

A Sunday-School Anniversary Song.

A year ago has passed away
We come again to praise and pray,
And sing our resting song.
We come, we come, we come with song again,
We come again to praise and pray,
And sing our resting song.
We come, we come, we come with song again,
We come again to praise and pray,
And sing our resting song.
O him who grants us all our days,
And guides to Heaven above.
We sing of mercy daily given,
Through every passing hour,
With love and grace, with love and grace,
With voice loud and clear.
We sing of many a happy hour,
We've passed in Sunday school,
Where truth, like summer's golden showers,
Are falling on us all.
Our youthful hearts are daily given,
Our voices sing one song,
A general song of peaceful praise
To Heaven's eternal King.

ONE OF THE LETTERS.--The following is extracted from one of the letters picked up by our soldiers in the hastily evacuated camp of the Rebels at Laurel Hill:

"I sa a gien deer Melody wear fin for our libertis to dew gies as we pleas, and we wil the fur them so long as guidly gives us broth."

The Unionists in Missouri were recently triumphant over larger forces of the Rebels at Commerce, and also at Charleton, small towns, where our victory was decisive. The retreat of Seigle to St. Louis has left the Rebels to capture or overrun some counties in the South west part of the State. Fremont is calling for men and drilling them for service. But there is yet work to do in Missouri.

A Long Branch correspondent of the World announces that Mrs. Lincoln has "expressed her intention of dining, sans ceremonie, at the table d'hôte, a difference to the guests, which will be duly appreciated and applauded."

An editor thus logically judges his delinquent subscribers: "We don't want money desperately bad, but our creditors do, and no doubt they are you. If you pay us we'll pay them, and they'll pay you."

The President lately visited our lines across the Potomac, and astonished the soldiers (who were felling the Arlington oaks for the new abutment) by lifting an axe by the hilt, at arm's length, till the iron was on a level with his shoulders.

When the St. Lawrence cut the pirate Potted in twain and sunk it in the sea, it was the first beneficial, practical piece of work our navy has accomplished. Now let it go to work and sweep these pirates from the sea with the besom of destruction.

It is a fact which must arrest the attention of the people, that the action of the Government to put down rebellion, and not the rebellion itself, is what the succession sympathizers find fault with.

The United States army at Manassas was not too badly whipped to run, but the Confederate army was too badly whipped to follow.

Poisoned bullets were used by the rebels at the battle of Rich Mountain. A chemical analysis has disclosed the fact that the bullets were covered with a poisonous paste.

WHAT THE PRESIDENT SAYS--He does not intend to leave Washington until the War closes or his term expires.

Gen. James Shields, of California, has been appointed Brigadier General of volunteers.
