

AMERICAN ARMY WON WAR, SAYS PERSHING IN REPORT

Yanks Drew First Blood at Passchendaele Ridge, November 6-10, 1917, When 11th Engineers Joined British in Attack

Washington, Dec. 15.—General Pershing, in his special report to Secretary Baker, on the operations of the American army in France, says in effect, although not in terms, that the American army won the war.

"It was this spirit of determination animating every American soldier in the Meuse-Argonne battle, that made it impossible for the enemy to stand against us until 1919."

"Twenty-two American and four French divisions," says General Pershing, "defeated 47 German divisions, representing 25 per cent of the enemy's entire divisional strength on the western front. Of the enemy divisions, 20 had been drawn from the French front and one from the British front. Of the 22 American divisions 12 had at various times during this period (Sept 26 to Nov. 11, 1918), been engaged on other fronts than their own. The first Army had suffered a loss of about 117,000, in killed and wounded; it had captured 26,000 prisoners, 847 cannon, 3,000 machine guns and large quantities of material."

With the American army holding the heights dominating Sedan, the report said, and the German line of communications definitely severed, "recognizing that nothing but cessation of hostilities could save his armies from complete disaster, he appealed for an immediate armistice (Nov. 6)."

Follows Growth of Army.

General Pershing's report follows in detail the growth of the American overseas forces from the date of his departure with a small staff, May 28, 1917, until it numbered more than 2,000,000 men. Every step of organization, every conference with the allied generals and the important decisions reached are recorded.

The document, comprising a pamphlet of about 100 pages, or 35,000 words, is divided into three sections: "Period of Organization," "Operations" and "Supply, Coordinations and Administration."

Summarizing the military situation which existed in the Spring of 1917, when the United States aligned itself with the Allies, General Pershing said:

"In the five months ending June 30, 1917, German submarines had more than 3,250,000 tons of allied shipping. During three years Germany had seen practically all her offensives except Verdun crowned with success. Her battle lines were held on foreign soil and she had withstood every attack since the Marne. The German general staff could foresee now the complete elimination of Russia, the possibility of defeating Italy before the end of the year and, finally, the campaign of 1918 against the French and British on the western front which might terminate the war.

"Financial problems of the Allies were difficult, supplies were becoming exhausted and their armies had suffered tremendous losses. Discouraged the civil population but throughout the armies as well."

Calls for Million Men.

Within one month of his arrival General Pershing recommended definitely that 1,000,000 men should be in France before May, 1918, it being evident that "the force of one million is the smallest unit which in modern war will be complete, well-balanced and independent fighting organization." Plans for the future, the recommendation added, "should be based on three times this force."

The general was equally specific in choosing the ground for American operations. He says:

"Our mission was offensive and it was essential to make plans for striking the enemy where a definite military decision could be gained. While the Allied armies had concentrated to maintain the offensive, the British, in order to guard the Channel ports, were committed to operations in Flanders and the French to the portion of the front protecting Paris. Both lacked troops to operate elsewhere on a large scale. To the east the great fortified district east of Verdun and around

Metz menaced central France, protected the most exposed portion of the German line of communications, that between Metz and Sedan, and covered the Briey iron region, from which the enemy obtained the greater part of the iron required for munitions and material. The coal fields east of Metz were also covered by these same defenses. A deep advance east of Metz, or the capture of the Briey region, by threatening the invasion of rich German territory in the Moselle Valley and the Saar Basin, thus curtailing her supply of coal or iron, would have a decisive effect in forcing a withdrawal of German troops from northern France. The military and economic situation of the enemy, therefore, indicated Lorraine as the field promising the most fruitful results for the employment of our armies.

American arms drew first blood, the report shows, at Passchendaele Ridge, Nov. 6-10, 1917, when the 11th engineers joined the British in a successful attack which was part of a general operation designed "to hinder the German conquest of Russia and to prevent, if possible, an attack on Italy, or in the near future."

New Aerial Service in South America

Buenos Aires, Dec. 15.—A new aviation company has just been formed in Argentina to inaugurate aerial passenger service between Buenos Aires and Montevideo and between Buenos Aires and the fashionable summer resort of Mar del Plata. The trip by steamer across the mouth of the River Plata to Montevideo now consumes about eleven hours. To Mar del Plata is a night's journey by rail.

There is great interest in aviation in Argentina which has been accentuated recently by the visits of French, British and Italian aviation missions, several North American aviators and the flights across the Andes of the Italian aviator Locatelli. At least one North American airplane manufacturer has a representative here.

The name of the new aviation company is the "Compania Franco-Argentina de Transportes Aereos." It is capitalized at one million pesos and intends to use a type of biplane as exhibited here by the French aviation commission.

St. John's Suffers in Intense Storm

St. John's, N. F., Dec. 15.—Extensive damage has been done to shipping and to shore properties by the worst storm of the winter, which started Thursday morning and is only now abating. Dwellings and other buildings in exposed parts of the town and in the suburbs have been blown down, and steamers and many sailing vessels in the harbor have dragged their anchors and collided with each other or crashed into the wharves. Some of the craft which by great effort had been guided out of the harbor were stranded at its mouth.

Johnson's Hat in the Ring

Washington, Dec. 15.—Senator Hiram W. Johnson, of California, has announced formally that he would be a candidate for the Republican nomination for the Presidency. He said he would make a personal campaign in every state, explaining that he did not intend to have his candidacy determined by "politicians in convention."
