Friendly Games Between Pickets

A letter from an officer of one of the Massachusetts regiments on the Rappahannock, to the Boston Journal, contains the following amusing passage:

"There is much good feeling exhibited towards each other by the Union and Rebel pickets since the late battle. A sort of tacit understanding seems to exist among them that warfare for the present at least, is to be laid aside. I give you a practical specimen of how this feeling operates: Yesterday, after an exchange of papers, tobacco, coffee, &c., between our boys on picket duty and the Scotch who were similarly detailed, both parties sat down and had a paw wow. The ultimate result of the war was the subject, and it was discussed calmly and intelligently although earnestly. One of the Reb's, who had much good humor in his composition, sat on one side, picking stones at a stump at a little distance, and edged in a remark, now and then 'We' (the Rebels) he said, 'will gain the day as sure as I strike that stump with this stone.' The stone was flung, but the stump was untouched, and there was a general guffaw. This half settled the Reb, and subsequent chaffing brought a challenge from him and his Rebel comrades to our boys to play a game at quoits with the flat stones which could be found laying around. But for what? Paymasters being myths just now, pecuniary stakes were out of the question. Some one suggested that the play should be Union against Confederacy, and that the party who should whip should be held as the ultimate victor in the great national battle. This pleased both sides mightily, and to work they went, two against two, and twelve in all. The game was eleven for each of the parties contesting it, or thirty-three in all—one for every star in the Federal flag—leaving Georgia out as a State of no sort of account', which idea was very significantly picked at a Georgian by one of our men in a humorous sort of a serious way. At it they went, and 'all for my country!' greeted every point won by either side. At the close of the game our Massachusetts boys (who were ably assisted by a little Caledonian, belonging to our regiment, named Alexander) came out first best by three points. There was a loud huzza from us, and a very loud oath from the others, and ——— I came along about that time, and 'duty' was the word."

What a Volcano can Do.

Cotopaxi, in 1738, threw its fiery rockets 3000 feet above its crater; while in 1754, the blazing mass, struggling for an outlet, roared so that its awful voice was heard a distance of more than six hundred miles. In 1762 the crater of Tunguragua, one of the great peaks of the Andes, flung out torrents of mud, which dammed up rivers, opened new lakes, and in valleys of 1000 feet wide made deposits 600 feet deep. The stream from Vesuvius, which in 1737 passed through Torre del Greco, contained 33,000,000 cubic feet of solid matter; and in 1795, when Torre del Greco was destroyed a second time, the mass of lava amounted to 45,000,000 cubic feet. In 1709, Etna poured forth a flood which covered 84 square miles of surface, and measured nearly 100,000,000 cubic feet. On this occasion the sand and scoria formed the Monte Rosina, near Nicholosa, a cone two miles in circumference, and 1000 feet high.

The stream thrown out by Etna in 1810 was in motion, and at the rate of a yard a day, for nine months after the eruption; and it is on record that the lava of the same mountain, after a terrible eruption, was not perfectly cool and consolidated ten years after the event. In the eruption of Vesuvius, A. D. 79, the scoria and ashes vomited forth far exceeded the entire bulk of the mountain; while in 1660 Etna disgorged more than twenty times its own mass. Vesuvius has sent its ashes as far as Constantinople, Syria, and Egypt; it hurled stones, eight pounds in weight, to Pompeii, a distance of six miles, while similar masses were tossed up 2000 feet above its summit. Cotopaxi has projected a block 100 cubic yards in volume, a distance of nine miles, and Sunbawa, in 1815, during the most terrible eruption on record, sent its ashes as far as Java, a distance of 300 miles of surface, and out of a population of 12,000 souls only 20 escaped.—Recreative Science.

THE "OLD DOMINION."—Virginia, during the usurpation of Cromwell, declared herself independent of his authority, when the usurper threatened to send a fleet to reduce the colony. Fearing to withstand such a force the colonists dispatched a messenger to Charles II.—then in exile in Flanders—inviting the royal outcast to be their king. He accepted the invitation and on the very eve of embarking for his throne in America, was recalled to the crown of England. In gratitude for Virginia loyalty, he quartered her coat of arms with those of England, Scotland, and Ireland, as an independent member of the British Empire, and the coin establishes these facts. Hence the origin of the phrase, 'Old Dominion."

An Englishman traveling in Kilkenny, came to a ford and hired a boat to take him across. The water being more agitated than was agreable to him, he asked the boatman if any person was ever lost in the passage. "Niver," replied Pat; "me brother was drowned here last week, but we found him agin the nixt day."

A little three year old acquaintance, while playing with his dog, discovered for the first time that the animal had claws, whereupon he ran into the house, exclaiming with open eyed wonder: 'Oh, mother. Fido has got teeth in his toes!"

BEST WORK FOR CANVASSING AGENTS

Harper's Pictorial History
OF THE
GREAT REBELLION
IN THE UNITED STATES.

MESSRS. HARPER & BROTHERS have commenced the issue, in Numbers, of a Complete History of the Great Rebellion in the U.S. The work has been for many months in course of preparation, by a writer every way qualified for the task.

The INTRODUCTION contains a clear account of the formation of the Confederacy of the States; the formation and adoption of the Constitution of the United States, and the establishment of the National Government; the origin, development, and progress of the doctrines of Nullification and Secession, and the various phases which they assumed, until the final culmination in the Great Rebellion.

The HISTORY comprises an account, drawn from the most authentic sources, of the Events of the War; the course of the Southern leaders at home and abroad; the gradual detection of the nation; the great Uprising of the People for the main chance in the National Life and Existence; the rapid creation of an immense Army and Navy; Battles by Land and Sea.

The ILLUSTRATIONS comprise Portraits of those who have borne a prominent part in the struggle; Maps of different localities; Plans of leading actions; Views of scenes of interest, and of the most important Battles. These Illustrations are mostly from drawings taken on the spot, by artists deputed for that purpose, to accompany every division of our Army and Navy.

Every territory at the command of the Publishers has been employed in the preparation and execution of this work; and they confidently believe that it will form the most trustworthy and valuable history which can be prepared of THE GREAT STRUGGLE FOR THE AMERICAN UNION.

Mode and Terms of Publication.

The work will be issued in Numbers, consisting of 24 pages of the size of "Harper's Weekly," printed from clear type, upon fine paper, and will probably be completed in about Twenty Numbers.

The Numbers will be issued at intervals, if possible, of about three or four weeks.

The Price of each Number, which contains matter equivalent to an ordinary volume, will be Twenty-five Cents.

The Illustrations in each Number are alone worth the price asked. Men out of employment, especially SICK OR DISABLED SOLDIERS, can find no other work so sure of ready sale and good profits. For further particulars, apply to the Publishers.
