To FRUIT GROWERS -The Horticultuist says that those who wish to have plums retained on their trees until ripe, can do so by digging up an inch or two in depth around the tree in the spring of the year, and then putting about a gallon of airslacked lime in-then re-place the ground taken out, or get fresh, and the tree will retain the fruit.

The Legislature of New Jersey has passed a law, and it has been signed by the Governor, which in effect does away with the Railroad monopoly so long enjoyed by the Camden & Amboy Company. It leaves some questions to be decided by the Courts, and if the constitutionality of the law is sustained, there will, no doubt, soon be competing lines of railroad between New York and Pennsylvania.
