UNION STATE TICKET.

For Auditor General,
THOMAS E. COCHRAN, of York.

For Surveyor General,
WILLIAM S. ROSS, of Lycoming.

Preliminary Elections.

The general good character of our candidates (rendering them all acceptable,) and the glorious harvest weather of Saturday last, combined to make a small turn-out at the primary election except in Hartley and one or two other districts where candidates resided. The full vote was not polled for any one office—but we think 1200 voters participated.

The Return Judges met yesterday as appointed, when Robert Candor Esq. was appointed Chairman, and Wm. L. Harris and Chas Gudykunst, Secretaries.

Read the Returns of votes polled, which were as follows: For

Congress—George F. Miller		709
	John J. Patterson	22
	Scattering	2
Assembly—Jesse Beaver		693
Surveyor—Conrad Sheckler		573

The following were the contested votes:

After remarks from Wm. Rosbong, Esq Voted that we will use all honorable measures to ensure the election of the gentlemen this day nominated.

Voted that Messrs. Miller and Beaver appoint their own Conferees.

The following were the Return Judges for this year, and the gentlemen appointed Standing Committee for next year:

JUDGE.	COMMITTEE.
Brady—C. Gudykunst	D. F. Fagerman
Buffaloe—Bj. Hauck	David Herrod
East Buffaloe—W. L. Harris	M. Brown
West Buffaloe—John Hayes	G. E. Sneary
Hartley—John C. Schnure	James Glazier
Hartleton—D. Spigelmyer	Shem Spigelmyer
Kelly—James Lawson	Paschal Corgan
Lewis—Simon Swengel	John Reish
Lew. N. W'd—Daniel Shaffer	Chs Penny
Lew. S. W'd—T. G. Evans	Johnson Walls
Limestone—Fred. Bolender	John Simon
Mifflinburg—Thomas Gosslins	Fred. Smith
New Berlin—W. Rosbong	M. Kleckner
Union—I. K. Kreamer	Jesse Beaver
White Deer—Robt Quiggle	E. Osborn

—The Convention then adjourned.

Last year, the West end had three candidates for Assembly, and lost it. This year, the East end had two candidates for Commissioner, and lost it.

Messrs. Hagenbuch and Heimbach were each taken up without the knowledge of any other candidates, and the fact of the first's running was not generally known at the West, while the latter was not as well known on the River. Had either been announced a week earlier, he would probably have had no opposition.

The gentlemen are all selected fairly and honorably. Miller, Beaver, Hagenbuch and Hayes are from the East side of the county—Sands, Reed, and Sheckler from the West. All parts of the County are represented. The Candidates are worthy and honorable and capable men. There is no reason why the County Ticket sh'ld not be successful.

☞The vote of Lewisburg for Commissioner proves that although in large districts they are not disposed to be illiberal. Our nearest neighbors, Noll and Smith, received each the same number of votes in each of our Wards, while our more distant friend Reed fell only two votes behind them.

☞It is strange how long it takes some people to understand that Editors can not pay attention to any anonymous letters. One to us a few days since, alleged certain criminal attempts upon the honor of women, by a professor of better morals—another, yesterday, asserts that a woman had pilfered habitually, and her "respectful" friends could no longer prevent her exposure. Do persons suppose Editors are fools enough to print such libellous assaults—false for aught they know, against persons they know not—to shield some one who has not courage enough to sign his own charge?

Pennsylvanians! to the Rescue.

Our State is the only one where Nine Months' Volunteers are accepted. It has done so well already—it is so near the scene of warfare—that speed is required as a return for this privilege. What are our towns and farms worth, if ravaged by Rebel armies, like the towns and farms of Virginia? While M'Clellan is cooped up on the James river, the Rebels may try a dash into Cumberland Valley. The rich granaries, horses, and cattle, the household products, the good money, and all the accumulated produce of the honest industry of Pennsylvania, is looked upon with longing eyes by the bankrupt Slaveholders of the Rebellion. To keep them on their own soil, we want men, at once. To enable M'Clellan to ascend James River and take Richmond, we want men, immediately. It is not believed the Rebels can raise another army.

"The King's business requires haste!" Union county is asked for one Company only. Let one be first raised, speedily—then fill up old Companies, or organize another. Strike in time.

Let the Night Meetings be well attended, and all due encouragement given.

Changes in the Conduct of the War.

The elevation of HENRY WAGER HALLECK to be General in Chief, to be stationed near the Government, seems to be acquiesced in, if not demanded by, public opinion. His familiar title among his men is "Old Brains," which indicates his position, it may be presumed, with great precision, in the minds of those who have served with and under him. A graduate of West Point, with credit he served in Mexico, but was a lawyer in California when the war broke out; and in all positions has shown a great executive capacity. We wish him the utmost success.

Gen. M'Clellan is a patriot, and a superior Engineer, but over eight months' best opportunities as Gen. in Chief has failed to prove him to be a Commander of those comprehensive and energetic qualities required upon his field. Gen Lander was his agent in the victories of Western Virginia attributed to M'Clellan. In spite of the fact that all the Rebel sympathizers, North, applauded M'Clellan in his ineffective policy, we believe him to have been well-meaning, careful, and solicitous of great results at the least loss of life. His errors now are evident to all, but other men in his shoes might have erred as he did. M'Dowell's loss of Bull Run, and M'Clellan's of Richmond, have each added six months to the War.

The Freeman, (New Brunswick, N.J.) in reply to the inquiry of a Democrat organ, "Where are the Wide-Awakes?" says:

We can tell our Democratic friends where the Wide-Awakes of this city are. We had the pleasure some time since of examining the rolls of the New-Brunswick companies, and on investigation found that over three-quarters of them are now in the army—not twenty able-bodied men capable of doing military duty out of the whole number being left at home. We would like to know if any "Democratic" club of similar number—nearly two—can show as bright a record?"

Everywhere, the Wide-Awake boys are more than their proportion in the grand Union army.

☞The 45th Pa. (Col. Welch, with whom is Dr. Christ) arrived at Newport News, last week.

Albert E. Johnson, of Co. D. (Slifer Guards) is at a Baltimore Hospital, wounded.

Of the others reported "missing" in that Company, Oliver B. Woodward died of his wounds. His brother York, Jarns, Jull, Saylor, Hartman, Gilbert, and Morrison, are thought to be prisoners, some of whom have probably been released.

Capt. T. Chamberlin and Lt. M'Fadden have reached home.

☞The Cedar (Iowa) Democrat, says: "We are pretty well satisfied that the Order of the Knights of the Golden Circle exists in this county." No doubt the secret, traitorous order is working all over the Union, in connection with the "Democracy." The true friends of the Country may be assured this is not an idle alarm.

☞A large attendance of old and new visiters for Commencement Week. Sermons in the Baptist House, Sabbath, by Rev. Messrs Wright of N. J. and Peirce of N.Y. In the Methodist House, by Rev. Messrs. Murphy and Brown of N. J. In the afternoon, Rev. Warren Randolph of Germantown in University Hall.

☞"Stonewall Jackson," is a son-in-law of Rev. Dr. Junkin, formerly of Milton, Pa. It is said that when the Dr. left Virginia, he not only shook the dust off of his feet, but also had his wagon wheels washed, so as to leave all the "soil" behind!

☞We hugely like the introductory Editorial Address of Abraham L. Guss, of the Juniata Sentinel. Hope he will live up to it, and flourish in so doing.

☞Rev. D. Menigee, late of Milton, has entered upon the pastoral care of the Passyunk Baptist church, Philadelphia.

Our soldiers should not take any pains to catch Rebels' runaway slaves, but they should catch Rebel runaway masters!

"Ruined!"

On a recent trip to our State Capital, inquiring after the welfare of men formerly well known—some of them the most genial and gifted of our citizens, and favored by fortune, education, and friends—most saddening was it to add up the long roll of those "RUINED" by a shorter or longer sojourn at Harrisburg. Not only in years long past, but reseeling to our own time—not only in subordinate positions, but also among the most elevated—Drunkenness, Gluttony, Lechery, and Gambling, have beguiled and RUINED their victims. Out of the necessities and greediness of these have arisen corrupt, profligate, and extravagant legislation. Contaminated and contaminating, once respected men have reeled home, beastly wretches, depraved in morals, bankrupt or perjured through bribery—in short, RUINED for time and for eternity!

"Where is such a one of such a Department?" (Perhaps a head, and perhaps a clerk.) "Oh, he's a ruined man—killed by high living—a worthless dog."

"I don't hear from Senator ———, or Representative ———, lately." "Well, Mr. ——— died of mania potu, and Mr. ——— had better be, for tho' married, he is rotten with licentiousness."

The brilliant ——— committed suicide (which his friends tried to conceal)—another one gambles for his living—another one subsists (a sad burden) upon his afflicted, heart-broken family—another is a vagabond upon earth. In the Army or Navy, the "habits" of this man demoralize or render useless a company or regiment in which he is foisted—and that one has lost us this advantage or that action. A delinquent here, and a defaulter there, swell the fearful list of ruined men.

With such melancholy exhibitions of the inability of some naturally amiable men to resist the peculiar temptations of Legislative Capitals, it is amazing how infatuated many (and their friends) are to obtain positions in Harrisburg or in Washington! Mistaken kindnesses!

The people can not be too careful, when selecting Officers of every grade, to choose carefully the most reliable men—those who are not only virtuous and circumspect at home, under conservative influences, but who, abroad, regard the All-seeing Eye, and can detect, oppose and defeat the insidious wiles of the Adversary of all good, in his thousand specious guises. A man of common sense need not fear being too strict or guarded in his habits and associations: he secures his own safety and the true respect, esteem and confidence of the most worthy of his associates.

We have no reference to our own Senator, Assemblymen, or the occupants of the various Departments. On the contrary, we heard them invariably well spoken of, as honors to our party and their country, both personally and officially. And we rejoice to add, that, year by year, the better class of men are more successful.

Endorsed at Home.

In time of common danger to a common country, old party feelings should die off. There is but one party allowed in Rebeldom—there should be but one in the Loyal States until Secession is finished.

Gen. WM. STERLING ROSS, and WM. PENN MINER, Esq., of Wilkes-Barre—sons of the first settlers of Wyoming—had battled each other, politically, from their boyhood up. They now meet on the broad ground of Union for the sake of the Union! In his last paper (the Times,) Mr. Miner thus alludes to his neighbor and old-time antagonist:

"Our readers see how willingly Republicans can yield up more party organization for the good of the Union. Gen. Ross was elected to the Legislature, last year, all Republicans voting for him—and, with the aid of loyal Democrats, he will be elected Surveyor General by such a majority as will astonish the Secessionists. Let the real Democracy of Luzerne unite with us to crush out treason, and defeat all sympathizers with the South."

WASHINGTON, July 18.—Following is an extract from a despatch received at the War Department, dated

BEAUFORT, S. C., July 10.

SIR: I have the honor to report, that everything pertaining to the special service for which I am sent to this department is in a favorable condition. The negroes are working industriously. We have some fifteen thousand acres corn and cotton under cultivation, and it looks well. The system of voluntary labor works admirably. The people are contented and happy. When the new crop is harvested, they will cease to be a burden upon the Government. By adopting a judicious system of reward for labor, almost any amount can be obtained. Its proceeds will pay the expenses.

I am, with great respect, yours truly.

R. SAXTON,
Brigadier General of Volunteers

A very intelligent colored man assured a Union correspondent in Virginia that the slaves expect liberation as the result of this war, and will fight for whoever frees them. They prefer to fight for the Union, but if the Rebels will free them, and the Government will not, they will go for their freedom of course. They could have done us much good, if properly encouraged, heretofore. The Rebels would rather lose slavery than be whipped by the Yankees. The black man makes very reasonable statements.

NEWPORT NEWS, July 18, 1862.

This place is at the mouth of James River—is high and dry—fine water, a good market—newspapers and mail daily. It is so much in contrast, in this latter respect, with our former place, that we can hardly realize our present existence. When I wrote last, at Newbern, our baggage was packed and sent away—3 wagons allowed to one regiment—our horses standing there, quietly feeding—40 rounds' of ammunition in the box, 60 in the pocket, and 50,000 in our wagons. Seven days' provision allowed, and four of that was but coffee, hard bread, sugar and salt. No one was allowed to go along, but could stand rapid and continued marching. It looked severe. Toward evening, the horses were hitched up, and the three wagons went away empty. We stared at that. Then, some time in the night, tents were struck and put on a flat, and we marched toward Newbern, getting there between 5 and 6 o'clock. Then companies, E, H, and K, were put on the little steamer, "Thorn," "Mystic," with Gen. Ferrero and staff, Col. Hartranft and Bell. The rest went on board the schooner "Recruit," and sealed orders were brought on board, to be opened at the mouth of the Neuse. We knew then, that we were to march on Goldsboro', and that now we were not. Anchored somewhere in the river—got out—opened orders—"Hampton Roads." We went gaily up the Palmico—wind rising, and when we came near Hatteras it was blowing bad. Quartermaster Hall here caught up to us, hailed—"Get some safe place, anchor, and await further orders. Richmond is ours!" and he went plunging on after the other vessels. We cheered, but it was a chilly sort of a cheer. After dark, Capt. Biggs, in the "Allison," came alongside with orders to return to our former anchoring! Gen. Ferrero asked what that was. "I suppose, Newbern." We were welcomed with one of our old familiar "blows," that night, at Hatteras, reminding of days long gone by.

So the next day, early, the 4th of July, we started back—a bright day, with a creeping, unpleasant feeling, one always has when he starts on a journey and turns back. Some of our vessels, the "Recruit" among the rest, had not got out the River. Some officers, whose curiosity got the better of their discretion, on board those that had not got out, thinking that of course they would get out, opened their sealed orders, and were nicely caught. We got back to the wharf at Newbern. Everything looked blue—hopes appeared dashed—Rebels exultant—and we found that all the information they had was, Jackson had been caught between two divisions of our army, his division crushed, and himself killed—that M'Clellan had then pushed his left wing into Richmond. This was good enough, but the source from which it was derived was found out, and it was considered doubtful if not false. I have nothing to say of that, now. The great battles had been fought before we had started.

Then back to our old cspming ground—the old flat brings the tents, and the "four camp kettles to a Company." We had covering at last for that night and part of the next, when they were struck again, and this time E., F., H., and K., were put on the "Faron."

We had a delightful trip to Fortress Monroe. The 48th were on our old friend the "Cossack." Just as we were rounding the light boat, a new gunboat passed us—we admired her beauty—our whistle saluted her—and she passed within fifty yards of us. It was not until after I landed that I found out she was the "Simerons," and that John A. Grier was her Engineer. Then, too, on shore, I met Lts. Bogle and Wingate, Prof. Anderson, John H. Castle, John K. Taggart—it seemed like getting home. On the second day after our arrival, the fleet moved up, landing our troops here. The third Division, Gen. Parke, came through the Dismal Swamp Canal, and stopped at Norfolk. We are comfortably fixed. A day or two, some more transports came, and some variegated regiments from South Carolina, among them, your correspondent Dan. Reed. I thought I saw a large army in North Carolina—but they appear to be much farther stretched out along our shore here. The only one I know of, at Fortress Monroe, wounded, is David Hauck. We haven't even a conjecture of what is to come next.

J. M. L.

☞A short time before his death, Judge DOUGLAS said to his confidential friend, Mr. Sheahan—

"He considered the Rebellion had sealed the fate of Slavery. No act of legislation, no act of Mr. Lincoln, no matter how violative of the Constitution, could have wro't the injury to slavery that had been done by the rebellion. If the Government would only say and do nothing whatever about slaves, but prosecute the war for the establishment of the Union, the losses of slave property, by the inevitable consequences of war, would have two effects. First, it would satisfy the people of the South that their own folly, and not the action of the Republican party, was producing the loss. Second, that the tenure of slave property would become so uncertain, it would cease to be valuable—and, once brought to that condition, its fate was sealed for ever."

HYMN—"There is a Beautiful World."

There is a beautiful world,
Where angels and angels sing;
A world where peace and pleasure reign,
And heavenly praises ring.
Chorus—Will be there! Will be there!
Palms of victory,
Crowns of glory,
We shall wear,
In that beautiful world on high.

There is a beautiful world,
Where sorrow never comes;
A world where hearts shall never fall,
In sighing o'er our homes.
Will be there, &c. &c.

There is a beautiful world,
Closed to mortal sight;
A world where never sets the sun,
That home is fair and bright.
Will be there, &c. &c.

There is a beautiful world,
Of holiness and love;
Oh! may we all be ready there,
And dwell with God above!
Will be there, &c. &c.

☞At the War Meeting, held at Hartleton, Monday evening July 21, the following resolution was passed unanimously:

Resolved, That our County Commissioners be and are hereby requested to appropriate Ten Thousand Dollars out of the County Treasury, as a bounty to our Volunteers, under the late call from the Governor.

GOOD EXAMPLE.—While on his travels at the West, Hon. Edward Everett was preparing to attend public worship on the Sabbath, when some distinguished visitors were announced. In a few moments, he frankly informed them that he was a church going man, and they could either accompany him, or excuse him for bidding them good day. It was a gentle rebuke, and he performed an act worthy of imitation by all good citizens, and especially by professed Christians.

A VALUED (C) OFFICER.—Gen. Pope offers a reward of five cents for the apprehension of Capt. Samuel L. Harrison, of the 95th Reg. N. Y. Vols., he having deserted his company on the 21st inst.

An army correspondent says he saw, in Va., an elegant piano that had all its insides taken out, and horses were eating oats, out of it. A performance that they accomplished, we dare say, without dropping an oat.

Five or six monster Union and War meetings were held in New York, Tuesday week. The largest was presided over and addressed by Gen. Fremont.

How absurd the Rebel boast that their armies, raised by conscription and fed by plunder, can never be destroyed except by "annihilation—death in the last ditch!"

☞The quota of the Laws passed during the late Sessions of the Legislature, has been received at this office, and are ready for distribution to those entitled to them.
