believed here to-day that Bert Bland, notorious I. W. W. fugitive, taken yesterday without a fight by Sheriff John Derry and a company of deputies, has some considerable valuable knowledge regarding the armistic day shooting which resulted in the death of four former service men. Eight guards were placed at the county jail at Chehalia immediately after Bland's arrival. He is suspected of being the slayer of Lieutenant Warren O. Grimm, one of the paraders, who met death at the hands of anarchists. According to Sheriff Barry; Bland was found in a cabin 12 miles northwest of Independence and is supposed to have taken refuge there between the weak armed and had been dependence and is supposed to have taken refuge there. PEST OF BEGGARS

OVERRUNS VIENNA
Vienna, Nov. 19.—This place is suffering from a daily increasing pest of beggars. While a few are crippled soldiers by far the greater part of the swarms that haunt the thoroughfares are civilians, men, women and children of ail ages, from tiny burefooted ragged tots to old men and women. Women with babies in arms and others clutching at their skirts, little girls and little boys of school age and old persons parade the sidewalks in the hotel and cafe districts and pass in steady streams through the restaurants and cafes. Some are licensed, but they are few. The

"The waiter ran out and brought four big potatoes. The patient swallowed them one after another, poured in his glass of beer to keep them down, and then he felt better. "When he was about to leave I asked how he felt.

"Oh, it's nothing, thank you," was the answer, 'after pulling off the same trick in the next restaurant, I shall get enough."

THE NECESSARY WARNING [Journal of the American Medical

An advertisement in the Berlin Meggendorfer Blaetter reads:
"Canary bird escaped. Return to Barbarossa Strasse 5 and receive reasonable reward. (Not edible)." And this story also comes from Berlin, where profiles become exceedingly narrow:
"Fish and potatoes were served at the restaurant, both in the singular number and the portion miserably small.

BACTERIA PRODUCES IRON
[From the Columbus Dispatch] Iron ore is the product of a bug or bacteria, according to the latest scientific information upon the subject. Millions of the bugs work for millions of years, and lo and behold a little lump of iron ore is the result. Billions of them working for billions of years, and there is your iron mine, or great deposit of iron ore. Prof. E. C. Harder is the scientist who gives us the information.
There is no occasion for doubting the statement. It, is no stranger than that the great coral reefs and glorious islands in the sea are only the dead bodies of other bugs, microscopically small and biled on top of each other to form the foundation for even continents.

Bacteria is now a name to charm with. Our blessings and our woes are in the hands of these tiry bugs if they have hands. We now know that the water which we drink is their abode. They account for the fermentation that takes place in the world, for the life and growth of plants, for the supply of food in the soil, for the rendering harmless, of our surroundings.

But now we may look at our great steel bridges and at the whirling wheels in our factories and remember that the metal is the product of this same bacterla—an interesting contemplation, but borrowing an expression from a cartoonist, it doesn't mean anything. No one will ever be able to capture the ironmaking bacteria and set them to work upon his farm, with the hope of some day having an iron mine.

HIGH BRED HORSE IN DEMAND [From Christian Science Monitor] From a Tuisa, Okla, authority on the saddle and driving horse industry comes the prediction that these animals are once more coming into their rightful place. While he acknowledges that the automobile has to a great extent been the means of giving this industry a setback, yet the war has added great impetus to the breeding of fine stock.

The registered saddle and harness horses from the United, States furnished an excellence of service overseas not to be surpassed. There is no denying the fact that to-day there is little demand for the average horse , but for the highly bred gatted saddle horse or the high stepper in either single or double harness, interest is being greatly revived. per in either single or doubt here, ess, interest is being greatly revived.

The writer considers, too, that the state and county fairs are an important factor in creating greater interest in pedigreed saddlers and drivers. And to all true lovers of pure bred horses it is welcome news to learn that in the southwestern part of the United States, at least, there is a hopeful immediate future. Men's Odd
