MOTHER GETS HER BABY BACK

Mrs. Lena Lisa Given Child After She Tells Story of Abandonment
New York, Dec. 19.—The shade of King Solomon sat on the children's court bench yesterday while Judge Levy tried to decide who was the mother of little "Love O' Mike," claimed by two women—by Mrs. August Wentz as her kidnapped son, and by Mrs. Lena Lisa as the baby she had planned to abandon to the mercies of Mrs. Elizabeth Seaman (Mollie Bly) for his own happiness and because she could not support her little family of three, herself, the baby and three-year-old William, on the $12 a week which was all she could earn.

Lisa told how she had schemed to have the infant left in her care, but she had not intended to do so. She had planned to abandon to the mercies of Mrs. Elizabeth Seaman (Mollie Bly) for his own happiness and because she could not support her little family of three, herself, the baby and three-year-old William, on the $12 a week which was all she could earn.

Her husband's death last May had left her with a burden she often despised of bearing, she said. She thought "Nellie Bly" would adopt him, or find a good home for him.

Lodge May Fill Both Chairmanships in G. O. P. Convention

Washington, Dec. 19.—Tentative plans have been made to have Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, of Massachusetts, as temporary and permanent chairman of the Republican national convention. There has been some talk among the leaders of former Senator Elihu Root for temporary chairman, but it is understood that the plan of having one man for both places, first used in 1908, will be continued in 1920.

SENTENCE I. W. W.
Kansas City, Mo., Dec. 19.—Federal Judge John C. Pollock late today passed sentence on twenty-seven members of the Industrial Workers of the World, found guilty by a jury in the Federal district court of Kansas City, Kan., of conspiracy against the Government. The sentences ranged from three and a half years to nine and a half years in the Federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, Kan.

White House Residents Have Left Many Legends

When President Wilson, because of his illness, received the King of the Belgians while propped up in bed, with a torn sweater about his shoulders, and told the Prince of Wales that the bed in which he lay had been occupied by Baron Bismarck, later King Edward VII. and Abraham Lincoln, the address tradition to the hostess already clinging about the White House.

The home of presidents has more tender human memories than any other public building in America.

President Wilson's enforced disability recalls the premeditated negligence—wool slippers, yarn stockings and old slippers by which Jefferson sought to impress the British ambassador with American democracy when that official arrived in the White House in dress to present his credentials. Early morning callers on John Quincy Adams had cool their heels while the President finished three chapters in the Bible and washed down back with a glass of water.

The White House for a swim in the Potomac. To "drop in" at the White House even today is a social duty to do, during Jackson's terms, meant finding the chief executive before an open fire, in the parlors, with a duty as a smoking jacket, puffing at a long pipe with a bowl of red clay.

Every room of the White House abounds in history. The oak paneled state dining room knows dinners of the homely sort that Jefferson gave when the Washington high society he had heard there was to be an extra place at the table of the oft-tiresome kind like one given more than a century ago to the Tunisian ambassador, when the hostess, because every one would not withdraw while he smoked his pipe, though his secretary showed him good will by ceremoniously kissing the ladies present; the bizarre kind given by Theodore Roosevelt to his official ex-prize fighters and distinguished men of letters that in months he famous one with Booker T. Washington as a guest and many memorable banquets like those of the late President Sir Arthur James Balfour, when the china set of 1500 pieces, and the famous cut glass vase, which is engraved with the arms of the United States, were used.

No room is better known to the public than the east room, of late years the scene of brilliant receptions and White House weddings. It too has memories of a cruder democracy when all Washington flocked there to follow about the servants who served refreshments, seizing upon whatever they could get their hands on.

Recent discussion of gifts received by the President and Mrs. Wilson while abroad, made reference to the presents of two, made to other Presidents and first ladies, which remain in the White House. One is a gold mantle clock presented to Washington by Lafayette, who received it from Napoleon.

Boiler Blast Rocks Philadelphia Building

Philadelphia, Dec. 19.—An extra effort to heat up the six-story building at 1009 Arch street yesterday afternoon was too much for the boiler, and a valve blew out with a loud explosion.

LITTLE TALKS BY BEATRICE FAIRFAX

"Remember you say, in every breath, She lives where happier dreams come true; But were it not the sting of death If death indeed made all things new?"

Talk not of her immortal youth; Dearest her plaid age than all, What shining wings could wear, in youth, The beauty of her faded shawl? Nay! By her portrait kneeling down, One prayer, but one, will I record: No white wings, but the grey old gown, No angel, but a mother, Lord!"

Nothing in all the tragedy recorded by the letters I receive each day ever touches me so deeply or grieves me so sadly as the story of discord between mother and child.

"Who can find a virtuous woman? For her price is far above rubies. Her children arise up and call her blessed," says the thirty-first chapter of Proverbs.

The mother who has not so wrought that her children may truly call her blessed has missed the deepest, truest meaning of her life. The child who fails to understand the mother-heart is shorn of the talisman of truth that guides through all darkness.

There is nothing in all of life so glorious and generous and understanding as mother love. Youth cannot always comprehend its manifestations. Perhaps Youth craves gaiety and frivolity and mother insists on work. But some day when achievement has come the vision of the mother-eyes will be clearly justified.

Sometimes I think there is nothing which goes so unrewarded as mother-love. We take it for granted. It asks little—and gets less.

Always sacrifice. What I can't remember how serenely she got a new winter suit, while mother was wearing a twice-made-over one? What boy hasn't accepted mother's dear white-lie about not caring for any nice pie, and bolted his second piece without a thank you?

When mother doesn't approve of daughter's suitor it isn't because of anything she hopes to gain for herself, or anything she has to lose—except through daughter. When mother insists on early hours and hard work, it is because her dear eyes pierce the future with vision akin to the prophetic power of those whom the olden days named "Seers" or "seers."

When mother insists that daughter help with the housework do you think it is because she wants to get out of doing it herself? Not at all. She is expressing her longing to see daughter a useful, worth-while woman, with some knowledge of how to create a home and manage it.

When mother seems stern and strict and not understanding or sympathetic at all, she is probably most deeply loving. She knows how life disciplines, how sternly it holds us to our tasks, how rigorous the justice with which it balances its most deeply loving. She knows how life disciplines, how sternly it holds us to our tasks, how rigorous the justice with which it balances its most deeply loving.

Mother shields her child from all she can. She endures any hardship she may take upon herself and away from her child. She faces want and privation and hunger to spare her sons and daughters. She labors for them during their youth and per-the severe storms of last week caused the loss of thousands of dollars in water front improvements. Wharves, fishing boats and gear, bathhouses and other property were destroyed or heavily damaged.

To-day the name of the schooner Lowell F. Parks was added to the list of vessels reported missing. Nothing has been heard from the ship since she left St. Johns, N. F., December 9, on a voyage to Maryland on the southern coast. She had a crew of five men commanded by Captain Cutton.

Also from St. Johns came the report that the Red Cross Line steamer or Ruma, which left New York for that port, December 8 with freight, had been driven by the storm across the Atlantic to the Azores where she put in at Horta. The ship was compelled to break up and use all available woodwork to keep the fires going under her boilers, the bunker coal becoming exhausted before the ship sighted land. During the passage one member of the crew was lost overboard.

The United States Shipping Board steamer Lake Glenwood, which was ashore last week at Port Hood Island, has been refloated and is now at Port Hood Island.

Misfortune is also believed to have overtaken the coasting schooner Louisa, a wireless message to-day from the steamer British General, which left here yesterday for Holland, which she had picked up two men of the Maud's crew.

After a four-day battle with fra and storms, the British steamer Lancaster reached here late yesterday and anchored in quarantine. According to Captain W. H. Bampton, General, the ship was discovered in No. 1 hold, filled with chemicals, last Sunday morning by a heavy storm, the crew ignoring the danger of an explosion, fought to save the cargo. Yesterday, as a last resort, Captain Wood decided to flood the hold to prevent the fire spreading.

The Lancaster sailed from Antwerp, December 2, for New York.
