THE SUMMONS, 60.

My ear is full of summer sounds, With summer sights my langual eye; Beyond the dusty village bounds I loster in my daily rounds, And in the noon-time shadows lie.

The wild bee winds his drowsy horn. The bird swings on the ripened wheat, The long, green lances of the corn Are tilting in the wards of morn, The locust shrills his song of heat. Another sound my spirit bears.

A deeper sound that drowns them all, A voice of pleading choked with tears, The call of human hopes and tears, The Mace lonian cry to Paul! The storm-hell rings, the trumpet blows; I know the word and counterstan; Wherever Freedom's vanguard goes,

Where stand or fall her friends or loes, I know the place that should be mine Shamed be the hands that ally fold, And lips that woo the reed's accord, When laggard Time the hour has tolled For true with false and new with old To fight the battles of the Lord!

O brothers! blest by partial Pate With power to match the will and deed, To hom your summons comes too late. Who sinks beneath his armor's weight. And has no answer but God-speed
