(Correspondence of the Star & Chronicle.)

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 10.

A part of three days in this City, in the midst of as dense fogs as I ever saw, and of mud magnificently deep, is too little time to discover many novelties, or to gather much news. There have been fewer changes than I expected to find since my visit in 1840—even the landlady of that day, chanced, (unknown until we had met) to be my hostess again.

In the Senate, I happened to be one of the crowd that saw Senator Sumner in the delivery of his recent speech—one of the thousands, who remained just long enough to get a glimpse of the man's person, manner, and hear his voice. I at first mistook his voice for that of Senator Wilmot—but he is taller in person, and as moderate and mellifluous in tone and gesture. The audience saw that they could read it in the next Dailys—for it was given from manuscript—and so they retired to make room for other beholders (not to say hearers.)

In the House, I was gratified with the sight of the Tunkhannock Raftsman, G A Grow, in the Speaker's Chair—saw also, or heard from, Messrs. Crittenden and Wickliffe of Ky., Mallory of Tenn., Blair of Mo., Lovejoy and Kellegg of Ill., Colfax of Ind., Conkling and Pomeroy of New York, Campbell, Hale, Davis, Wright, of Pa., (Mr Killinger I was told had not been here since the Holidays,)—and Mr. Bernheisel, a native of Perry Co., Pa., now the attentive, unobtrusive, white-haired Delegate from Utah. A debate on abolishing the Franking Privilege was the only matter of interest I heard discussed in that magnificent Hall. The vote on that and an audacious attempt to draw extra mileage in defiance of law, were the only acts indicative of a sense of the need of economy in our national expenditures.

The old Senate Chamber, divested of its galleries, is now occupied by the U.S. Supreme Court, which was in session, but had not a dozen spectators. "The venerable Chief Justice Taney"—sometimes called the galvanized mummy—sat immovable in the centre, flanked by two judges on the right and three on the left—two from States in rebellion. How popular Uncle Sam's gold still is, down South!

The most interesting visit I paid was to the north wing of the Patent Office, now the Hospital for the Indiana regiments principally. There are 70 patients on the list, some walking about, others on their beds, pale, emaciated, and looking sad and home-sick, while others were hidden by frames. One fellow mortal had just been laid out for burial. Several kind nurses were moving quietly about, and the poor fellows' eyes followed them as though they saw in them the next thing to a mother, a sister, a wife, a daughter, or a lover. Some were sitting up, and going down the long lines of beds or pallets, while others could hardly move. Here could be seen where are consumed the medically-commended delicacies for palates, and the bedding and other articles of house-hold manufactures sent forward by the North for the brave ones who are holding our Capital against 150,000 desperate marauders encamped within 20 miles. The Government is putting up board hospitals in addition. There was but one man wounded in that hospital, the others suffering from the usual diseases. The recent sudden warmth and break-up doubtless will increase sickness in the army as well as elsewhere.

Met several friends of other days, whose opinions of national affairs differed greatly, indeed—some thinking everything was wrong and the country going to destruction, while others thought it would all come out right. Such boundless quantities of supplies as Government is sending through Washington, would surprise some folks. And then to see the Officers, (some "as proud as Lucifer") riding Government horses through the City, in post haste, one would think it was not "all quiet on the Potomac," by large odds. The soldiers with whom I conversed, seemed invariably contented—said they had not been cold, even through the late cold term—and without exception all wanted to fight: would rather run the risk of being killed or wounded, than lie inactive, and run the danger of fevers &c. in camp. Some of them believe their head Officers to be traitors at heart—or only fighting for Uncle Sam because he pays best—or just seeking for popularity, to win fame to run for office hereafter, &c.

The Washington market is now surrounded by pro tem shanties, supplementary to the old shed on all sides, and well filled with abundance of all kinds of provision-timber. But board in Washington, especially in semi-genteel boarding houses, is dearer than ever, and just as miserable. Coal is said to be $9 a ton—is bought in small quantities—and wasted at that. In fact, extravagance and improvidence seem to be the ruling practice in the Capital, among all classes. Its change to a "Northern City," asserted by some, has not yet penetrated into every department. The slowness of the contraband element and of the newspapers, is still too painfully apparent to the Yankees. We get our "news" here almost wholly from N. York and Philadelphia—and I heard a sneering complaint that cakes were brought in and sold from other cities.

Some of the sweetest, lightest, whitest bread I ever saw, is that made by the bbl in the basement of the Capitol, for the use of our Soldiers. They get better bread than some of the Congressmen—all right, for they earn it well.

"Willard's Hotel," now kept by a company of three, is a cosmopolitan place—thronged by men from all parts of the world, accommodating 600 persons, and sending away guests frequently. If you want to meet anybody in Washington, call at Willard's. "Gadsby's"—like those great men who formerly thronged it—is now comparatively forgotten. W.

A Mr. Henn has started a new paper in Iowa. He says he hopes by hard scratching to make a living for himself and his little chickens.

The servant girls of the Free States consume more silks and French goods than all the Southern aristocracy.
