METHODIST HOME IS TO OPEN ITS DOORS

Informal Reception to Be Held at Splendid Institution of Denomination on Thanksgiving Day; Larders Well Filled and More Will Be Given For Children

Mechanicsburg, Pa., Nov. 24.—On Thanksgiving Day the new Methodist Episcopal Children's Home in this place will be open to the members and friends of the church in this and other towns of the Central Pennsylvania Conference. An informal reception will be held from 2 o'clock in the afternoon to 5 in the evening.

The home is located at 507 West Main street. It was the property of Adam Oris. Ideal in location, with spacious grounds, and modern, well-equipped house, new electric system, heater, repapered and all new furnishings, it will soon be satir with a group of children in need of care and a home. It has been carefully planned by the trustees in charge to make it a home, not merely an institution, a place to house the children. It is the property of the Central Pennsylvania Conference and this place in Mechanicsburg was chosen almost a year ago in competition with six other towns.

Much interest has been taken in the project by congregations in this town, took advantage of weather conditions last week and completed a stretch of the roadway from the top of Seminary hill more than half way to the railroad crossing. Although handicapped by a one day strike among the hands the dirt flew on the remaining days of the week. If the weather is favorable the cement work to the point where the street has been torn up, which will take them to within two blocks of the center of the town, will be completed by Christmas. It is the intention of the contractors to continue the work so long as the weather permits, but it is likely no asphalt dressing will be put on until spring.

Contractors Rush Road Building at Gettysburg

Gettysburg, Pa., Nov. 24.—The McDonald firm, the contractors building the Lincoln Highway through this town, took advantage of weather conditions last week and completed a stretch of the roadway from the top of Seminary hill more than half way to the railroad crossing. Although handicapped by a one day strike among the hands the dirt flew on the remaining days of the week. If the weather is favorable the cement work to the point where the street has been torn up, which will take them to within two blocks of the center of the town, will be completed by Christmas. It is the intention of the contractors to continue the work so long as the weather permits, but it is likely no asphalt dressing will be put on until spring.

FEAR OF ARREST LEADS TO DEATH

State Police Believe the Man Burned Alive Escaped Danville Asylum Inmate

Lebanon, Pa., Nov. 24.—It was probably fear of recapture that impelled Robert W. Kishbaugh, an escaped inmate of the Danville Insane Asylum, to take refuge in a Philadelphia and Reading Railway freight car which, while he was inside, was sealed and hauled toward York, revealing the unrecognizable body of the man.

The State police are confident the torso, that of a man who was first seen here when he applied for board and lodging at a North Ninth street boarding house. He was given his breakfast and Mrs. Mary White stated to the police that he ate ravenously, consuming two large loaves of bread, two dishes of potatoes, two dishes of oatmeal and other food she provided.

At the employment bureau of the Bethlehem Steel plant he made application for work and told the man in charge he had been employed in the iron works at Berwick, Pa. His actions attracted the attention of the Bethlehem police force, who notified a State policeman, Sergeant Ike Campbell, who was detailed on the case, having previously been notified of a man having escaped from the plant.

The corporation was formed for the purpose of establishing and conducting an institution for the maintenance and the industrial, intellectual and religious training of children committed to its care.

Kishbaugh escaped for the second time from the institution during last May. He was recognized while in Lebanon by Mill Superintendent William H. Catterall of the Bethlehem plant, who formerly resided at Berwick. Kishbaugh had a card in his possession showing him to be 41 years of age.

Campbell searched the company premises and railroad yards as far as the plant of the Lebanon Valley Iron and Steel Company plant but no trace of the man could be found.

Kishbaugh constantly feared an effort would be made to take him into custody and this is thought to have led him to hide in the freight car standing on the siding before being sealed by the Bethlehem and other car tracers. On Thursday when Freeman passed the car he heard a call from some person and immediately replied but heard no answer.

The call probably came from Kishbaugh inside the car.

Woman Cleaves to Outlaw Sweetheart

Decree of Franklin County Court Forbids Marriage of John Toms and Wife Who Deserted Husband Eleven Years Ago and Just Now Divorced

Waynesboro, Pa., Nov. 24.—John Toms, for whom Hazel Gauger Shaffer deserted her husband 11 years ago, will not be permitted to marry the woman, according to a decree handed down by Judge Gillan. The granting of the divorce to William M. Shaffer, of this place, recalls the deeds of Toms, who also is a Waynesboro product.

A dozen years ago he began to visit clandestinely Mrs. Hazel Shaffer. He was living away from Waynesboro, but would come in disguised and quietly visit at the Shaffer home when the husband was away.

After a time Mrs. Shaffer, who was a Waynesboro girl, having attended the public schools here, became so infatuated with Toms that she decided to cast her lot entirely with him and she left her husband, going to the mountain home of Toms.

She has revisited her old home and friends since then on rare occasions. Apparently Toms and Mrs. Shaffer were well mated for so far as is known they have continued living together through the entire 11 years.

Toms has been somewhat of a myth in the past few years. All sorts of tales are told about him. One is that he visits Waynesboro on occasions dressed in women's clothes and mingles freely in the downtown section.

Nearly every crime committed in the mountain sections near here or for miles around is "hung" on Toms. The first assertion is, "Bet John Toms has something to do with that."

LINDNER ENTERS BAIL FOR COURT

Carlisle Manufacturer, and Attorney McKeehan Are to Stand Trial

Carlisle, Pa., Nov. 24.—John Lindner, charged with assault and battery by Edward S. Kronenberg and against whom a civil action for heavy damages also has been instituted by Kronenberg, appeared before Justice of the Peace Eckels late Saturday afternoon and entered bail for his appearance either at a hearing or in court. The magistrate previously had held Joseph P. McKeehan, an attorney, for court on two charges, conspiracy to assault and conspiracy to extort and injure. McKeehan is charged with having caused Kronenberg to come to his office, where Lindner committed the assault. Kronenberg accuses McKeehan of having stood by and willfully saw him assaulted, making the deduction that because of his actions he was a party to the conspiracy.

Kronenberg testified before the magistrate that he had said Lindner was a crook and that the remark was told Lindner, who wished him to come to the office of McKeehan and place his accusation in writing. When he failed to do so he alleges Lindner, who came to him while the argument over the matter was in progress, assaulted him.
