

American Rescued From Mexican Bandits
 Mexico City, Dec. 5.—Federal forces recently rescued T. G. McKenzie, American manager of an electric power plant in Camargo, state of Chihuahua, who had been captured and robbed by rebels and held with a view to ransom, according to reports reaching here.

Mr. McKenzie had set out on horseback from Parral and was taken captive by a small band of men who announced he would be held for ransom. A small boy hiding in the bushes witnessed the attack and ran to Parral where federal forces were advised and pursuit begun. The bandits were overtaken at nightfall and, after a sharp encounter in which three bandits were killed and one wounded, McKenzie was rescued.

Some Oil Wells Flow Salt Water
 Tampico, Dec. 5.—It is announced that some of the oil wells in the gulf region of Tepehate, in which are located some of the biggest producing wells in the republic, appear to be exhausted and are now flowing salt water instead of petroleum. Production in this region has totalled more than 100,000,000 barrels annually. Geologists who recently surveyed the region declared that the region have advised drillings further south. The first big well in Tepehate was discovered nine years ago and development has been rapid since.

 New York, Dec. 5.—Constable Charles G. Anderson of Mineola got information yesterday that led to the recovery of what the authorities estimate to be $3,000 worth of the 500 cases of Canadian Club whisky and five barrels of wine stolen two weeks ago from the New York Central Railroad's docks in New York city. The officials say they believe the remainder of the liquor is distributed over Long Island. Two trucks, they say, were used by the thieves.
