THE MEN WHO FELL IN BALTIMORE.

DEDICATED TO THE NINTH MASSACHUSETTS REGIMENT.

Our country's call awoke the land
From mountain height to ocean strand.
The Old Keystone, the Bay State too,
In all her direst dangers true,
Resolved to answer to her cry,
For her to bleed, for her to die—
And so they marched, their flag before,
For Washington, through Baltimore.

Our men from Berks and Schuylkill came—
Lehigh and Mauch in their train:
First in the field they sought their way,
Hearts beat as high and spirits gay;
Heard the wild yells of fiendish spite,
Of armed mobs on left and right;
But on they marched, their flag before,
For Washington, through Baltimore.

Next came the Massachusetts men,
Gathered from city, glade and glen;
No hate for South, but love for all,
They answered to their country's call.
The path to them seemed broad and bright,
They sought no foeman and no fight,
As on they marched, their flag before,
New England's braves, through Baltimore.

But when they showed their martial pride,
And closed their glittering columns wide,
They found their welcome in the fire
Of maddened foes and demons dire,
Who, like the fiends from hell sent forth,
Attacked these heroes of the North—
These heroes bold, with travel sore,
While on their way through Baltimore.

From every stifling den and street,
They rushed the gallant band to meet—
Forgot the cause they came to save—
Forgot that those they struck were brave—
Forgot the dearest ties of blood
That bound them in one brotherhood—
Forgot the flag that floated o'er
Their countrymen in Baltimore.

And the great Song their son had penned,
To rally freemen to defend
The banner of the "stripes and stars"
That makes victorious all our wars,
Was laughed to scorn, as madly then
They greeted all the gallant men
Who came from Massachusetts' shore
To Washington, through Baltimore.

And when, with wildest grief, at last,
They saw their comrades falling fast,
Full on the assassins in their track
They wheeled, and drove the cowards back.
Then, with their hearts o'erwhelmed with woe,
Measured their progress, stern and slow;
Their wounded on their shoulders bore
To Washington, through Baltimore.

Yet, while New England mourns her dead,
The blood by Treason foully shed,
Like that which flowed at Lexington,
When Freedom's earliest fight begun,
Will make the day, the month, the year,
To every patriot's memory dear—
Sons of great Fathers gone before,
They fell for Right at Baltimore.

As over every honored grave,
Where sleeps the "unreturning brave,"
A mother sobs, a young wife moans,
A father for his best one groans,
Oh! let the people ne'er forget
Our deep, enduring, lasting debt
To those who left their native shore
And died for us in Baltimore.

JOHN W. FORNEY.

Washington City, May, 1861.

WAR INCIDENT.—While one of the Massachusetts regiments was in this city, on its way to Washington, a gentleman residing here met one of its members on the street.

"Is there anything I can do for you sir? said the New Yorker, his heart warming toward the representative of the brave Massachusetts militia who had so promptly answered the call of their country.

The soldier hesitated a moment, and finally raising one of his feet exhibited a boot with a hole in the toe, and generally the worse for the wear.

"How came you here with such a boot as that, my friend?" asked the citizen.

"When the order came for me to join my company, sir," replied the soldier, "I was ploughing the same field at Concord where my grandfather was ploughing when the British fired on the Massachusetts men at Lexington. He did not wait a moment; and I did not, sir."

It is unnecessary to add that the soldier was immediately supplied with an excellent pair of boots.—N. Y. Eve. Post.

A TRAITOR SILENCED.—In Towanda, Pa., last week, four or five companies of Volunteers were on the point of starting for Harrisburg when a fellow commenced talking Secession—declaring that he wished he was South, and he would join the Confederate Army. He had no sooner uttered these treasonable remarks than he was knocked down by a blow from the fist of a raw-looking youth, standing near. The Southern sympathizer rose to his feet, and was again knocked down; he staggered up a second time, and was again "keeled over." Up to this time, the green-looking youth had not uttered a word; but after delivering his "third round," he exclaimed: "I 'listed, yesterday, to fight for my country, and I'll be gauldarned if I have'nt commenced the fight now."

CARRYING BOTH COLORS.—Dan Rice's Circus has been South in a steamboat on the Mississippi. He has just returned to the free States. His steamer was armed with fifty muskets and two cannon. Dan says it was "hard skinning" in Southern waters, and he declines returning there just yet. At one place he was arrested, and escaped with some difficulty. Off the Cumberland river he saw a steamer stealing away from him. As a "good joke" he fired a shot across her bows, followed by another. The clerk of the strange steamer rushed up in his shirt sleeves, and waved a Secession flag. Dan fired another shot, when the clerk disappeared and another man ran up the Stars and Stripes! Dan then let him go in peace.

We are happy to say that John A. Washington, who shaved our patriotic ladies so abominably in the sale of the bones of the great Washington, is an Officer in the traitors' army. If they ever catch a man in the patriot army stealing the gruel of the wounded or picking cents off the eyes of the dead, he will match John A. Washington.

It is awful to hear the Secessionists swear at those Northerners who have deceived them into a causeless and hopeless battering of their heads against the stone-wall of the Union!

COMMENDATIONS.

From Rev. Lewis D. Campbell, M. C., Ohio

My family and friends all concur in the opinion that the Gem of Pictures is more like than any I have ever seen. My likeness has been repeatedly taken by different Artists in various ways, but I have never been able to procure from them a picture at all the features and expression of countenance as this.

From Hon. T. Jefferson Coolidge, Minister to Italy.

The pictures of my wife and children are of rare portraits, executed with the most fidelity of resemblance to life, and I take pleasure in recommending them to the attention and patronage of all who appreciate true art.

From Gen. James Page.

Having occasion for a portrait, I procured one from Mr. Robert Newell, of the city of Philadelphia, a miniature, in size and style of execution, of the most perfect and beautiful kind. I take great pleasure in recommending the skill of this gentleman to the notice of the citizens, but even more, as a man, for the honor, integrity and honesty of his dealings, and recommend him to favorable notice in every city and town throughout the country. I am pleased to encourage the beautiful art.

Certified by three physicians of Belmont county, and by Dr. Newton of the Eclectic College, Cincinnati, to a period of nearly eight months, with all varying which he took, and a portion of time he could not even walk across the room!
