Sweeney and Milnor Submit Results of Legion Convention

Patrick J. Sweeney and Mark T. Milner, Harrisburg delegates from the Sixth District of Pennsylvania to the National convention of the American Legion held in Minneapolis last week, have submitted their report to their posts, No. 279 and No. 27, respectively.

Among the questions taken up at the convention was eligibility to the legion; war workers cannot become members except in the women's auxiliary of the American Legion, to be composed of mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of members or of men who died in service.

The organization of the posts shall date from January 1, 1920, as that is to be the beginning of the fiscal year. Dues are to be fixed by local posts, and are to include one dollar for National headquarters at Indianapolis, and 50 cents to State headquarters at Philadelphia.

The military police, adopted by the convention includes universal military training, disapproval of a large standing army, opposition to compulsory military service in time of peace, and encouragement of military training in high schools and colleges.

The convention went on record as opposed to all forms of memorials save those that could be put to some practical and beneficial use by all the citizens of the community.

Regarding the bonus, the following resolutions were passed:

"Resolved, that while the American Legion was not founded for the purpose of promoting legislation in its selfish interest, it recognizes that our Government owes an obligation to all service men and women to relieve the financial disadvantages incident to their military service, an obligation second only to that of caring for the disabled and for the wives and orphans of those who gave their lives, and one already acknowledged by our Allies. But the American Legion feels that it cannot ask for legislation in its selfish interests and leaves with confidence to Congress the disposal of this obligation."

Armament Reduction Presents Big Problem, Jap Paper Declares

Tokio, Nov. 19.—The Kokumin Shimbun publishes an article pointing out the difficulties involved on the reduction of naval armaments. It says that the fact that the final victory won by the Allies was due largely to the great naval power of the British Empire will surely be a bar to the solution of the armament reduction problem to be dealt with by the League of Nations. Above all, Japan being surrounded by the sea, must depend upon commodities imported from other countries.

The Kokumin adds that even if the present conditions of the navy be made the standard of the reduction of armament, Great Britain and America will not feel danger for their national defence. But Japan has not even a sufficiency for defence and cannot admit that the present conditions of the navy is the standard of armament. The Kokumin also expressed the opinion that it would be unfair to make the length of coast line the standard of the restriction of armament.
