Gas From Heater

At the weekly luncheon of the social committee of the Central NV today, plans for the annual New Year's pay entertainment were discussed. The outstanding feature of this year's event will be the entertainment of the poor children of Harrisburg at a party to be held in Fahnestock Hall on the afternoon of January 1.

Gas From Ignited Fire

Philadelphia, Dec. 19.—There is to be a good-sized slump in business next year, and prices will drop at the same time, according to S. A. Linnekin, a business expert, who addressed the members of the Poor Richard Club.

Before this happens, however, he said, prices will continue to soar until they reach their peak. After that the slump. Food, clothing and other necessaries of life will be affected, he asserted.

Gas From Ignited Fire Spurts High in the Air number of $2,000,000 feet every twenty-four hours, was ignited, supposedly by friction during drilling operations. Flames shot more than a hundred feet into the air, and the fire was visible for a distance of about five miles.

fire was visible for a distance of about five miles.

The well had been producing for a week at a rate of 19,000,000 feet daily and the owners decided to drill deeper into the sand. The drilling had just been started when, with a roar, a new force of gas rushed from the well and immediately ignited. Two drillers were painfully burned, the derrick destroyed and a nearby house consumed by the flames.

Harrisburg Will Be Described in Magazine

Harrisburg's attractions and municipal advantages will be the subject of an article to appear in the near future in "Travel," a magazine devoted to the description of points of historical, geographical and scenic interest, it was announced at the Harrisburg Chamber of Commerce to-day.

Katharine N. Birdsalle, managing editor of the magazine, was in Harrisburg recently, and upon leaving the city, congratulated the residents upon the attractions and advantages possessed by Harrisburg.

"During my visit to your city I became impressed with the charm of the city and am planning to write an article descriptive of its quaintness as well as its progress," was the comment of the visitor.

The Harrisburg Chamber is furnishing information and photographs of Harrisburg to aid in writing the article. The November and December issues of Travel were printed in Harrisburg by the Telegraph Printing Company.
