UNION COUNTY STAR AND LEWISBURG CHRONICLE.

BY O. N. WORDEN AND J. R. CORNELIUS.

At $1.50 per Year, always in Advance.

LEWISBURG, UNION CO., PA., FRIDAY, MAY 16, 1862.

"THE UNION," established in 1814---Whole No., 2,565.

"CHRONICLE," established in 1843---Whole No., 944.

PUBLISHED SEMI-WEEKLY—

Tuesday Morning & Friday Afternoon.

☞Union County Court commences on Monday next. Be in time.

The opportunity is a good one to bring around in subscriptions for those desiring the paper.

☞Never was there so good a prospect of a bountiful grain Harvest, in our region, as at present. Our Manufacturers of Reapers and Mowers are hastening to aid in the work. SIXTY ONE Machines, we are told, left Lewisburg at a single load, one day this week, designed for the Juniata Valley.

☞Gen. Washington, Lafayette, and 12,000 Northern men were driving the British and Tories out of Yorktown, about 80 years ago, one Johnny Hook—a great "constitutional" stickler, who wanted the Government "just as it was" before the War—made the air vocal with cries for "Beef! Beef! Beef!" taken to feed our starving, unpaid soldiers. In our day, there is a class of men, who—while M'Clellan, M'Dowell, Banks, Fremont, Halleck, Burnside, Butler, Curtis, and Hal a Million brave American sailors and soldiers are risking fortunes, health, limbs and life in fighting a worse foe—howl their condemnations of the war, vote against supplies, try to hinder the force of our arms, and alarm the honest people at home by falsehoods about "Taxes! Taxes! Taxes!" To such narrow minded men, the preservation of our liberties and the integrity of the Union is of less importence than a few dollars. But let them ask themselves what our land would be worth—how much cash we would have—if the Rebels had fulfilled their hope and boast of overrunning Ohio, Pennsylvania, and New York, as they have their own impoverished, blasted, ruined Virginia? Our most intelligent men see, in the thorough suppression of this Slaveholders' Insurrection—not in "compromising" with it, or "putting off the evil day"—the surest way to save our money and to enjoy our property in peace. Every true Union man in the South says the Rebel leaders must be whipped, chastised, extirpated, thoroughly, to squelch their stubborn pride. No "stabbing with unimpeached mortar" will answer in this desperate emergency.

☞The Rebels are daily confiscating the property of peaceable Union men [illegible] robbery [illegible] Union Congress [illegible] property [illegible] Rebels [illegible] exactly as would suit [illegible]

☞Take up any Breckinridge paper, and you will find it far more concerned for the Party than for the Country—has a thousand fears to find with those trying to crush the Rebels, and one fault to find with the Rebels themselves! Can such a paper be controlled by true Patriotism?

☞We see it stated that Gen. Scott predicted, last Fall, that it would require until May to break the back of the Monster Rebellion. He now expresses much satisfaction with the carrying out of the wide-extending and skilful plans mostly matured while he was yet in office.

☞We are indebted to Horace Waters, N. Y., for a beautiful solo and chorus entitled "Shall we know each other there?" The music is the production of Rev. Robert Lowry, a graduate of the University at Lewisburg.

☞Public Sale of Franklin Candor's (Iscid) Farm Stock and personal property on Tuesday next.

☞Zimmerman, of the Red, White and Blue, expects a new supply of Summer Clothing, next week.

☞John Smith, formerly of New Berlin, Pa., has retired from the Republican, at Pekin, Ill.

☞Dr. Wm. Hayes is serving as Staff Surgeon with Gen. Fremont in North Central Virginia.

☞Corn planting in this region will be generally finished this week.

FOR THE STAR & CHRONICLE.

A FRIENDLY CAUTION—TO CANDIDATES.

MR. EDITOR: Before any one can take it to be personal, please print over again a Resolution of the Return Judges at the last Union Republican Convention, viz.:

"Resolved that we deprecate the practice of candidates for nomination canvassing the county and personally soliciting votes, and recommend that hereafter those who seek positions should be willing to run on their own merits."

In our neighborhood, the candidates who bore the most, or who send out the most borers, before Nomination, will get the fewest votes. And unless the People nominate with their own free will, they may not elect. We are tired to death of being haunted at home, waylaid when abroad, and hindered when at farm work, by office hunters. If a man wants an office, let him put his name in the papers, and save his time, his credit (and his whisky) by letting the people make their own choice, unmolested, as they generally do, anyhow.—Respectfully submitted—all in good feeling, you know—by SEVERAL.

Friday last, the house of Job Packer, in Lock Haven, occupied by the family of Major Lyman, caught fire by a spark on the tinder roof, and burned down. The contents mostly saved. Insured for $700

New Telegraph Rates.

The rates for telegraphing to the following stations, from Lewisburg, are 40 cts. for 10 words or less, and 4 cts. for each additional word:

Boston, Catlettsburg, Blairsville, Bennett's Tannery, Bridgeport, Bellefonte, Bloomsburg, Berwick, Shippensburg, Carlisle, Mount Holly, Columbia, Chambersburg, Cumberland, Clarksburg, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Dayton, Dunkirk, Erie, Elizabethtown, Easton, Harrisburg, Hollidaysburg, Huntingdon, Indianapolis, Johnstown, Kittanning, Lancaster, Louisville, Lebanon, Lock Haven, Lewistown, Lexington, Logansport, Madison, Milton, Middletown, Mansfield, Meadville, Mount Pleasant, Mount Vernon, Mount Union, Mount Carmel, Mauch Chunk, Marietta, Manchester, Newport, Norristown, Newark, Orrville, Pittsburgh, Philadelphia, Pottsville, Pittston, Pittsburgh, Pottstown, Pittsfield, Quincy, Reading, Richmond, Ravenna, Steubenville, Sunbury, Shamokin, Shenandoah, Tiffin, Tamaqua, Uniontown, Wheeling, Wilmington, Wooster, Wellsville, Wilkesbarre, Zanesville, and all intermediate stations.

To Pittsburgh, and all points on the Reading and Lebanon Valley Railroads, the rates are 40 and 3. Rates on the West Branch are unchanged.

All messages must be pre-paid, except answers to pre-paid messages, which is optional with the sender.

—The Telegraph Company not having paid any dividends recently, accounts, we presume, for the rise in the rates.

The Capture of Norfolk.

When President Lincoln arrived at Fortress Monroe, which was on Tuesday, after being shown the curiosities he concluded there was something more to see, and asked: "Why don't you take Norfolk?" "Pooh," says Gen. Wool, "you don't understand military necessity." Just after this little conference there came in a Secession tug from Norfolk—the John B. White. This tug belonged to Buffalo parties, and when the war broke out was engaged in towing into the Albemarle canal, and was seized by the Confederate Government. The Captain of the vessel had been trying for some time to get away, and at last succeeded in bringing intelligence that Norfolk was so nearly evacuated that nothing could be easier than to take it. Upon this, the President taking Secretary Chase's revenue cutter, the Miama, and the Secretary himself accompanying, they went off and made reconnoissances of all places where troops could be landed. In this search, the President found one spot that suited the purpose at "Ocean View," a place where the people of Norfolk formerly drove of an afternoon, resembling, in some respects, our Coney Island. It is situated about ten miles from Norfolk. The division was immediately placed under marching orders, after these reconnoissances had been made—which was on Friday afternoon—and was embarked on a number of small tugs; but, owing to the appearance of the Merrimac, they did not start. The next morning, after remaining on board all night, they were marched back to Camp Hamilton, and the same evening again embarked on transports. During the night they were taken to "Ocean View," and on Saturday morning, as day broke, they all landed.

The City was surrendered on Saturday, without a drop of blood being shed—and after it PORTSMOUTH and the NAVY YARD. But before we could take possession of the latter, the ingrates set it on fire, and burned down the combustible part of the greatest pecuniary benefactor of Norfolk, and also ships belonging to private citizens. The Washington Globe pertinently says that it is doubtful whether the Nation will ever build that Yard again among such a people.

The famous Merrimac was burned, by its possessors, early on Sunday morning—and that scarecrow is no more. It had been worth 25,000 men to the Rebels, but the fact that they dared not bring her to battle again seems to be proof that she had some inherent defect, or had received a most great damage. The facts will probably come out, some day. The Virginia sank her crew, numbering some 300, had time gone to Suffolk."

SUFFOLK lies about 20 miles S. W. of Norfolk—a Railway from Suffolk runs N. W. to Petersburg, Pa., and another S. W. to Weldon, N. C. This week, Major Dodge, from Wool's command, went on and took possession of Suffolk.

A Soldier's Letter.

HARRISON, April, 1862.

I write with a great deal of pain, dear girl—
I was down once before with the fight—
And my hands to write to you in the world,
Then I was with you, but now I'm afar—
Yes, I'm afar—and my leg, and my hat,
And my coat, I might be worse—so I will.
Now I thought of you, "I'm sure you'll be glad
To know that I'm only wounded—not dead."

I've lost my left arm—but my right you know all!
I'll soon be as right as a trivet, I'll call,
The doctor he says, in a month or a week,
I'll be able to use it as well as a cane.
For that, and nothing, the most emotional care,
And my nursing, the sisters have
Promised, that the prospect is fair
For a recovery in only many days.

But I've something else, dear Mary, to say,
And I'd say it if it were the last day—
I've thought of it many—there's no other way—
You're released from your promise to be my wife!
You're to think me faithless at first, then you'll think
Of the cause, and my comrades all near and dear,
And your proud and womanly heart will shrink
From the thought of being a cripple's bride!

'Tis a bitter struggle to give you up,
For I've loved you more than ever of late;
But down to its depths I've drained the cup,
And I'm calm, though my future is desolate.
I'm coming home, and if you can see me most meet;
My darling, this [illegible] I imagine—
Let us still be friends—for that will be sweet,
Sister, now, alas! we can be nothing more.

The Answer.

BLANDFORD, Mass., April, 1862.

My Robert, how brave and noble you are!
You knew and you spoke, I know, for me;
But you've too little faith in me, by far,
If you believe I want to be free.
I'm not released from my promise—no, no!
I was never so sacred to me before;
If you could but know how I've longed to go
And watch by your side, you'd doubt me no more.

I read your name in the terrible list,
But the tears knew back that sprung to my eye,
And a fearful pain, that I would not resist,
Crushed my heart, till I only longed to die.
The blessed tears, by-and-by, came again,
As I felt, as you in your letter said,
A feeling of gladness, that all my pain,
That Robert was only wounded—not dead.

Oh, darling! to think you have suffered so,
And I all those long, weary miles away;
You've needed me very often, I know,
What I would do's nothing but hope and pray.
But hardest of all is the bitter thought:
That you have been suffering so much for me;
Poor Robert! your manly letter has brought
A strange mixture of joy and misery.

But you're coming home to my arms and heart:
You're right—I am proud, and sensitive, too;
But I'm only so when we are apart,
And now—I shall only be proud of you!
You're coming home to happiness and rest,
And wait the moment of blissful calm.
When I shall be held in a Soldier's breast
By a patriot Hero's one strong arm!

There is great suffering among the poor in New Orleans, in Norfolk, and wherever Rebellion has reigned. Business generally prostrated, cash hoarded up, all confidence between man and man gone, worthless Confederate money forced upon people by law, martial law in force—we can hardly conceive how much one year of lying Rebels rule has harassed the common people, crushed out the last hope of the poor, and made splendid paupers of the rich. Such is the horrible work of traitors, hissed on by men who should have known better, but corrupt at heart!

To the Members and Friends of the UNION COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

The Board to whom you have committed the management of your affairs for the present year, have, after full deliberation, unanimously resolved upon holding a Fair on the 8th, 9th and 10th of October, and determined to make such improvements as will in their judgment be highly useful.

The Society has long felt the want of a suitable Building in which to exhibit such articles as need protection from sun and storms. This want will be supplied by the erection of a large, two storey, edifice, so constructed as to afford every convenience to visitors, and to fully protect, and show to the best advantage, articles on exhibition.

It is also proposed to prepare additional conveniences for the exhibition of Horses, Cattle, Hogs, Sheep, &c., and to improve the ground by draining and grading and the planting of shade trees. Your Board think the place should be made attractive, and impress visitors, not with extravagence, but with neatness and order. It should be made an example of good taste, and not remain one of slovenliness and negligence.

With neat (not costly) buildings, the grounds properly graded, and well supplied with shade trees, it could be made a place of quiet beauty, suitable not only for annual fairs, and floral exhibitions, but attractive for other purposes. Farmers do not know enough of each other. Occasional social gatherings would make old and young more contented and happy in their calling. To supply in part this want, we would recommend that the Society, in addition to its fairs, should have annual harvest home meetings, where all could meet in friendly, social enjoyments. No place could be more appropriate for such meetings, than our Agricultural Fair Ground, when once properly improved.

Your Board have also concluded to try the experiment of establishing a Youth's Department in connection with our annual exhibition. Such are now the attractions of town and city, and the hankering for professional and mercantile life, that if we expect to retain our children in the less exciting pursuits of agriculture, we must do all that we can to instruct and encourage them; and to make good farmers of them, we can not too early inspire them with an ambition to excel in their calling. We believe the Society could not in any way so well accomplish its mission of usefulness, as by encouraging in the young a love of improved, intelligent agriculture, horticulture, and kindred arts. Impressed with this view, we purpose preparing a premium list to be competed for only by children under sixteen years of age, and allot to them a separate place in the building and on the ground for the exhibition of their productions. And we would now say to the boys and girls of the county, that, in view of the liberal provisions made for them, we expect from them in return a handsome display of the fruits of their industry. If they will commence at once, and work patiently, they can produce something that will entitle them to a reward. We would also commend this subject to parents, and all others having children in their employ. A little encouragement in the matter may result in much good.

The Society is out of debt, and has $400 in the Treasury. To carry out the plans suggested will involve the Society in additional expenditures of money. To aid us financially, we should be pleased to dispose of some forty or fifty life memberships, which are still offered (for this year only) at $10 each. Our chief reliance must, however, be on our receipts, at the Fair. That we may not fail, then, we would at this early period urge all friends of improvement engaged in the various industrial pursuits of the county and vicinity, to begin at once their preparations for the fair. Let every citizen—farmers and mechanics especially—and every housewife, in a spirit of friendly rivalry determine to surpass others at the next fair, not only in the number of articles for exhibition, but also in the superiority of quality.

We announce our arrangements relying upon the spirit of the Society, and the liberality of the public, to endorse our action by an earnest effort on the part of all to make the next exhibition what it can and should be—a perfect success, and a decided improvement. ELI SLIFER, Pres.

JOHN A. MERTZ, Sec.

County papers please copy.

The Rebel papers in New Orleans styled Gen. Butler, "Picayune," and said he was a mulatto, once a slave in that city. Well, "Picayune Butler" is now ruler of New Orleans, (under military law,) and has imprisoned the mayor and council for refusing to bear allegiance. The presses are prevented from further lying about the Union Government, and misleading the people. They will find the General, we trust, a wise, firm Governor.

The losses adjusted by the Lock Haven Insurance Company for nine months ending April 1st, was $18,029 97. An assessment of 4 per cent. is made.
