

GREATEST DEER SEASON NOW ON

More Deer and More Hunters For the Shooting Period Which Starts Today

Practically the whole force of the State Game Commission has been ordered into the woods for the opening of the deer season which begins to-day and will extend until December 15. Owing to the increase in the number of licensed hunters, which game officials believe will run over 350,000, and the fact that many men who served in the army and learned the use of firearms it is expected that there will be more men out after deer than ever. Numerous parties have been passing through this city on the way to forests in the South Mountain region and up the Susquehanna valley in automobiles and game wardens say that there is more hunting by automobile parties instead of camping than they have observed heretofore. For years deer hunters camped in the woods, but from what is reported here, many now make their headquarters at hotels in small towns near the hunting district.

Hundreds of deer have been bought by the State Game Commission in recent years and liberated in the vicinity of the game preserves where there has been extensive breeding. Most of these deer have come from Michigan, but a number have been bought in New England and New York. It is believed that there are an unusually large number of deer in the State now, possibly a greater number than in decades.

Dozens of arrests have been made for killing of deer in advance of the season and for shooting of does, which is forbidden at all times, in the last three years.

The Public Service Commission has halted the Lawton, Oxford and South Railroad, which operates in the lower end of Lancaster county, to answer the charge that it has discontinued its train service and started to tear up its track without applying to the State for permission to abandon its line.

SYNDER RECORD STANDS UNIQUE

Collections of State Revenue Attract National Attention to Office

Attention of officials in charge of financial operations at Washington and other state capitals has been attracted to the remarkable work of Auditor General Charles A. Snyder in collecting over $22,000,000 the fiscal year which closed yesterday. The fact that he broke his own record, the high water mark of the State, by $8,000,000, which was the whole revenue of the Commonwealth thirty years ago, is the amazing part of the work. The result, say officials, demonstrates the success of the collection methods which he put into effect when he assumed the office. The 1919 fiscal year revenue of Pennsylvania is second only to that of the Empire State and the figures are close to the revenue of the United States Government in 1851, when it went over the $50,000,000 mark for the first time in American history.

Mr. Snyder's work is all the more notable because when he assumed office in 1917 he found the department running on momentum from earlier years and some branches of the service not far from demoralization. It took six months to straighten out the work, but the Auditor General's personality was injected into the efforts and although the total for the fiscal year of 1917, five months of which was within his term, was approximately $21,700,000 or $5,000,000 less than the previous year, his business system, vigor in collections and enterprise in getting in overdue taxes, had one of the triumphs in State financial history because the fiscal year of 1918 closed with receipts of over $44,000,000, smashing every record.

The attainment of the $52,000,000 mark, promised by Mr. Snyder for the fiscal year, has taken strenuous work and the Auditor General has highly praised his force for unsparring labor. Just what the new record means stands out when contrasted with receipts of former years. The figure is almost 100 times the revenue of a hundred years ago, 1919 having something over $500,000, and more than nine times of fifty years ago, 1869 having shown $5,247,712. In 1859 the revenue was $8,465,399.22, in 1859 $15,458,316.97 and 1909 went to $29,101,183.70. In 1911 it went over the thirty million mark, reaching $32,146,973.

Incidentally, the revenue this year has come from the greatest number of sources, some involving organization of new systems of collection.

Samuel, Scranton; George A. Benner, Peckville.

The State Water Supply Commission has approved plans for the bridge to be built by Lewistown over the Kishacoquillas Creek and also one for Sharon.

Charters for three new electric companies to operate in the Washington borough and in adjoining townships have been granted to the Ware interests which have incorporated a number of electric companies for Lancaster county.

Governor Sprout has issued a statement in which he pledges full support to the War Savings campaign and to the inculcation of habits of thrift. In a statement to George E. Lloyd, chairman of the Third district campaign he pledges the full support of the state government and in his speech here on November 6 urges return to the old habits of thrift and industry.

The houses condemned by the State in the Valley Forge proceedings are being rapidly torn down and the plans for the park extension are being advanced.

General Survey on All Grade Crossings

As a preliminary to adoption of a State policy in regard to elimination of grade crossing the Accident and Engineering Bureau of the Pennsylvania Public Service Commission has recommended a systematic survey of the 12,000 crossings in the State and it will probably be authorized early in the coming year. It is estimated that it would cost almost $600,000,000 to eliminate all of the grade crossings in the State.

The survey would divide the crossings into three classes:

Easy to improve and costing less than $2,000, which would include removal of grades, removal of obstructions to view such as trees, brush, billboards, buildings, signs, fences, etc.

Expensive to eliminate which would involve engineering problems and costing $2,000 or more.

Separation preparatory to closing of crossings which are not needed and which increase dangers. There are many crossings which are close to each other, some that are little used, others that are neglected and which could be abandoned with little inconvenience to the public.

In connection with the survey railroad operation would also be considered. The survey would include railroads by divisions, with comments upon each crossing, the method of protection now in use and recommendations.

One of the plans of the Commission is to adopt a uniform warning sign for every crossing.
