Beath of the Daughter of James Stephens

Isabella Jane, the only daughter of the late James Stephens, who was executed for wife-poisoning, died at the residence of her aunt, Mrs. Hannab, in First avenue, on Saturday morning at 72 o'clock, at the age of eight years, six months and fifteen days. Several weeks previous to her death the child siekened with scarlet rash, of which she had nearly recovered, when, one tay she went in company with a servant to market and overheard some one making the remark, "That is the daughter of Stephens, the man who poisoned his wife." The stigma appeared to weigh heavily on her mind, and after returning home she fell into a fit. She last saw her father three days before his execution, when she was taken into his cell and bade him a very affectionate farewell. She was passionately attached to him, and continued to the hour of her death to deplore his cruel, and to her mysterious fate, the particulars of which had been communicated to her by her aunt. She could not understand why her father should be hung, and frequently attested her belief in his innocence of the crime charged against him.

On her death-bed she repeatedly prayed that God might have mercy on those who brought him to such an end. But a short time previous to expiring, she bade an affectionate farewell to all in her presence, and mother shortly, and where she prayed broken heart .- N. Y. Tribune, 20th inst.

Hastily procuring a large blanket, he wrapped himself up in it, and threw himself on a sofa near by.

"Why, good gracious! Mr. Turner, are you sick?" asked Mrs. Dobbs, as she saw his position.

"Ob, dreadfully," grouned the imaginary invalid.

"That is dreadful," sighed Mrs. Dobbs. "I came pretty near dying of it in ten years to come next spring. What else?" "Dropsy," again greaned Bob.

"Then again I'm very much distressed by inflammation of the bowels."

"If you've got that, I pity you," commented Mrs. Dobbs; "for three years steady I was afflicted with it, and I don't think I've fully recovered yet."

"Rheumatism," added Bob. "Yes, that's pretty likely to go along with neuralgia. It did with me."

"Toothache," suggested Bob. "There have been times, Mr. Turner, said the sympathizing woman, "when I thought I should have gone distracted with the toothsche."

"Then," said Bob, who, having tempor rarily ran out of his stock of medical terms, resorted to a scientific name. "I'm very much afraid that I've got the tethyasaurus." "I shouldn't be at all surprised," said the ever ready Mrs. Dobbs; "I had it when I was young."

Though it was with great difficulty that he could resist laughing, Bob continued: "I am suffering a good deal from a sprained ancie."
