Old Abe was once a pioneer, His cabin in the wood; He felled the trees, he shot the deer-The work he did was good. But other work is to be done, A wilder game to chase, A farm to clear at Washington,

And Abe just suits the place. Old Abe just suits the place, ye men, He'll fill it with a grace; Make way! make way! the people say, Old Abe will win the race.

A blacksmith, too, Old Abe once was, A judge of iron he; He holds that dear which men make here, Not that brought o'er the sea:

And as he handles well the sledge, We to those laws which keep Our wealth concealed, in hill and field, For trade across the deep! Old Abe just suits the work, ye men,

He'll do it with a grace;

Old Abe will win the race. Old Abe was once a mauler, friends, Good rails he always makes, He'll fence the nation's treasury in Full ten rails high with stakes.

No "Buck" will ever break them down, No "Fowler" find the prey-Go, make the great Pacific Road, He'll save the cash to pay. Old Abe just suits the place, ye men,

He'll give the vultures chase; Make way! make way! the people say, Old Abe will win the race Old Abe he is a working-man, He knows the sons of toil,

Nor thinks they should compete with slaves Upon a virgin soil. Old Abe's a pure and honest man,

All bribes he'll flee and shun-O what a curiosity He'll be at Washington!

Old Abe just suits the place, ye men, Behold his honest face; Make way! make way! the people say, Old Abe will win the race.
