

BILLY ANGEL MAKES KID ALBERTS QUIT IN SEVENTH ROUND OF HARD RING BATTLE

TECH HAD BEST TEAM IN GAME WITH PORTLAND, SAYS READING SPORT WRITER

An interesting spectator at Saturday's game between Tech and Portland, was P. H. Culp, sport editor of the Reading Times-News and Telegram. He is recognized as an authority on the grid game, and is strong for scholastic sports. Here is what he has to say about the great battle:

Tech, and would have gone back defeated nevertheless. With a team equal in weight to Tech they might have kept the score down, but they would have been beaten because they were up against a better team. Both on the offense and defense Tech was superior. Comparing the two teams we find that Tech excelled in every department of the game. Even in the forward passing, which was Portland's chief line of attack in the second half, Tech had the edge. Portland's desperate aerial attack was praiseworthy, but it was wild attempt to score. On the other hand, Tech did not bother much with the forward pass, but when she did it was the real thing. Their fake end run ending with a forward pass, took Portland off its feet.
