Foolish Friends.

No man has had more confidence reposed in him, by the Unionists, than has Gen. M'CLELLAN. We have no doubt he has faithfully and usefully aided the President, Gen. Scott, the Secretary of War and of the Navy, and all the Officers he outranks, in those plans--all matured under the veteran SCOTT'S supervision--which have been since so well developed on the Atlantic and near the Mississippi. The execution of those great views, matured months ago in Cabinet councils, and approved by the President, was entrusted to 20 or 30 different Commodores and Generals--most of whom have performed their duties as skillfully and as heroically as Scott, M'CLELLAN, or any one else, could have done it. Now, how unfair, how unmanly, how false, to rob all those Officers of their just and hard-earned fame, in order to heap it upon the supervising Major General, who has not personally directed a battle since he left Western Virginia! Yet there are men engaged in just such mean and base work. They published that

"General M'Clellan directed the movements of the battle at Fort Donelson, by telegraph from the station at Washington," when there was no telegraph line to Fort Donelson, (unless the Rebels had one, which was not in our possession.) That impudent falsehood was no sooner exposed, than another was palmed upon the public, among the proceedings of the Railroad Convention at Washington, as follows:

"Secretary Stanton paid a high compliment to the young and gallant friend at his side, Maj Gen. M'Clellan, in whom he had the utmost confidence, and the result of whose military schemes, gigantic and well matured, were now exhibited to a rejoicing country."

This, too, is a wholesale lie. Mr. Stanton had no occasion to compliment Gen. M'Clellan on any one else, for it was only a business meeting.

Who invent these falsehoods, which are evidently calculated to excite bad feelings between our Generals, each of whom is entitled to his just share of praise, and no more? The last one has been traced to one F. M. Barlow, a notorious Pro-Slavery Breckenridge, suspected of Secessionism. This fact, and the false, untrue adulation just now showered upon M'Clellan by all the Rebel sympathizers in the North, has recently made--in conjunction with other matters--some suspicious of M'Clellan's lack in fidelity or in judgment. Well may he say, "Save me from such friends!" for whose villainous intrigues we have not reason to hold him responsible, (although he might, like Stanton, generously give others their just commendation.)

Gen. M'Clellan has had more than half a year in which to arm, drill and enlarge his Grand Army of the Potomac, whose Central Column alone he controls. He has the sole power and the responsibility, and he seems to have the entire confidence of the more than 100,000 brave Freemen he may soon lead to battle--we hope to victory. Should he be successful, our joy will be mingled with that of all loyal Americans, who will give M'Clellan his full due, without snatching a laurel from Grant, Sigel, Foote, Fremont, M'Clelland, Wallace, Curtis, Smith, Buell, Garfield, Nelson, Rosecrans, Kelly, Lander, M'Cook, Porter, Geary, Heintzelman, Sumner, Dupont, Sherman, Banks, Butler, Burnside, or any other, who--each in his sphere--has proved himself equally worthy.

FREEPORT, ILL., A FT. DONELSON.

FRANK K. BELLMAN, born April, 1825, in Union Co., Pa., was killed fighting nobly at Fort Donelson. He moved to Stephenson Co., Ill. with his father, Daniel Bellman, and was a Sergeant in Co. A, 11th Reg., which suffered severely, Co. A having 12 killed and 23 wounded. Lieut. H. A. SWEETS, of Freeport Journal, was killed in 5th Reg. His parents were, we are informed, were from Union county.

Smith D. Atkins, of Freeport, was Captain of Co. A, which lost also J. Cronmiller--W. Clingman--D. Cramer--I. H. Adams--J. A. Thompson--H. Greenwood--D. F. Graham--J. Kaley--F. Kearney--L. N. Ross--and J. Trimmer, killed. Some of these names indicate Union and Center county origin.

"SOUTHERN HONOR."--The Rebel General, Bushrod Johnson, and his staff, violated their parole, and escaped homeward.

The Unionists gave up, gratuitously, 1300 prisoners at one battle in Western Virginia. The Rebels never gave back one man without a full equivalent.

"Fearless and Free" Bremer, of the Danville American, issued a Daily for two days, and then rested to recuperate his pecuniary energies. We issued our Daily eight days, neighbor--have issued our Semi-weekly almost a year. Sorry to see you give up so soon!

This week, the East Baltimore, and the Baltimore, M. E. Conferences meet in Baltimore. Many of the Baltimore Conferences are on the wrong side of the Secesh line.

Among our New Advertisements in today's paper, are 2 small tracts of Farm lands, and one of Woodland, in Buffalo Valley.

Cal. Levi L. Tate, an old soldier of the Democracy, has been proposed for Surveyor-General of the State, at next election.

The patriotic blood so freely offered up by our American youth for the cause of Liberty, in its death-grapple with Slavery, chastens the public joy over every victory won. We have long had running in our minds, a Poem--author to us unknown--which we reprint, from a scrap-book, written in our 13th year:

THE ORPHAN BOY.

Stay, baby, stay, for mummy's sake,
And hear a tender orphan's tale;
I'm sure my looks must pity wake,
To see you look so pale;
For I was once a mother's pride,
And my poor father's hope and joy,
But the Nile's proud fight he died,
And left me a poor orphan boy.

O, foolish child! how pleased was I,
When news of Nelson's victory came,
And the crowd'd streets to see
And see the lighted windows flame;
To see my mother's joy and pride,
For with my father's blood 'twas bought,
And left me a poor orphan boy.

And were I by my bounty fed--
Alas! my mother did not die;
For I am now a mother's pride;
And my poor father's hope and joy,
But the Nile's proud fight he died,
And left me a poor orphan boy.

STUDY GEOGRAPHY, Boys and Girls! old and young. In reading or talking about the War, you should also read the History of America, and especially find, by geographical descriptions in books, and by pictures on maps, &c., all you can about all parts of the country spoken of in the journals of the day. In this way, you will acquire useful information, and be kept from bad habits, perhaps, that might destroy you. Trace, as near as you can, the progress of armies, and the track of ships. Remember that our present books and maps were not made for War times, and consequently many places now important are not named by them, but you must study the harder to find and locate as near as you can the exact points.

ARMY LETTERS.

Matters about Roanoke Island, N.C.
(Correspondence of the Star & Chronicle.)
NEAR ROANOKE, Feb. 19.

Last Monday, we were detailed to guard 5000 prisoners on board the Cassock, of which I am military commander, superintending the food, the cooking, and the prisoners are North Carolinians, ununiformed, and the majority of them but poorly armed, very ignorant, and brought up under no discipline. They have now been crowded together a week, and are below decks, in the filth, afflicted with mumps, fevers, and other diseases. My duty I do not shrink from--but would it were past! We do not know what is to be done with the prisoners. Many of them wish they could be taken North, and not exchanged; others say if they get out, they will never get in again. As we have to transport all our resources, our 3,000 prisoners are like the elephant man got for a present--we know not what to do with them. They are under the weight of delusions: some ask if we sell the negroes to the Spaniards? The darky, Jim, who piloted us to Fort Raleigh, told us they had told him we would take him in chains to Cuba. Every one expressed the hope that matters will be "settled" very soon, and the officers admitted that if we took Richmond they were about played out.

The weather here is very changeable, but we have had some days like April or May. From what we hear from the army of the Potomac, its roads are impassable. We hope something will be done there in a short time, but only we who see army operations can be aware of the difficulties. The State House battered down, nor their University burnt, nor their fire dwellings ransacked. Sure enough! nobody does like these things. But the point of the matter is, that they evidently looked upon the fight very much as a political squabble, like that between Republican and Democrat. They could live well enough under the Union or the Confederacy, provided the town was not shelled. Very good for Nashville! It is an index. The whole South feel so.

As David Millard, of Auburn, was returning home through Spring Hill, Bradford Co., having his wife and Mrs. Philip Hall in his wagon with him, a fatal accident took place. Mr. Devine drove up behind, and Mr. Millard, thinking he was trying to run by, turned his horse one side to prevent it, which threw both ladies out, and one of Mr. Devine's horses struck Mrs. Millard's head, fracturing the skull so that a portion of the brains ran out. She lived only twenty-four hours. Mrs. Hall was considerably but not dangerously injured, by the hind wheels of the wagon running over her.

A horse was stolen from Mrs. Rothrock, in Milford county, 1st ult., by a young man named John Valentine. He sold the horse for a note, and trying to sell the note in Milfordtown was arrested and sent to Jail in Lewistown, and the horse restored to the owner.

have had a post-house before morning. Capt. Bennett and I persuaded them to take them off some place else--and felt very much relieved. One of the sailors said they "would have a lousy old wash after the prisoners are got out."

The dittoings, telegraph &c., going on, indicate that the Island will be a point of operations for the Unionists for some time. Tom Grier came on board last night, and brought us a mince-pie and some doughnuts--they were a treat--and we gave him some apples which cost us at the rate of $4 a bushel. We have had no butter since we came on board, and paid 75 cts. for a can of tomatoes about a third the size of those at home. Tom looks hearty. I met Youngman to-day, at Burnside's--then there are Chambers, Morris, and Charles D. Kline, Jr., with Gen. Reno--so that Union county is pretty well represented in the Expedition.

I have drawn a Map of the Island as far as I can make it out, but I suppose you will have plenty of others. We landed at Ashby's house, on the west side of the lower end of the Island, (a point they foolishly neglected to fortify;) a road led from that landing around through the swamp, and the battery with three guns was across the road, and swamps on both sides, which the enemy deemed impassable. Lt. Reney, a Virginian of the Regular Army, (now a prisoner,) who had been in several skirmishes in Western Virginia, says he told Col. Snow, the Rebel commander, that we could get our men thro' where they could not--not because they were less brave, but because ours were harder. We got through the swamp without a casualty, except one wounded and two missing--one bayonet broken off by a piece of shell. This was the first time we were under fire, and it did not appear much different from an ordinary grand parade, except more exciting and solemn, and an instinctive dodge of the head as the bullets whistled.

That little drummer boy, wounded early in the fight, was far from those who loved him most, yet kind hands ministered to him. Lt. Col. Monteil, of the Zouaves, who returned not home with his Regiment, was killed in front of the battery; I had not seen him, before that morning, since I sat on his trial at Annapolis; I could not but sorrow for the old man, cut down there in his loneliness. Col. Russell, of the 10th Connecticut, had no marks of violence on him, but was supposed to be killed by concussion. Capt. Henry had only a blue mark across his stomach.

Lieut. Shorkley has just returned from a trip to the twelve gun battery on Croatan Island. It was built by putting two canal boats end to end, in a scooped-out hole, and putting ends on them--serving for barracks also. The Rebels blew it up, but our men have taken the guns and burned the boats. The island is surrounded by swamps, and Alligator river is said to be full of alligators. George bought a half bushel of potatoes, and a bottle of milk (the first we have seen for months) of a family on the Island.

The forts show an immense amount of labor, most of it made by free negroes, who were compelled to work on them, some having been shot for refusing. The forts are said to have been pronounced "impregnable," by no less a personage than Beauregard.

We are very eager to get newspapers--we rarely get any that are sent us. I saw a Tribune of the 31st Jan., and got a Chronicle that John sent in an envelope. I was up all last night--this is Lieut. Beaver's night, and I'll get some sleep and be in better humor.

Yours truly, J. M. L.

Gen. Scott's age compelled him to decline the proffered Mission to Mexico. The 15th Maine Regiment, and the--th Massachusetts, are on their way to the seat of war. The West are also sending on fresh Regiments.

Victory in Arkansas. Gen. Curtis has taken possession of Fayetteville, Arkansas, capturing a number of prisoners, stores, baggage, &c. The enemy burned a part of the town before leaving. They have crossed Boston Mountain in great confusion. We are now in possession of all their strongholds. Forty-two officers and men of the Fifth Missouri Cavalry, were poisoned at Mad Town by eating poisoned food which the Rebels left behind them. The gallant Capt. Delford died, and Lieut. Col. Von Deubel and Capt. Scheban have suffered much, but are recovering. The indignation of our soldiers is very great, but they have been restrained from retaliating upon the prisoners of war.

H. W. HALLECK, Major General. Col. Wood's cavalry has driven the enemy out of Dent, Texas, and Howell counties, Missouri, and taken sixty Rebel prisoners.

A Cairo dispatch says a heavy rumbling explosion was heard yesterday in the direction of Columbus. The enemy were supposed to be blowing up their intrenchments.

ADVANCE INTO VIRGINIA! There have been rumors for some days that Generals Hooker, Sickle, and others, with a force of 50,000 Union men, have crossed the Potomac from Maryland, below Washington. This flank Matanzas, partially, on the SOUTH.

ON THE NORTH, the following is published, we suppose Officially: BOLIVAR, VA., Feb. 28--Gen. Banks' army occupied Harper's Ferry, unopposed, on Wednesday, with all the necessaries for a permanent occupation.

The advance took possession of Bolivar Heights, and yesterday pushed its reconnaissance to Charlottesville, capturing a number of prisoners. Loudon heights are also occupied, in order to prevent any flank movement by the enemy.

Today, Charleston was occupied by a strong force, and will be held against any attack. The plans of the commanders are not known; but the movement is, probably, intended to cover the reconstruction of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad and bridges, and may, perhaps, mean more.

A train of cars passing the Berlin station was fired at to-day by a Rebel battery, but no harm was done. The troops are in excellent condition, and are well protected from the inclement weather. No accident occurred in transporting the troops and supplies over the river. The pontoon bridge was a complete success.

Hundreds of refugees have returned to their desolated homes, and those remaining are overjoyed at our presence. Banks is said to have over 50,000 men. The great Central Reserve, under Gen. M'Clellan, between Washington and Manassas, had not started on Saturday. The average health of the soldiers had improved.

Each of these divisions, doubtless, moves slowly but surely, and the Rebels--we may expect to hear any day--are fighting, or rousing.

"HANG 'EM, OF COURSE."--That is said to be Gen. Scott's idea of the proper disposition to be made of the Rebel leaders, caught and to be caught. There will hardly be a dissenting voice among loyal men to the righteousness of this verdict. No men ever deserved hanging, if these traitors do not. No greater crime, against government and society, was ever committed, than rests upon them. The great mass of the Southern people, misled into rebellion by deliberate falsehood and fraud, and already severely punished by the sufferings they have endured in a bad cause, can only be readily forgiven upon a return to loyalty. Not so the leaders. They have not been ignorant of the enormity of the crime which they deliberately plotted; they have stopped at no means, however flagrant and dishonorable, and they have not hesitated to sacrifice the peace and prosperity of the country--of their own section, not less than the North--to their unhalloed ambition; and they must be made to bear the consequences.

By Last Night's Mails. Com. Foote telegraphs, Friday, that the Rebels had burnt and abandoned their strong-hold, Columbus, Ky., and fortified Island No. Ten, in N.W. Tennessee.

Another Union boat went up the Tennessee to Eastport, in Mississippi--and reports an apparent strong Union feeling. Andrew Johnson is to be Brigadier General, and the Provisional Governor of Tennessee.

The Rebels abandoned Murfreesboro' to make a stand at Chattanooga, Ala. The Rebels say there will be "motion" in Centerville. (But which way?) Sunday, March 24, Banks column had occupied Martinsburg.

Gen. McClellan and Staff spent 2 days with Banks' division. Gen. Lander died on Sunday, in camp. Gen. Shields succeeds him.

Important Act.

We see with much pleasure the following statement of a timely movement made by a Democratic Representative from Illinois, who was the right-hand man of Senator Douglas:

Col. Richardson, from the House Military Committee, is preparing a bill to effect the incorporation of and refusal to exchange all persons who have taken the oath to support the Constitution of the United States as Senators, Members of Congress, Foreign Regulars, and all who have been in the regular Army or Navy, and who have accepted office, either civil or military, under the so-called Southern Confederacy. In short, to punish the leaders in this rebellion, and under no pretense to let them escape.

A further provision--that all persons who of their free will take part in this Rebellion, prominently and undoubtedly, shall never hold any Office, either State or National--would be but just to the Union man in the South, and our only security that these same oath-breaking, war-making scoundrels will not hatch another insurrection the first chance they get. The execution of the ring-leaders, and a proviso against their prime assistants, would ensure the Union against dangerous outbreaks for one generation at least. Let them go, as Burr and Calhoun were let go, and it will only encourage Rebels, and discourage all true men against ever fighting again for a Free Government.

A Rebel has no political rights. By the act of rebellion, he stands self-stripped of all the rights of citizenship. A State of the Union, plunged in rebellion by the concurrent action of its people, has no political rights left.

Yet there are knaves, up and down the North, who clamor to have "the constitutional rights" of the seceding States respected. These States have forfeited all their rights, as much as Jefferson Davis has his. The clamor in their behalf is sympathy with Treason.

Our Navy, that was the pride of the war of 1812, has lost in this war nothing of its ancient renown. Dupont, Foote, Stringham, and Burnside are names that will be transmitted to history with those of Lawrence, Perry, Hull and Bainbridge. If the European powers should ever interfere in favor of the unholy rebellion that has attempted the destruction of our Government, we shall look to Navy to maintain the freedom of the seas, and carry the Union in triumph through the contest.--Bradford Reporter.

The Montreal Republican of the 12th Feb. says: "Henry Spearback, of Harford, was frozen to death on Sunday night, February 2d. He was found, on Monday morning, lying at his shop door. He was intoxicated, and slept in his shop that night, and had apparently fallen out of the door, and, being unable to rise, had frozen to death where he fell. He leaves a wife and two children."

A Connecticut correspondent writes that the culture of flax is beginning to be considerably agitated since cotton has gone up 40 and 45 cents per pound. He says "New England can produce 400 lbs. of good, clear, swinged flax per acre, on moist rich land."

A few days since in Dauphin county, a musk-rat attacked a young man named Ulrich, and made several attempts to reach his throat. After a severe battle, in which both belligerents became exhausted, the young man succeeded in killing the rat.

Question before the Lewisburg Lyceum, to-night: "Should all Rebels be punished in strict accordance with laws?" A general attendance is invited.
