The Crab-Apples.

A New Farce in one Short Act. As being performed with unbounded applause in two Hemispheres.

DRAMATIS PERSONÆ.

Mr. John Bull—A puffy, quarrelsome old fellow.

Mrs. Columbia—A respectable schoolteacher, recently much afflicted by domestic griefs.

Master Wilkes—One of her favorite scholars, a very spunky little boy; and others.

Scene—A Schoolroom. Mrs. Columbia is seated, surrounded by her scholars.

Enter—Mr. John Bull, (very abruptly and in tremendous excitement.)

John Bull—Odds! Zounds and buttercups! ma'am, but I will av satisfaction for this ere hinsult. I've been pestered long henough by your boys, and I arnt a going to stand it no longer. Blow me tight bif I don't—bif I don't——

Mrs. C.—Be calm, Mr. Bull; pray be seated; what is the matter, sir?

John Bull—The matter? Zounds! Why, this, morning, as one of my young 'uns was a coming 'ome, hup comes one o' your saucy himps—Vilks I think you calls 'im.

Mrs. C—Master Wilkes, come here. (Master Wilkes advances.)

John Bull—Hup comes this ere Vilks—shakes his fist in my younker's face—takes out of his pocket two crab happles as the boy 'ad picked up somewheres—and sends 'im 'ome, a bellowing like a young bull-calf.

Master Wilkes—Please, ma'am, I know he stole them out of your garden, and was hiding them to shy at our windows.

John Bull—I don't care 'oose they are, or where they come from; I demand and will av 'em!

Mrs. C—Well, Mr. Bull, but if——

John Bull—Oh, none o' your bifs to me, ma'am; I don't come ere to hargue, I comes ere for reparation. [Vide London Times.] I will av them happles, or by—

Mrs. C.—Stop, Mr. Bull; really, sir, I am shocked at this indecent behavior, and despise the brutality that can take such advantage of my weakness. You know my Jonathan is away fighting the savages, or you would never dare to insult me so. If Master Wilkes had struck your boy, for instance——

John Bull—Ah! that's just where it is. Hif my younker ad been brought to you along with the happles, and you ad warmed his jacket well for im, or sent im hoff with a flea in his hear, I wouldn't av ad a word to say.

Mrs. C.—Well, then, sir, how easily can your grievance be settled! Here, take the apples, [presenting them,] which I am sure are not worthy of becoming "apples of discord" between us. They are two very miserable specimens, and I am now gathering so many millions of them on my southern property, that I can well afford you those two poor, rotten, blighted things. Are you satisfied?

John Bull (gruffly)—No; I arn't. I want to make a hexample o' that Vilks, and make me a hample hapology besides.

Mrs. C.—Well, sir, I never told Master Wilkes to assault your boy; although I am sorry to say that your family have behaved very strangely to me lately, even sheltering thieves that you knew were going to rob me. I wish to live on good terms with all my neighbors, and therefore regret this little occurrence,; but be assured, sir, my Jonathan will some day call you to account for these insults. You may depend upon my making an example of Master Wilkes. Will that do?

John Bull (very sulkily)—I suppose so. [Exit.]

Mrs. C.—Now, boys, listen. I have many very distressing things to occupy me just now, and therefore, as you love me, do nothing whatever to bring me in contact with that rude overbearing man. He is a dangerous and sanctimonious old hypocrite, who would set my house on fire for the value of a spool of cotton, if it served his purpose. Master Wilkes, I am indeed very proud of you, and only regret you did not bring that wicked boy to me for punishment. But I have promised Mr. Bull to make an example of you, and therefore I promote you to the head of your class. Now, my dear boys, you may all have a holiday.

[Exeunt omnes; whistling "Yankee Doodle."]

A young man, who applied at a recruiting station in one of the western States, was asked "if he could sleep on the point of a bayonet?" when he promptly replied by saying, "he would try it, anyhow, as he had often slept on a pint of whisky, and the kind they used in Lisbon would kill farther than any shooting-iron he ever saw."

We are perhaps indebted to the same valorous kind of beverage, for the discourse between Mr. Gutterstone and Councilman Snooks, overheard at Tammany Hall, N.Y. The former declared that he felt quite happy and patriotic that morning, and when asked by the latter, "how so?" said, "why, I feel as though I should like to steal or burn something or kill somebody." It seems, Southern Chivalry finds kindred everywhere.

VIRGINIA.—Nobody will come forward to take the office of collector of the war-tax in the Norfolk district, and the chief collector of the Confederate war-tax for Virginia, in a formal advertisement, threatens to appoint some one from outside of the district to perform that duty, which, in this proclamation, he admits to be odious to the people there.

Entirely Vegetable. No Alcoholic Preparation.

Dr. HOOFLAND'S CELEBRATED
GERMAN BITTERS,
Prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson & Co., Philad'a,

WILL EFFECTUALLY CURE

LIVER COMPLAINT, DYSPEPSIA, JAUNDICE, Chronic or Nervous Debility, Disease of the Kidneys, and all Diseases arising from a disordered Liver or Stomach.

SUCH as Constipation, Inward Piles, Fulness or Blood to the Head, Acidity of the Stomach, Nausea, Heartburn, Disgust for Food, Fulness or Weight in the Stomach, Sour Eructations, Sinking or Fluttering at the Pit of the Stomach, Swimming of the Head, Hurried and Difficult Breathing, Fluttering at the Heart, Choking or Suffocating Sensations when in a lying posture, Dimness of Vision, Dots or Webs before the sight, Fever and Dull Pain in the Head, Deficiency of Perspiration, Yellowness of the Skin and Eyes, Pain in the Side, Back, Chest, Limbs, &c., Sudden Flushes of Heat, Burning in the Flesh, Constant Imaginings of Evil, and great Depression of Spirits and will positively prevent YELLOW FEVER, BILIOUS FEVER, &c.

The Proprietor in calling the attention of the public to this preparation, does so with a feeling of the utmost confidence in its virtues and adaptation to the diseases for which it is recommended.

It is more than a quarter of a century since this article, before the public, and during that time it has attained the first of a twelve years' trial before the American people, and its reputation and sale are unrivaled by any similar preparation extant. The testimony in its favor given by the most prominent and well-known Physicians and individuals in all parts of the country is unanimous, and a careful perusal of the Almanac, published annually by the Proprietors, and to be had gratis of any of their agents, can not but satisfy the most skeptical that this remedy is really deserving the great celebrity it has obtained.

(From J. Newton Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge.)

Although not disposed to favor or recommend Patent Medicines in general, through a distrust of their ingredients and effects, I yet do not consider it any sufficient reason why a man may not testify to the benefit he believes he has to have received from any simple preparation, in the hope that he may thus contribute to the benefit of others.

I do this the more readily in regard to "Hoofland's German Bitters," prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city, because I was prejudiced against them for years, under the impression that they were chiefly an alcoholic mixture. I was indebted to my friend, Robert Shoemaker, Esq., for the removal of this prejudice by proper tests, and for encouraging me to try them, which, suffering from great and long continued debility. The use of three bottles of these Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was followed by evident relief, and very decided for degree of health and mental vigor, which I had not felt for six months before, and had almost despaired of regaining. I therefore thank God and my friend for directing me to the use of them. J. NEWTON BROWN.
