CENTER COUNTY MECCA FOR DEER

Hunters From All Over State Fill the Seven Mountain Hills

Bellefonte, Pa., Dec. 8.—From the number of deer that have been killed in Center county the first five days of the season, and especially in the Seven Mountain range, it would seem as if the deer grew on every huckle-berry bush on the mountain; but many a bar has been killed and so far no known one has been seen. More than one hundred deer are known to have been killed and as a number of hunters are deep in the mountains, with no word from them, it is quite probable that the number is considerably in excess of one hundred.
