MY LIBRARY.

In my lonely Library sitting,
Joys are mine I can not tell;
Glorious forms are 'round me flitting,
Glorious thoughts my bosom swell.

First and dearest, meekly bending
From His throne of might above,
To my darkness sunshine lending,
God is near, Incarnate Love!

Then, from ages dim and hoary
With the gathered mists of time,
Come the Hebrew men of story—
Names to all the world sublime—

From the bowers of Eden hieing,
From the ark, the tent, the field,
From the arid desert flying,
To my inner sense revealed.

Brave old Warriors on me gazing,
Seers, with eyes of mystic light,
Kings, with orient splendor blazing,
Burst upon my glabdened sight.

Here the Apostles, bold Confessors,
Holy Martyrs, near me stand;
They, of love divine possessors,
Whispering, in accents bland,

Tones of more than mortal sweetness,
Words that all my being sway,
Give the winged hours more fleetness,
Brighten e'en the noontide ray.

Aye! they come from all the Ages,
Earth's delight from every land,
Poets rapt, and thoughtful sages,
Men of speech and action grand.

In my cozy Library sitting,
Sweets are mine words can not tell,
Heavenly forms are 'round me flitting,—
Rapturous thoughts my bosom swell!

GREEN VALLEY, Oct. 2, 1861. MINNIE MYRTLE.

FOR THE STAR & CHRONICLE.

A PARTING TRIBUTE TO OUR VOLUNTEERS.

Brightly rose the sun this morning, yet its golden beams had hardly melted the mist that hung like a silver veil over meadow and stream, when busy feet were heard on the pavements, and a crowd began to gather on our principal street. They came—the bright-eyed youth, the middle aged, and the old—to gather around a little band who were going in the footsteps of many another noble Company, to meet and thwart our country's foe.

We watched them, as, with softened faces, they grasped the soldiers' hands, while our hearts echoed to the half-murmured "God bless you!" as they turned away. Yes—many blessings followed those Volunteers, as, with measured tread, they left our midst, to come not back again until the Stars and Stripes float on every hill-top from the sunny shores of the Gulf of Mexico to the rock-bound coasts of the Pacific. They have left us for the tented field, the bloody strife, and perhaps the soldier's death. May God be with them! and if any fall, may they feel an Almighty hand leading them through the dark valley; and though no loved one may be near to wipe the heated sweat from off the brow and catch the last whisper of love, yet may Angels hover around to comfort and sustain the departing soul and lead it home to Heaven.

Volunteers! you will not be forgotten. You have left behind you, those who will look for noble deeds to mark the footsteps of your Company; and the names of those of you who die in your country's defence, will be placed beside those of Ellsworth and Lyon, to be given as a rich legacy to coming generations.

Volunteers! farewell. May "Our Father who is in heaven" lead you safely through the hardships and dangers of a soldier's life, and bring you back to us when every foe is conquered, and victory is ours!

The Root of the Matter.

The Philad. Baptist Association, representing 12,000 members, at its session this month, after adopting hearty resolves to stand by the Government until the Rebellion was suppressed, added the following:

"Resolved, that in our present National troubles we recognize the judgment of Heaven upon our National Sins, among which, as not the least, we confess the sin of Human Slavery, and earnestly pray for the time when, in some wise and just way, the last vestige of this evil shall be banished from our land."

At the Rock River (Ill.) Methodist Episcopal Conference, similar views were expressed, by Father Cartwright, Rev. Dr. Eddy, and others, without discent. Gen. Fremont's proclamation of freedom to the slaves of all in rebellion, was especially applauded.

SCHOOLMASTER WANTED.—A case was recently tried in a certain Common Pleas Court. As the Jury had not agreed when the Court adjourned, the Judge sent them word to seal up their verdict and hand in into Court the next morning. In an hour, the officer was notified that the verdict was duly sealed, and the jury were thereupon dismissed. The next morning, they handed into Court a formidable looking document, sealed with sealing wax, which the Judge read, as follows:

"to the Hon'ble cort
Sir Your juris canter Gree
D Bowers fourman"

The man who "don't take the papers," was in town last week, and wanted to know if it was really a fact that Gen. Scott had taken Washington, and if Jeff. Davis had yet commenced an attack upon Richmond. He said that he "had heerd sich talk up his way, but low'd it wasn't so."

JENKS.—Jenks has got back. He says when he was in St Louis, about every other man he met came up to him and said, inquiringly: "You fight mit Sigel?" "Yes." "Den you come and drink swi glass beer mit me." He seldom refused. —Dubuque Times.

In Schuylkill county, the Volunteers gave over 300 maj on the Republican side.
