Visiting the Shops

know there's such a thing as scientific fitting of the feet? In-O you know there's such a thing as scientific fitting of the feet? Indeed there is. And right now let me say that it pays to buy your shoes at the shop that heeds nature's laws. How often have you purchased footwear from a clerk whose main idea seemed to be to make you buy a pair of uncomfortable shoes rather than to miss a sale?, and how frequently have you heard such remarks as "Oh, it may seem a little tight now, but it will stretch," or "Surely you just !magine it's too small—it's your exact size. Wait until it gets the set of your foot?" So you "waited" to your sorrow! Now, at the Army and Navy Shoe Store, Court street, attention is paid to every detail, no matter how minor, and no customer is allowed to purchase ill-fitting shoes.

WILL, miracles never cease! Time was when electric lights could not be regulated. Either they were on full or out altogether. By no manner or means could one keep a dim light burning in the hall or nursery without resorting to gas or to oil lamps. But that day has passed with the entrance of the Dim-A-Light. Now, by a mere pull of the chaim, it is possible to have five changes of light: full, low, Nite-lite, or out. Imagine the satisfaction derived from keeping a dim light in the bathroom or a low light in the sick room! Ard you can do it by simply attaching a brief time only. But an idealistic a low light in the sick room! And such fleeting pleasure, lasting for a you can do it by simply attaching a Dim-A-Lite interchangeable attachment to your socket. $1.25 will purchase one at the Dauphin Electrical Supplies Co., 434 Market street photographer, can make, will rever lose its charm and value.

KNOW a charming young matron who lives in a lovely, old-fashioned KNOW a charming young matron who lives in a lovely, old-fashioned home. The large, airy rooms are particularly adapted to the artistic arrangement of furniture and the deep, old-fashioned windows have been treated most effectively. Everything lends itself admirably to a carefully planned decorative scheme except the hall. And the little mistress of the house sighs in despair over its lack of possibilities. Any piece of furniture placed to break its extreme length completely blocks the passage way. But I found just the proper remedy today in a long, narrow hall table of solid mahogany, in Queen Anne style, with mirror to match, at the J. Porter Harris Store, 221 North Second street. Its lack of width adds to its attractiveness and makes it practical for the narrow hall.

AVE you ever purchased an expensive suit or frock at a shop where every attention was paid you until the sale was made, only to experience a lack of interest and an I-don't-care-whathappens-now attitude when it came to the alterations? Isn't it provoking? Ten chances to one, you never again returned to that store. The attitude of not caring what happers after a garment is sold pervades many establishments. Mere money getting is more important than the customer's complete satisfaction. Such is not the case at the Cloos Company Store. No matter how small the purchase, great pains are taken with any necessary alterations and every courtesy is extended to the customer at all times. That's why I love to recommend this progressive shop.

A Third Reason

My Shop Appeals

to Business Women

Values with a big V and styles expressing good taste: These are two of the reasons I've mentioned which explains the popularity of this shop with business

women. And there's still another factor.

Women in business are very critical of a merchant's service. Being in contact with the public themselves, as most of them are, all day long, they get the inside viewpoint on this question of service. And they recognize good service when they see it.

The pains I've taken in bringing out all the latent talent of my staff; the trouble I've taken to assemble a picked group of the very highest type of sales ability; all this is appreciated by business women.

And the fact that the service rendered in this shop is of a unique quality is one reason for its popularity among business

women.

Radical Miners in Wyoming Fields Cause Men to Quit

Salt Lake City, Utah, Nov. 19.— Activities of radical coal miners, among whom are many foreigners, have caused a renewed cessation of work in the Wyoming coal districts, according to word received by operating officials here.

according to word received by operating officials here.

Reports which have been received from Rock Springs, Wyoming, the central point in the coal fields, are to the effect that the foreign radicals have completely dominated the situation and have forced the mines who had signified their intention of returning to work, to remain away from the mines to-day.

Threats of physical violence to miners who had agreed to abide by the order of United Mine Workers of America officials calling off the strike were made openly in the Rock Springs district.

Chicago, Nov. 19.—Seven local officials of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America were reported named in indictments charging extortion, sabotage, injury to persons and property, interference with justice and other offenses.

Indictments had been forecast during several weeks of investigation in connection with which the state's attorney said he had evidence that four clothing manufacturers had paid tribute of $100,000 to local union officials to prevent or stop strikes and boycotts, and that the evidence indicated the clothing industry had paid out more than $500,000 in extortions.
