"When a Girl Marries"

By ANN LITTLE
A New, Romantic Serial Dealing With the Absorbing Problem of a Girl Wife

CHAPTER CCLXVI
(Copyright, 1919, King Feature, Syndicate, Inc.)

Val's dinner for Father Andrew turned out to be an elaborate affair such as only she would be likely to contrive with no more notice than the interval between lunch and her party.

When we arrived we found a regular assemblage waiting to greet us. Besides the Cosbys and Uncle Ned and Aunt Mollie were the two willowingly girls with Sheldon and Tom as cavaliers for them. When we were ushered into the dining room we found the table resplendent with silver and fine linen and gleaming with lights of many candles—an elaborate and formal dinner, instead of the little family gathering we'd expected.

There is neither head nor foot to Val's circular table, but when she took her place with Tom and Shelly on either side of her, that immediately became the focal spot. Lacy and Dana found their place cards next to the two bachelors, with Jim and Neal dining them and Father Andrew between Uncle Ned and me. Lane was on my right and Aunt Mollie, Neal, Phoebe and Jim completed the circle back to Dana. A typical Val arrangement it was.

And a typical Val dinner followed. Exotic, elaborate and as suited to her own palate as were the orange candle shades to her magnolia-and-jet beauty.

Father Andrew and Uncle Ned had a splendid time from the first minute they met. Lane's heavy gallantries bored me, so I gave only half my attention to him and divided the rest of it between rejoicing that my father was forgetting his troubles for the time, and wondering why Jim was so distraught and why the pretty little

The conversation between David DeLaine and Samuel Leighton took place in the office of the latter in the morning of the day following Desiree's explanation to her father.

Leighton was too much of a man of the world to run any risk where his daughter was concerned. So, in spite of his belief in the truth of what she told him, he took the precaution to get Henry Andrews on the long distance telephone before his interview with DeLaine. The parent had casually asked his daughter for the name of her lover's Baltimore lawyer. If she suspected her parent's intentions, she was too wise to betray this fact. She had nothing to fear from investigation.

Andrews' report was so satisfactory that the elderly man greeted David cordially when, an hour later, he was ushered into the inner office.

"Ah, good morning," rising and holding out his hand. "I am glad to see you."

The former employer was forced to admit to himself that his caller had a manner that won respect and liking. Even when DeLaine was his chauffeur, Leighton had recognized the unofficial results of the Republican candidates having big majorities and the four city loans passing without much opposition.

Eggs Now $1.02 Wholesale in N. Y.; Milk and Butter Up

New York, Nov. 20.—Eggs reached a new high record mark for wholesale prices in this city yesterday when wholesalers quoted Call-corn and New York state eggs to retailers at $1.02 a dozen. Canned cold storage eggs are now 60 cents a dozen wholesale, which is 3 cents higher than they have been for a week. The reason for the big increase in the price is said to be an unprecedented demand for the best grades by the consumers regardless of cost.

Fancy California eggs and fresh-lays from New York state will come on the market at from $1.15 to $1.20 a dozen, retail dealers say. Retailers are quoting butter to-day at 80 cents, a 2-cent rise since yesterday.

A DISCOVERY THAT BENEFITS MANKIND

Two discoveries have added greatly to human welfare.

In 1835 Newton originated the vacuum process for condensing milk with cane sugar to a semi-liquid form.

In 1883 Horlick at Racine, Wis., discovered how to reduce milk to a dry powder form with extract of malted grains, without cane sugar.

This product HORLICK'S named Malted Milk. (Name since copied by others.) Its nutritive value, digestibility and ease of preparation (by simply stirring in water) and the fact that it keeps in any climate, has proved of much value to mankind as an ideal food-drink from infancy to old age.

DIMPLES. G.—Your complexion is not merely in the very outer skin. It is in the part of the skin immediately beneath the outer layer. Complexion creams which merely affect the outer layer are as a rule very ineffectual. A method gaining wide use because of its tremendous success lies in the use of zintone, a powder which is simply mixed at home with a little glycerine and dissolved in water. This makes an exquisite cream. The zintone can be secured at any drugstore in one-ounce packages for 50 cents. This is also a very economical method. By liberal use of this article, a tremendous difference in complexion is noted in a few days, by the disappearance of muddiness, sallowness, red spots, freckles and other blemishes.

MRS. G. F. O. C.—Yes, you can easily remove blackheads in a few moments, even while you are engaged in your toilet. And to think you have been years trying to get rid of these embarrassing blackheads! On a hot wet cloth sprinkle some powdered peroxide, which you can get at the drugstore for 50 cents, and rub this over the affected skin. You will find the blackheads be entirely gone in a few moments. Continue this method every few days.

MRS. C. A.—By all means you should not use mechanical instruments for bust development. Use a safe formula, by mixing two ounces of ruetone, half a cup of sugar and a half pint of water. Two table-spoonsful of this after each meal, and one at bedtime, will in most instances do wonderful work. Of course, no one can promise sure results in any one case, but this for-

When the two were facing each other across a small table, she uttered an exclamation.

"Why, Desree! You have your pendant on! I heard it was lost. Who found it—and where was it?"

"I found it—put into the wrong case," was the brief reply.

"I am so glad," Helen said. "Of course I was sure your chauffeur had not stolen it—although your aunt was worried about it."

"A Wonderful Thing"

"But, Desree, my dear—I have heard the most wonderful thing about that man. His name is not Smith at all!"

"Who told you?"

"Walter Jefferson—in strict confidence—that night at your house. And I kept mum about it. Then I met him—Walter, I mean—only a few minutes ago, up on Forty-second street—and he has found out a lot more about your chauffeur. He told me that, confidentially, too—but, of course, you have a right to know and you are so close-mouthed anyway."

"Well, Smith is no other than David DeLaine, from Baltimore. Daisy Dakin—Walter's cousin, you know—remembers all about him. He went to France and was wounded. Then, of course, you have a right to know and you are so close-mouthed anyway."

"But, Desree! How queer you look! What are you smiling about? My dear, aren't you surprised?"

"At what?" Desree asked demurely, although her eyes were dancing.

"At learning that Smith is really David DeLaine. Aren't you awfully surprised?"

"Why, no," Desree said slowly. "Not at all. Helen, dear, for you see, I am engaged to be married to David DeLaine."

NEW INDUSTRIAL CONFERENCE TO MEET

I trust you will give me the pleasure of naming you as one of its members.

"Guided by the experience of the last conference, I have thought it desirable that, in this new body there should be no recognition of distinctive groups, but that all of the new representatives should have conferred with such regard for justice and fair-dealing that the workman will feel himself induced to put forth his best efforts, that the employer will have an encouraging profit, and that the public will not suffer at the hands of either class. It is my hope that this conference may lay the foundation of the development of standards and machinery within our industries, by which these results may be attained.
