Sir John Griffith Declares Political Trickery Should Be Banished

Dublin, Dec. 16 .- Sir John Grifwith Irish engineer, who recently re-tired from the service of the Dublin Port and Docks Board, in an address delivered in Dublin said that If religious intolerance and political trickery could be banished from Ireland and the land handed over to the control of engineers there would the control of engineers there would be prospects of industrial progress and contentment.

The lessons of the war for Ireland he considered to being isolation, the importance of her strategical position, and the deficiency of naval bases on her western coast. Another naval base should be formed in Galway Bay and a thoroughly equipped harbor built there. This harbor would be available as a deep-sea rishing station and as a terminal port for a high-speed passenger and mail service between America and Europe.

mail service between America and Europe.

The only remedy for industrial unrest throughout the world, he believed, to be the adoption of some system of co-operation, copartnership or profit sharing.

Referring to the possibilities of Irish peat, he pointed out that if air-dried peat were used to replace coal the Irish deposits would be sufficient to retisfy the fuel and power requirements of the country for 300 years.

Recounting the work of Irish engineers he said that Ireland has the largest telescope, the largest ships, the largest sluices, the largest concrete blocks for harbor work, the most striking improvement of a harbor entrance (Dublin) by artificial scour and that in its industrial factories Ireland can claim the largest brewery, the largest spinning and weaving works and the largest rope

Many Spanish Farmers Will Come to America

Madrid, Dec. 16.—Large numbers of agricultural workers from all parts of Spain are awaiting at Ferrol and other ports for transportation to America, both North and South. This is one of the results of the new social conditions brought about in Spain by the war, and increased wages.

For years the Spanish farmer had paid his help about three pestas (normally 60 cents) daily during the harvest. As this was just about sufficient for the employe to subsist (normally 60 cents) daily during the charvest. As this was just about surficient for the employe to subsist upon, the farmer also allowed his men and women sufficient to buy food during the winter. This amount was decided by the farmer himself and varied in proportion to the generosity of the giver.

Last year the farm hands, like almost every other class of labor in Spain, organized a union, with the result that wages during the harvest increased from the century-old three pesetas daily. Therefore, when the winter came on and there was no work, the farmer, instead of following the old convention of handing out doles to his employes, told them as they were now earning good wages they should save sufficient to keep themselves during the winter.

Those who had saved, or at least a proportion of them, decided to move to some country where money could be earned the year round.
