

Zbyszko Signs Papers For Match With Joe Stecher

Newark, N. J., Nov. 19.—Wladek Zbyszko, the herculean Polish grappler, has been signed up to wrestle Joe Stecher, the world's champion, for the title. This momentous wrestling duel will be staged at the Seventy-First Regiment Armory here on Monday evening, December 8.

This struggle will mark an epoch in the wrestling world, for it will mean the first time these giants ever wrestled to a finish in this city.

WHY MAKE THE ANNUAL STRUGGLE WITH RHEUMATISM?

Nature Gives a Cry for Help That S. S. S. Can Answer With the Right Treatment.

This is the season when the damp, cold, changing weather of winter intensifies the pains and other disagreeable symptoms of Rheumatism.

Rheumatism never comes by accident. It is in the blood and system before a pain is felt.

The symptoms of this disease are almost unnoticed at first, so insidiously do they steal over the body; gradually the little pains and stiffness increase until they develop great inconvenience day by day, and if neglected or improperly treated will become chronic.

Not only is Rheumatism the most painful of all diseases, with its swollen, stiff joints, throbbing muscles and stinging nerves, but it is a formidable and dangerous trouble.

Every day the poison remains in the system the disease gets a firmer hold and the patient is soon left a helpless cripple.

Of course, if this painful disease was on the surface only, you might reasonably expect to get relief by the use of lotions, liniments and other local applications. But the source of the disease is in your blood, the tiny disease germs find lodgment there and multiply by the millions, scattered by means of the blood circulating throughout your entire system. In order to get permanent relief from this dreadful disease, the blood must be purified, and all irritating matter removed from the circulation.

No remedy does this so quickly as S. S. S., the best blood purifier on the market to-day, that has stood the test of time with fifty years of success behind it, and more popular to-day than it has ever been before.

S. S. S. not only contains purifying and tonic properties, but solvent qualities, and, being purely vegetable, will not injure the system as do medicines which contain potash and other mineral ingredients.

While cleansing the blood of all poison, it builds up the system and relieves the sufferer of the nagging pains of Rheumatism and is the one remedy that is so useful in repairing the damage done by impoverished blood.

Don't wait for your trouble to become chronic, but begin the use of S. S. S. to-day and purge the blood of the germs of Rheumatism.

We maintain a medical department for the benefit of all who are afflicted, and our Chief Medical Adviser, who is familiar with all forms of Rheumatism, will gladly give you advice without charge as to the treatment of your own case. Address Medical Director, 11 Swift Laboratory, Atlanta, Ga.

FORWARD PASSES BRINGS RESULTS

Was Worked Successfully in Important Games—One Particular Play

With speedy boys in action, forward passes have worked wonders in football this season. Scarcely a game has been played in which there was at least one big achievement through the aerial play. Tech has made good gains. It also must not be overlooked that interception of these passes brought victory in some games. The New York Times sport writer in commenting on current events in sports says:

"Probably in no preceding football season has the forward pass been so much utilized or with results so frequently decisive as in the season now closing its close. After the first two or three years of forward passing, during which it was more or less of a haphazard play, with luck an important element in its successful employment, the restrictions with which the rule-makers hedged it about and the fear of it by the team playing on the defense served to curtail its use. But, with succeeding years, the coaches became more familiar with its value as a dependable weapon and discovered just what sort of passes could be made effective and what could not. As the game is played to-day, no team can afford to neglect its development or fail to prepare its close."

Where it worked. A glance at some of the more important games of recent Saturdays shows just what a vital factor the forward pass has been. Such headlines as "Wins by Aerial Attack" and "Forward Passes Decide Issue" have been increasingly conspicuous over the reports of games between the leading college teams. Last Saturday, for instance, the forward pass was responsible for both of Syracuse's touchdowns against Colgate, while West Virginia defeated Rutgers and Penn State beat Cornell by the same play.

Princeton and Harvard both scored their touchdowns in the 10-19 game at Princeton by the air route, and Princeton's long march for a touchdown in that contest was made possible by continuous recourse to the Pennsylvania pass. Virginia has developed this department of its attack more perfectly, perhaps, than any other Eastern team, and it was three touchdowns in the Dartmouth-Colgate game that made its touchdowns against Dartmouth and Princeton on the same play, which likewise played a principal part in both of Yale's scores against Brown and paved the way for all of West Virginia's touchdowns against Princeton. Notre Dame defeated the Army by the air route, and on Thanksgiving Day after through many others of the leading games of the season.

One of the principal uses of the forward pass has been to keep the opposing team in constant fear of it, so that it will play its secondary defense well back and thus weaken its power of opposing running plays through the line. This year, however, many of the teams have shown a tendency to play their secondary defense closer to the line, and perhaps it is this fact that has made the use of the forward pass so successful in many games. A team that knows how to use the play effectively on the attack and that, at the same time, can diagnose and split when used by the opposition, without weakening its defense against a running attack, is still a good deal of a rarity. Yet that is the goal toward which every coach must point at this stage in the progress of the gridiron game.

ADVICE. "What will I do," asked the anarchist orator, "if the police arrest me for denouncing the law as tyranny and oppression?" "What will you do?" asked his friend. "Why lose no time in getting a good lawyer." — Baltimore American.

LOTS OF TEMPTATION. "This is one of our large modern department stores." "Wonderful! I suppose you can buy everything you want here." "Better than that. You can buy everything you don't want." — Life.

RASCALS. Biliousness, Headache, Colds, Constipation, driven out with "Cascarets".

Why take nasty cathartics, sickening salts or stomach-turning oils to drive these rascals out? Let gentle, harmless Cascarets remove the liver and bowel poison which is keeping your head dizzy, your tongue coated, your skin sallow, your breath offensive and your stomach sour. Get a box of Cascarets at the drug store and rid your liver, stomach and bowels of the excess bile, poisons and waste which are keeping you miserable. Cascarets never gripe, never sicken, never inconvenience. They cost so little and work while you sleep.

JIMMY WILDE'S ARRIVAL REVIVES BOXING ACTIVITY; WORK FOR ENGLISHMAN

Now that Jimmy Wilde is here, and other fighters from abroad are coming as soon as titles are settled "over there," some real battles may be expected in the United States. The New York Times says: "The most important boxing match held here in years will be decided at the International Sporting Club on February 23. On that date Jimmy Wilde, England's most popular boxer, will display his ability against one of America's three leading bantamweight boxers—Pete Herman, champion; Joe Lynch, and Pat Moore, both clamorous contenders for the title.

The match, in addition to promising the greatest international bout in many years, will serve another and more important purpose. It will mark a new era in boxing in this country, launching the International Sporting Club on a career whose activities and progress, perhaps, will be difficult, but whose possibilities, of necessity, will be tremendous. Directors of the new club, which will be distinctly a club in every sense that the word implies, are confident that their plans will be successful. These club officials, stepping in to resurrect a sport more sinned against than sinning, will strive for a universal code and system in the conduct of boxing matches, and in their efforts they will have the wholehearted support of everybody who appreciates the advantages of boxing when properly conducted. The directors of this important project have their work cut out for them, but they are tackling their labors with confidence of success.

"Just where the officials are planning to conduct the bout in which Wilde will make his first Eastern boxing appearance, is a matter for conjecture. Certain it is that the match will be conducted in a temporary arena. The work of enlisting memberships and arranging many other details of less importance, all require time which will carry well into the new year and beyond the date set for the opening show. This show, by the way, was originally announced for February 3, but has been definitely deferred until February 23. Sufficient patronage is guaranteed to make a success of the coming carnival, and any others that are to follow. Wilde, in himself, would be a remarkable attraction for any boxing club, but to insure further attractive competition the club officials will arrange for a series of Army and Navy championship bouts between the best men in the service.

The arrival here and his activities since crossing Uncle Sam's threshold give an indication of the tremendous interest which will be aroused by a bout in which he will be a participant. The advent of the remarkable little Briton has, too, stimulated interest in a boxing division heretofore comparatively unnoticed—the bantamweight class. Boxers state that enough to qualify in this class are, figuratively speaking, tramping each other in their efforts to attract attention with a possibility of a match with Wilde as their objective. This activity promises plenty of action for the little Britisher if he seeks frequent matches."
