The Special Duty of the Rich.

The clashing of arms in our land, causes positive deprivation and want, in some quarters; in others, there is a senseless, uncalled for panic, a nervous timidity of imaginary ills, and hoarding up of means where they are useless; and in others, a sordid desire to take private advantage of public troubles, and become rich from the misfortune and follies of others. Those of the first class, deserve real pity, and substantial aid; the second, need to be reasoned with, encouraged to be liberal and hopeful, and shown the wickedness and unpatriotic effects of their unfounded fears; and the last, should be thwarted and execrated in their base schemes to enrich themselves from public losses or private weakness and ignorance.

We were much impressed, recently, with the remark of one of the best and most respected citizens of Pennsylvania, a man of considerable means, a part of which is invested in the University at Lewisburg. When called upon for his annual contribution to a benevolent association, the agent incidentally expressed his fear that the great interest would suffer from the times—men generally making their first retrenchment from their most laudable, instead of their most objectionable, expenditures. The liberal donor replied, "I have feared the same thing—and so I have concluded to DOUBLE MY SUBSCRIPTION this year—instead of Five Hundred dollars, I shall give One Thousand." "But how can you do it?—business is not good, and you are sinking instead of making money." "That is true," said the noble Christian Patriot, "but, in former days I have saved a surplus. I am a steward only, of God's bounties. Now, I can sell stocks, fabrics, or real estate, for money to aid a good cause, and to keep in bread and clothes these men and women from whose skill and toil I have heretofore profited. I can afford to be running behind, but the cause of God, and these honest hard-working people, and their families, can not—they MUST be sustained. I may lose now, but hope for better days." Well said—and well done! Such rich men are honors to our race!

This spirit should animate every man, and every woman, whom God has blessed with means. Reduce, if you choose, the outlays for your follies, or for mere luxuries, but not for your good deeds or for the wants of human nature. Sustain the unfortunate and improvident, by employment well and promptly paid. Seek ways to keep up a proper mode of self-support. Be careful and scrupulous about discharging every debt and especially to those of small incomes. Look upon money and property as talents for daily use, and not as hoards to be clutched and carried into the grave. Do not watch and lie in wait—like harpies—to speculate and prey upon the miseries and wants of your neighbors.

Farmers feel the pressure of the times the least of any. They have been blessed with good crops, at fair prices; and few of their sons, comparatively, have gone forth with their lives in hand to meet the foes of our country and of our kind. Our towns, and manufacturing, mining and lumbering regions, suffer mostly from the war, in men and money, while the farmers in the Free States, thus far, are rather benefitted, than injured, pecuniarly. For these reasons, the appeal is loudest upon them for charitable and benevolent efforts for the common good.

A truly liberal and sensible conduct, on the part of persons in comfortable circumstances, just now, would greatly revive and strengthen confidence, and all healthy business would again be quick and sound. There is plenty of money in the North—never so much as now. Enterprise, and the golden rule in dealings, would unlock many closed purses, set in healthy motion much stagnant energy, and make our people generally feel glad and prosperous. "There is that scattereth and yet increaseth, and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty."

☞ The Wilkes Barre Bank has made a dividend of 6 per cent., Danville 5, Lewisburg Bank, Lewisburg Dimes Saving Institution, Milton Saving Bank, Milton Bridge Company, 4 each, Northumberland 3—and all the monied institutions of the State, generally, from 3 to 4 each.

☞ Col. Hartranft's 52d Regiment—which includes Capt. George H. Hassenplug's and Capt. J. Merrill Linn's Companies, from Union county—started southward from Harrisburg, last Saturday, (for Annapolis, it is supposed.)

☞ Lieut. Wm. M. Bahan is making his head quarters at the Revere House in Lewisburg, recruiting for the Light Artillery service. A good chance for any yet desirous of enlisting in the war.

☞ Dr. Wm. Hayes, of Lewisburg, has received Commission as Brigade Surgeon in the Army.

Aunt Kitty's Tea-Table Talk.

There is more edification about Aunt Kitty's tea table than the public is aware of, and it has occurred to me several times that to give a part of what transpires there might interest, if not enlighten, your readers. I will promise, in the first place, that Aunt Kitty is a maiden of mature years, tolerable good looks, kind heart, religious, and, even when wrong, well meaning. I have heard it said by some of our family that in her younger days, when all was bright before her, she buried her heart's best affections with one who in the bloom of manhood sunk into the grave, and that from that time she has declined listening to offers of marriage. Be this as it may, there are periods when she indulges in reveries, when her ever kind voice is modulated into tones that strike a sympathetic chord in the hearts of all around her, and cause even her little pet, Ellie, to cease her gambols, lest she might disturb or annoy dear Aunt Kitty. These two, and your humble servant, together with an occasional visitor, comprise the family who sit around the old fashioned tea-table.

"Ichabod," said my aunt the other day, "this war is a terrible thing, and I fear it will ruin us with taxation. Mrs. D told me the other day that their taxes would almost take away their income. Do you know anything about it?"

"Not much, aunt," I said. "Taxes, of course, will be considerably increased. There is the War tax, the tax to support those whom the soldiers have left dependent, and a small increase in the State tax."

"But don't the soldiers get paid?" said my aunt.

"Certainly they do—$13 a month, and clothing and provisions."

"Then why should the County support their families?" said she.

"Because," I replied, "a large number of those who have gone, to risk life in defence of our inestimable institutions—without which your property, my dear aunt, would be incense. If not worthless, as thousands have already found out in the border States—are poor men, who love their homes, their wives, and little ones as much as you do us. But for such, draftings would be necessary, and in that case I might have had to leave you and little Ellie, and strange re-attend to your business, or your broad acres left unfilled. In truth, but for you, dear aunt, I must long since have shouldered a musket and done my best to lay low in the dust some of the bad men who have for years been at work to poison the minds of the Southern people and bring about this wicked, causeless war."

"Don't—don't say that, Ichabod," said my aunt, fairly affrighted at the idea of my going to war. "Not for a thousand dollars would I have you leave me, and make my house and home a desert."

"It will not," I replied, "cost you the fiftieth part of that to keep me here, if our patriotic working men continue to go. Your property is assessed at $7,000. Now, the highest tax that can be imposed on it, is 2½ mills on the dollar; if, therefore, the Board of Relief was to appropriate the whole amount for that purpose, what do you suppose your tax will be?"

"Really, Ichabod, I don't know. Mrs. D. said her husband told her he expected to pay two or three hundred dollars tax next year, and I am sure my tax will be as much as his."

"But Mr. D.," I said, "is a great politician and (like many such) a great liar. Besides, he leans strongly toward the Southern Rebels, and has more than once justified their treason, by saying he would take up arms against the North, if he lived South—that we ought to recognize the usurping Government—that everything done by the National Administration is wrong—in short, he talks exactly as Jeff. Davis wants his allies to talk. Now, I'll make a statement of your tax for the relief fund, at the highest figure. Your valuation is $7,000, which, multiplied by two and a half mills, brings out seventeen dollars and fifty cents, as the utmost tax."

"Ha! is that all? Why, Ichabod, I can save that much, next year, by not buying a silk dress."

"Yes, aunt, and I can save that much by wearing my Sunday suit another year."

"And so can I," said little Ellie.

"Nay, my children," said my aunt, "there will be no need of stinting yourselves. I am wiser than I have been in this matter, and it relieves me of a load of trouble since Mrs. D. gave me such wrong information. I will spend twice that sum, besides, in aiding my poor neighbors whose husbands are away in the camp of duty. Come, Ellie, let us go and see how Mrs. L. is getting along. She has three small children, and gets two dollars and a quarter a month to help support herself and little ones while her husband is away. You know, my pet, how the big tears rolled down her cheeks when he bid her good-bye, and how your playmate Lizzie cried to see her papa go, perhaps never to return. Through such as he, my home is preserved, and my heart's treasures kept around me; with Heaven's aid, I shall not only cheerfully pay this tax, but endeavor to cheer and comfort the homes left desolate by sharing some of my ample means with the poor soldiers' wives and children."

Four Days in Southern Maryland.

CAMP CASEY, near Bladensburg,
November 11, 1861.

Before leaving home, I promised to write you of our doings, and whereabouts, whenever time would permit me to do so. Our camp is beautifully situated, on a bluff, within half a mile of Bladensburg, and four from Washington city. The Eastern branch of the Potomac glides by us until it reaches the main body of that noted stream. Unfortunately for our Regiment there is a low swampy piece of land just below us, and it has caused considerable sickness among our men; consequently, I am kept very busy. At present, our report of the afflicted is large, but I think on the decrease. We have lost one man by death. Our hospital arrangements are not as comfortable as they will be in the course of a few days.

We have been moving around considerable, and doing a great amount of work. On the 3rd inst. our whole Brigade, under the command of Gen. Howard, started from our respective camps for parts unknown until we halted at the different places we were designated for. We forded the Potomac at Bladensburg; it was very much swollen by the rain of Friday and Saturday, which was the severest storm, and more rain fell in twenty-four hours, than I ever noticed before in my life-time. After crossing the river, we started on our journey, our men all expecting to "see fight" along the Potomac. But they were disappointed. We marched but fourteen miles, until we rested for the night, at a place called Centreville—a very inferior place—some four houses in the village.

4th. This morning, we started on our march at daylight, passed through Upper Marlborough, (a rank Secession hole, and county seat of Prince George,) a place that has been "played out," I think, years ago. We halted at noon on the Patuxent river, at Hill's Landing. A few commission houses and private dwellings makes this a good place for the shipment of tobacco. After crossing the river, we passed through Anne Arundel county, and halted for the night in Graham's woods. After marching twenty-two miles, quite a number of men in the Brigade gave out, as the roads were muddy, and the soil sandy, which made it hard traveling on foot. The country, throughout, is very barren, the soil entirely exhausted, fences blown down, and gone to destruction. The principal crop here is tobacco; I saw but few wheat fields; the principal grain they raise is corn wherever you go. I forgot to say that persimmons are plenty, as much so as blackberries were last summer in Virginia. Also, young and old slaves.

5th. Day cool and pleasant. This morning, we made an early start and was soon in Calvert county. We arrived at Prince Frederick, (an insignificant place) the county seat of Calvert, at 3 P. M. Encamped on terra firma beside the Court House, which, by the way, has a brick floor, and is rather an old fashioned affair. Distance from our last camp, thirteen miles. This was our stopping place. Fifty of our Regiment, and a squadron of cavalry, went thirteen miles farther, to a place called St. Leonards. I found our business here, was to protect the different Districts at the election which comes off to-morrow, (Wednesday,) and show fair play to the Union men.

Col. Miller, 35th Pennsylvania Volunteers, was left at Upper Marlborough. The Rhode Island 4th went to Lower Marlborough. The Massachusetts 5th went to another place. Our 45th remained here. We found a number of good Union men, and they told us that at their last election they were most shamefully used by the Secessionists. Five others and myself stopped with a Union man, Rev. Mr. Hawley, a Methodist clergyman; his wife, a good and true Unionist, and a Virginian, was also good and kind to us. I had the pleasure, also, of meeting Rev. Rev. Wm. Luney, (a brother to the Secesh dentist who left our place and went to his loved spot, Louisiana) and found him true to his country; also, the venerable Rev. Wilson, who was at the Conference in our place when held there; he is also, as true as steel to the Stars and Stripes. It was really pleasant to meet these people, and I assure you we all appreciated them highly; they gave us smiles, where we had been receiving sneers and grim faces all along our march.

6th. Morning unpleasant, with rain. The first thing our boys did this morning was to raise the proud and noble flag on the pole on the Court House, and have the voting under that good old banner, which all did do, Union with pleasure, and Secesh with displeasure. The election passed off pleasantly until 11, A. M., when a noted Secesh thought things was not going off right, so he tried to get up a disturbance, but had not gone far when Col. Welsh ordered his arrest, which was done. His name is Augustus R. Sollers, an ex-Member of Congress. We placed guards around him, and that stopped the proceedings for a short time. At different times through the day, our men would arrest men for being riotous and disorderly. We had a number arrested, and kept them quiet the balance of the day. After the election was over, we released all but five. These we put away for the night for safe keeping. The Union men all told us they were much obliged for our services, and said, had we not done as we did, they would not be allowed to vote. I never saw so much drunkenness before in any one day; young and old drink here. All come on horseback to vote, many of them as much as twenty-two miles. We were below Port Tobacco.

7th. This morning, we bade our friends good-bye and left for our camp, bringing our five prisoners with us. In the evening we presented our game to Gen. Howard, who released four of them by taking the oath of allegiance. Col. Sollers was pronounced sick and unable to travel any farther with us, so he was left off on parole to appear at Washington when well. Our boys were displeased with this, as they were anxious to have them along and sent to Fort Lafayette, or some other good hotel. Nothing of importance occurred on our return march. We came home the same road we left, and reached here Saturday at 1, P. M. Wherever we went our Regiment received the praise of being the most orderly men that had yet been among them. This is all owing to our worthy Colonel and his assistants, for the good discipline of the men, and the men know themselves what is honorable and gentlemanly.

I fear I have already made this too long. If so, excuse me this time, and I will do better next. Lewisburg has but three representatives in this Regiment, but any amount of old friends. I wish you could see Wilbur Blair, and Cap. Wells. They enjoy it, and are getting along finely. Send me the Chronicle in wrapper, regularly. As yet, I have not received one.

Yours, &c., DOC. C.

Reduce the Salaries.

As our State Legislature and the National Congress will soon convene, (says the Lebanon Courier,) we think it the duty of the press to urge a matter that must strike every one as timely and proper—we mean the reduction, generally, of the salaries of office-holders. The salaries now paid may answer well enough when the country is in a flourishing condition, with the Treasury coffers overflowing with money that there seems to be no particular use for; but at a time like the present, when it requires the greatest ability to keep up the national credit, and when men in the ordinary occupations of life are making nothing, the pay of office-holders should be reduced to something like a corresponding remuneration. The salaries now paid to office holders—both civil and military—are in many cases exorbitant, making that kind of life the most profitable that can be engaged in, and cultivating a strife for office, and exciting an impatience with the ordinary industrial pursuits, to that degree which is ruinous to individuals and greatly injurious to the country. We need not at this time go into detail to show how office-holders are overpaid. That they are overpaid, is patent to every one. We design, at this time, to inaugurate a movement for a reform; and we call upon our brethren of the press to agitate the subject, so that neither our Legislature nor our Congress, when they meet, can ignore it.

CAN you not divine the signs of the times? This rebellion, now raging in the Southern ⅓ of the Republic, is without a ‖ in any of the world's history. It is believed that Bishop Hughes, Thurlow Weed, Edward Everett, and Gen. Scott, visit Europe with a view (incidentally) to counteract the falsehoods of the reckless Secession emissaries.

The counting of the soldiers' vote for Philadelphia is before the Courts, undecided—the rascality usually practiced at home seeming to be this year all transferred to the camps.

ONE of our exchanges reports that a man down in Maine thinks so much of Jeff Davis that he has named his dog in his honor. Hard on the dog, that!

A SWARM OF BUMBLE B'S.—Big Bethel, Bull Run, Ball's Bluff, and Belmont—almost as bad as Burr, Brooks, Breck, Buck and Bigler.

Boston papers say that an intercepted letter from traitor Yancey in England to his son in America, speaks discouragingly of Secession prospects in Europe.

UNION FOR EVER!

WE are all cheered to see our Union boys with such good courage take hold of the rope to draw it tight around the necks of Jeff Davis and other potatoe rooters. We also expect the large Battle at Washington to take soon. There is quite an excitement in Lewisburg. Soldiers are going away, and merchants are getting New Goods. Latest, N. B. Zimmerman has returned from New York and Philadelphia, and has carefully selected the latest and best styles Over Coats and Best Pants, Hats, Shirts, Handkerchiefs, Stockings, Gasinetts, Cassimeres, Cloths of all descriptions. M'Clellan styles Cassimere and Hats, and five and six hands making Clothing to order. Cloth and sold at Philad. wholesale prices. Call before you buy—you will not lose anything, but save fifty per cent. Thanks for all favors.

The Proprietor in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and adaptation to the diseases for which it is recommended.

It is no new and untried article, but one that has stood the test of a twelve years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale are unrivaled by any similar preparation extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well-known Physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is unbounded, and a careful perusal of the Almanac, published annually by the proprietors, and to be had gratis of any of their agents, can not fail to satisfy the most skeptical that the remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.
