coal.

If this was necessary in 1918—it is going to be doubly necessary this Winter with the coal strike.

Need there be any further argument to convince you of the wisdom of getting at once a full supply of coal for the Winter?
