

RED CROSS FINDS THIS MAN'S WIFE

Separated by War, Woman Will Soon Be Restored to Her Husband

Podgoritz, Montenegro, Nov. 17.—Isolated for four years in the fastnesses of the Montenegro mountains through the fortunes of war, Mrs. Rose M. Struger, formerly Miss Rose Webb, of Tacoma, Washington, will soon be restored to her husband in St. Paul, Minnesota. Lost to her world since the Austrian hordes swept over the country and her husband marched away with the Montenegrin troops, she and her little son have suffered all the anguish of complete isolation from family and friends besides the physical discomforts of wartime living in a war-wrecked country. Five years ago Marco Struger brought his wife and baby son from the United States to visit his parents at CeRlin, Montenegro, a village high up in the mountains. While on their visit the war began and the husband shouldered his rifle to help stay the onrush of the Austrian armies, and hurried to army headquarters at Podgoritz. He was captured by the Austrians, but escaped and returned to the United States where he sought Red Cross aid to find his wife in Montenegro.

When an American Red Cross Commission arrived in Montenegro after the armistice, Mrs. Struger wrote asking for assistance for her refugees in her little mountain village. Her appeal reached the Commission a few days after an inquiry from Washington asking the Commission to locate Mrs. Struger had been received. The supplies were sent to the mountain town in response to Mrs. Struger's appeal. She took entire charge of the relief work in her district and made several conveyance trips between her village and Podgoritz. She proved to be a tall, good-looking woman, bronzed by the sun and winds of Montenegro. In her years with the mountaineers she had acquired a perfect speaking knowledge of their language. Mrs. Struger was put into communication with her husband and soon will join him in America.

ENGLAND GOING FOR PROFITEERS

Sixteen Hundred Tribunals Have Presented Total of 7,350 Offenders

London, Nov. 17.—Great Britain's stupendous effort to grapple with profiteering is just disclosed by the work of 1,600 tribunals which have prosecuted 7,350 offenders and secured 1,320 convictions, with fines aggregating $35,000.

Besides setting up these local tribunals to which complaints against dealers are submitted, appeal tribunals have been established in specified areas of England, Scotland and Wales. In addition, central committees also have been formed to investigate supposed trusts or monopolies which may be manipulating wholesale prices. This has been done under the profiteering act. Apart from the prosecution of complaints, the Board of Trade, which is charged with the administration of the anti-profiteering law, is independently investigating prices, costs and profits of a large number of articles in common use. It has formed a costings committee, composed of distinguished accountants, which is assisting the central committee in its task. A subcommittee on trusts has been empowered to obtain whatever technical and expert assistance may be required.

In scope, the act applies to "any article or class of articles which is one of a kind in common use by the public" or to any "material, machinery or accessories used in the production of such articles." The act does not apply to "controlled" articles, such as butter, sugar, beer, flour, liquors—commodities for which maximum prices were fixed by wartime legislation.

Old Estates Will Soon Be Put on Market For Sale

London, Nov. 17.—Several fine old estates possessing interesting historical associations will come on the market soon. The most notable of the new lot announced for sale is Dalwinton in Dumfriesshire, Scotland, which at one time formed a part of the lands held by John ("The Red") Comyn, a competitor of Robert Bruce for the throne of Scotland.

Comyn's castle stood on or near the site of the present mansion houses. After his death the castle was destroyed with the exception of a portion which still remains. The estate came into the possession of the late William Macalpine Leng exactly a hundred years ago. Leng's trustees are selling it.

Killeen Castle and the lands attached, the property of the Earl of Fingall, whose family have been in undisputed possession of this County Meath estate for centuries past, is also to be offered for sale. The Earl of Plymouth has disposed of a large portion of the Hewell estate in Worcestershire.

Declining Birthrate in England Attracts Much Attention

Leicester, Eng., Nov. 17.—The declining birthrate in England is attracting the attention of many thoughtful men. The government program for the entertainment of the chief includes an airplane flight at Hendon. But what the party is most anxious to see is a horse race. On his arrival the chief found the English climate very trying and one night he was seen seated in a room in front of a remarkably good fire wearing an overcoat.
