As a matter of general interest, we have truthful observations by finding in the outsided from Capt. Forrest an exhibit of Rebel papers, printed by authority of the the labors of the office from lat Jan. to Rebel Congress, a letter from that dead Slat March last-a quarter of 77 working Rebel General, Albert Sidney Johnson, in which he says :

"Believing it to be of the greatest momen to PROTRACT THE CAMPAIGN, as the time to strengthen myself by new troops from Transsee and other States, I MAGNIFIED MY PORCES TO THE ENEMY, but made however we ware strength to the Department and the Governors of States."

These deliberate falsehoods have characterized those pinks of "honor" throughout the war they falsely raised. They published-and traiterous or carcless Northern editors copied-great eraggerations of their numbers, everywhere-at Manassas, Winchester, Pensacola, Bowling Green, Island No. 10, on the Seacoast, at Nashville, New Orleans, Yorktown, Norfolk, ke. "To protract the campaign," they beggar every device of bypocrisy. They encourage their dupes, give arguments to secret ailies, and discourage and keep inactive the Union arms-the only power 27,322 those ingrain scoundrels respect. Such a 5,200 cause of course needs the aid of all the deceptions the Power of Darkness can we can say of them as some one has said of another of Satan's emissaries-"Lie on ! while my revenge shall be To tell the year facto of thes!"

Robert Small, a Sable Hero. Tuesday evening, 13 May, the Planter, superior Steamer, 140 feet long, came into Port Royal, manned by nine colored men, with 3 women and 3 children, passengers. She was the best war vessel the Rebels had in Charleston, and those men were her crew. On Monday, the white officers went ashore to stay all night, when Small got the men and their families quietly aboard, fired up, and moved stealthily out of the harbor. Passing Ft. Sumter they gave the usual signal, which they well knew-when beyond the Rebel guns, they raised the white flag, and steamed directly to the blockading squadron. The vessel was armed with two splendid guns, and had on board also four other guns and

A Trick-False Alarm. There is a bad attempt, in certain quar ters, to raise a cry of "persecution" of M'Ciellan, as though he were a much abused man, set upon by Catalines, and hampered in action ... when, in fact, he has been netted, and allowed to have his own way, more than any other General. When Fremout most needed his best men, they were sent for to swell the do-nothing Army of the Potomac. When, at last, the Administration and the People were tired of its inactivity, and required M'Clellan to move on as did other Generals, the President kindly assured him that he could be relieved of responsibility in the matter, if action was contrary to his judgment. But no sooper was his immense host really in working harness, than the dreaded enemy dearth of cotton might bring strength from evacuated Manassas, as they have York-should and docourage the North and to gain and Norfolb and we have town and Norfolk, and probably may Richmond. M'Dowell and Banks seem both to be kept back, in order to give M'Cicilan the front position. He, like most other ambitious Generals in the field, seeing the work before him, and anxious to be perfectly sure, wants all the best and most available men for his particular command-but it is the duty of the Secretary of War, of the Cabinet, and of the Commander.in.chief, to check such selfish demands, and to apportion the men as the emergencies of the whole field may require, not as any one man may say. No-no! M'Ciellan has been highly favored, and much deferred to : and if the Administration were his enemies, or had not full confidence in him, they could and should take away his men, or put some other good General over him, any day, as was done with Fremont and others. President Lincoln metes out justice to all, and will allow no undue partialities, or favoritism, to injure the Great Cause. No President ever had the confidence of loyal citizens more than Abraham Lincoln does to-day.
