"CHRONICLE," established in 1843—Whole No., 980.

PUBLISHED SEMI-WEEKLY—
Tuesday Morning & Friday Afternoon.

☞Two vacant Lots advertised to-day.

☞The mail train from Harrisburg now arrives at Lewisburg at 6.01 P.M—11 minutes later than formerly.

☞The Philad. & Erie R. R. Co. are constructing a line of telegraph from Williamsport up their line of road to extend eventually to Erie.

☞Conrad Wenck, of Northumberland, was robbed of a pocket-book containing about fifty dollars, at the depot at that place, on Wednesday. He had taken it out to make change, and it was snatched up by some unobserved thief.

☞On Wednesday of this week, a man was brought from the upper end of the county and lodged in jail, charged with committing rape.

☞We direct the attention of our readers to the Nursery advertisement of Messrs. Sheller, Lewis & Hummer. The latter named gentleman has had a long experience in this useful branch of business, and therefore can be depended upon to furnish exactly the kind of trees ordered.

☞The remains of Lieut. Robert S. Maxwell were brought to his home (Muncy) and interred last Tuesday.

☞Our Post Master reports for the quarter ending Dec. 31, 1862, as follows: Total number of letters sent from Lewisburg office, 18,227; increase over preceding quarter, 2,272. Total receipts, exclusive of registered letters, $572.22; increase in finances, $30.62.

☞Hon. J. W. Killinger, has our thanks for a copy of the Patent Office Report (Agricultural) for 1861. Among the patents issued in that year we see the names of Henry Hunsecker, Lewisburg, for a clover separator: James S. Marsh, seed drill and harvester: Jacob Kuhn, Centreville, Snyder Co., for clover huller: Jacob Seebold, New Berlin, threshing and separating machine. Among the donations to the Agricultural department at Washington, is G. R. Nebinger, Lewisburg, Pa., 12 grape roots.

HOME AGAIN.—Dr. Theo. S. Christ is visiting his friends in Lewisburg; he is enjoying fine health. Gen. Curry Kelly, is also at home, recuperating. He carries a ball in his lungs which he received at White Oak Swamp; and at Fredericksburg received a flesh wound in the thigh. He is improving satisfactorily.

☞Harper & Brothers have temporarily suspended the publication of their Pictorial History of the Great Rebellion, in consequence of their inability to procure suitable paper at a reasonable price; the work of preparation, however, continues, and they will resume printing as soon as the difficulty is removed.

ANOTHER FREE GOVERNOR.—On Tuesday, Hon. Wm. Cannon was inaugurated, at Dover, as Governor of Deleware State. His inaugural is in favor of Union and emancipation, and favors the active prosecution of the War to put down the Slaveholders' Rebellion.

TO BELLEFONTE.—The Railway is now finished from Lock Haven to Bellefonte, and will soon be stocked. The route from Bellefonte (or, rather, Milesburg,) to Tyrone, is easily made. And from Milesburg runs a road to the Snow Shoe country. The contemplated road from Lewistown to Bellefonte, would give the central county of the State complete connection with the world.

PUBLIC OPINION.—A Pennsylvanian, in the Union service in Kentucky, writes, 18th inst., as follows:

"What a shame that Buckalew was elected U. S. Senator! However, it is not often that a party is so "perfectly represented." Fernando Wood Vallandigham Seymour Bright Buckalew men may do their worst—like the old negroe's "hoss," Slavery's "eyes is sot."

☞According to the despatches and letters recently captured with Maj. Sanders in Charleston harbor, the following are among the facts revealed: A plan has been concocted by France to cause Texas to secede from the Confederacy, and set up a separate government, greatly to the disgust of the Rebels, who have hitherto so strongly advocated State rights. The French campaign in Mexico, it is thought, is for the accomplishment of this object. .....The Rebel Secretary of War reports to his foreign friends a loss to the Union army of 349,500 men.....An iron clad navy has been contracted for, to be built in England, and paid for in cotton..... They complain of the way their Commissioner Mason, has been treated in England .....They acknowledge that their campaign in Kentucky has been a failure.

☞Of the Anderson Troop, of Philad., which behaved so badly previous to the battle of Murfreesboro, 591 are in the work-house, 103 in prison, and about 224 in camp.

HARRISBURG CORRESPONDENCE.

HARRISBURG, Jan. 19, 1863.

Wm. V. Magrath was elected State Treasurer, to-day, by a strict party vote—two on each side having "paired off," and the remainder all present. There was no crowd—no excitement—comparatively. If Magrath can leave the Treasury in as good condition, and with as much personal popularity, as MOORE, he will be a fortunate man, and it will be a credit to the Stat.

The formation of a skating Club is one of the items of Harrisburg enterprise, today. We have decided cold weather—no snow—considerable running ice, and the people are carting home ice six to eight inches thick.

In Senate, yesterday, Mr. Johnson called up an important "Act relative to the draining of wet and spouty lands," which, on account of some legal objections, was referred to the Judiciary Committee. Some just and feasible mode of draining a fifth or a third of the now boggy or isolated lands of the State, is very desirable, for health and for improvement of farms.

In the House, on motion of Mr. Ritter, a local bill as to printing in a German newspaper in Snyder county, passed at last session, was repealed.

Mr Rex (Dem. of Montgomery Co.,) offered joint resolutions to be at all the expense and trouble of voting to amend the constitution so as to indulge in a mean, unmanly hate of fellow beings to some of whom God has given a little darker skin than others: he would prohibit their emmigration to this "asylum of the oppressed of all the world"—"the land of the free and the home of the brave"—prayer-founded, Quaker-settled Pennsylvania! The brave and magnanimous plan was referred to the General Judiciary committee.

One of the most remarkable men of this State, is Hon. WM M. MEREDITH, now Attorney General. The leading lawyer in Philadelphia for years—once a member of the National Cabinet—now, in his declining years, the humble and industrious pains-taking Mentor of the State Administration. In this time of war and peril, such a man is invaluable; and his labors are truly patriotic. I observe by his Annual Report, that, during the past year, he has collected, by law, over One Hundred and Forty Thousand Dollars of claims of the Commonwealth. He is truly a vigilant, unwearying public officer, worthy of the best days of the Republic.

The daily papers state that many rooms were entered, and members and others robbed, the night after the election of the State Treasurer, when there was another, (but less) importation of Philadelphians to to Harrisburg.

The suit against the editors of the Patriot & Union, for libel against the Post Master at Harrisburg, is discontinued, they paying the costs, and entering upon record their disclaimer, that, on examination they find no ground for the assaults (made by their "local") upon Mr. Bergner or any of his employees in the Post Office.

Of the multitude of business before the Dauphin court, the case of Commonwealth, on charge of conspiracy, against Dr. T. C. Pollock, Dr J. B. Hower, and Wm. Brobst, was continued until April Court.

Rev. Isaac R. Gates has brought up a man for passing a counterfeit bill.

Ex-Canal Commissioner Hopkins—not satisfied with the laurels he won (and the money spent) in his "water-haul" raid upon the Treasury last year—is again trying to restore the Tonnage Tax. Had he and all his party worked, at the right time, they might have headed off that measure: but it is not of much use to "lock the stable after the horse is gone." The proposition of the Revenue Code Commissioners seems to us more feasible—that is, to reduce the Real Estate Tax, and to increase the Taxes upon Railway Companies.

In the House, on motion of a Democrat, a committee was appointed to investigate alleged corruptions in the late election contest by joint ballot. The Republicans moved to amend by inquiring also into the attempts to coerce the Legislature by bringing an armed mob upon them—but the Democrats voted down that obviously fair and proper inquiry, and will go to work to see what they can make out of the thousand rumors afloat. (I happened to know of one man who created quite a "sensation," during the contest for Senator, by saying to the Philad. roughs that he was a Democratic member, going to vote for Cameron: he belonging only to the Third House.) Correspondence of the Star & Chronicle.

From the Vicksburg Expedition.

ON BOARD THE "CITY OF MEMPHIS," Mouth of White River, Jan. 5, 1863.

You will have many accounts of the unsuccessful expedition against Vicksburg ere this reaches you, but to show you that the attempt at its capture was not abandoned without a severe effort and gallant conduct by the troops, I will give you some account of the part taken by the 2nd Division of which I was an eye witness to during most of the fighting.

The expedition consisted of the Memphis and Helena troops, the whole not amounting to 25,000 men, and a majority new troops. Those at Memphis were formed in three divisions, commanded respectively by Generals A. J. Smith, M. L. Smith and Morgan. Embarked on the 20th ult., and without incident worthy of note, arrived on the 26th at Johnson's landing, on the south shore of the Yazoo river twelve miles above its mouth, where we embarked. Next day, with two days rations and sixty rounds of ammunition, we started in high spirits, confident that Vicksburg would soon be numbered with our conquered. Our brigade marched about five miles in a southeast direction, and bivouacked on the main road to Vicksburg, and about one and half miles from the Rebel breastworks, while Gen. Smith, with the 2d brigade, advanced and drove in the pickets, planted the batteries and, at 4 o'clock, opened on the Rebels, keeping up a steady fire til dark.

During the night the batteries were moved forward within good range of the breastworks, and about two hours before daylight opened on them, in order to find the position of their guns. The Rebels replied, and a terrific cannonading was kept up till daylight, our guns completely silencing theirs. Everything remained quiet until sunrise, when Morgan's division on the left, began the fight in earnest, which gradually extended to our front, and the roll of musketry and roar of cannon were indeed awful. Our brigade was then ordered to the front to support the batteries, while the second skirmished. In a few minutes we were in the midst of mortal strife, and in full view of the Rebels' works. Our position was in a low, marshy, heavy timber bottom, extending from the river to a mile in advance of us, where the land rose in high, steep cliffs, extending as far as the eye could carry. Toward the top of these cliffs the Rebel cannon were planted in caves dug in the earth, so as to afford protection to the men. Half way between us and the cliffs were their rifle-pits before which the timber was cut down, forming an almost impenetrable barrier.

Gen. Smith, in attempting to cross the second brigade, was severely wounded, but kept on his horse sometime giving orders, until he became faint, and was carried from the field. A braver man never lived. Gen. Sherman then commanded. The batteries then kept up an incessant fire till dark, the infantry keeping up heavy skirmishing. Monday night the cars were running all night, and we supposed they were getting reenforcements, which was the case. Next day the first brigade was ordered forward. This consists of the 6th and 8th Mo., 119th Ill., and 13th Regulars, and is what Sherman calls his "star brigade." The 6th Mo., started in advance, and in a few minutes arrived at the breastworks, but found it too steep to scale, as in front there was a deep bayou.

Next day no fighting was done, and some of our boys being on picket met the the Rebel pickets half way, and had a talk with them. They admitted a heavy loss, but said we could never take the place. They also said Jeff. Davis had been there a few day before, and made a speech, telling them that the war would be over by next spring. They all appeared anxious to have it settled.

We fell back to our boats, but they did not follow, and not a man was lost in our retreat. The whole fleet is here but its destination I am unable to tell. W. R.

From the Fifth Reserves.

NEAR FREDERICKSBURG, Jan. 3, '63.

My dear Uncle Dentler * * * *

In the late most desperate battle ever fought in Virginia, I received a slight cut across my head, and fell, but soon rose upon my feet, took my gun, went at a double quick into the ranks, and fought with more courage than before. I took it calmly, not suffering myself to fall into a fit of excitement. For three hours, we stood and fought like tigers, the Rebel balls flying about us like a terrible hail storm. When I came out of this bloody battle field, I could not but think that some of you my dear friends at home had been praying for me. I thank you for the good advice you gave me. I know if God is not with us, we can not conquer. I am ready and willing to meet the Rebel fire on the field of battle again: who may fall, next time, I can not tell: perhaps I may be one of them: if so, I would say farewell to you all!

I would not complain about hardships and sufferings. I will bear it all, cheerfully, and if need be will lay down my life for my country.

My dear aunt and cousin. When I came off the field from that battle near Fredericksburg, I was quite hungry—and then I thought of the good things you sent me: may the good Lord bless you for you kindness! Perhaps we may have another big fight, and I hope I may keep my health to take a part in it. Whether I shall or shall not ever return to my dear home, I can not tell. Remember me in your prayers. Give my love to all who may inquire after me. Please send us the Lewisburg Chronicle, for we prize that so highly, and love to read it. I must now stop writing for the present, and soon go on duty. Yours,

JOHN V. HALER, Co. D, 5th Reserves.

On the 20th inst., our State Senator Johnson presented two petitions from citizens of Union county, for a law to legalize taxes assessed in said county for payment of a bounty to volunteers.

Tuesday Morning's News.

Wm. V. M'Grath, the Democratic nominee, was yesterday elected State Treasurer by a strict party vote.

The President has signed the bill relative to the country's finances and for facilitating the payment of soldiers and sailors. He has also sent in a message opposing the issue of any more legal tender notes.

Latest News

NEW YORK, Jan. 22.—Rumors of an extremely important character from the Army of the Potomac reached this city last night, through persons who arrived on the through train from Washington. They may be briefly stated as follows: Burnside has again crossed the Rappahannock, with the army of the Potomac, and a terrible battle is being fought. The report that Lee had detached Longstreet's corps from the rebel army, and sent it to Tennessee, is untrue. The rebel army is intact, and all engaged in opposition to Burnside. One wing of our army—probably Sumner's—had succeeded in flanking the rebel position, and had advanced two miles. Gen. Hooker is mortally wounded.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 21.

Last week, Judge Advocate General Holt laid the record in the case of Gen. Fitz John Porter, which he had spent three days in making up, before the President, who to-day signified his approval of the findings of the court-martial, and ordered the sentence to be carried into execution. The findings are that he is guilty on every one of the charges preferred, and the sentence is that he is dismissed from the service.

Rebel despatches indicate a Federal movement against Wilmington, N. C. They report our forces 60,000 strong, with 20 days' rations. A battle is pending at Kinston. The U. S. steamer Columbia is ashore at Mesenboro' Inlet, and her commander and 12 officers and 28 men surrendered to the Rebels.

LOUISVILLE, Jan. 21.—At the late battle near Murfreesboro, the Federal loss was 1,474 killed, 6,813 wounded, and 2,000 prisoners. The rebel cavalry have left Harpeth Shoals for Franklin.

Our forces captured about 5,000 prisoners at Arkansas Post. [This Fort was built for the defence of Little Rock, the Arkansas Capital; consequently, that city is expected to fall into our hands without much trouble.]

There are now 2,000 Union prisoners in Richmond. The Rebels offer to parole the privates but not the officers.

FOR THE STAR & CHRONICLE.

Union County Teachers' Institute.

It is the earnest desire of the Executive Committee, to have every teacher in Union county present, if possible, at the first session of the Institute, which will be held in Lewisburg, commencing Wednesday morning, the 28th of Jan. 1863, to continue in session three days. Let all make their arrangements to remain to the close of the Institute.

In preparing reports, essays, &c., on the subjects assigned, let them be as much condensed as possible, and yet as comprehensive as the subject will allow. The principle part of the work will devolve upon the teachers themselves. The most experienced will be called on to conduct the different exercises, yet all will have an opportunity to participate in them.

The citizens of Lewisburg, we are told, are making arrangements to give gratuitous entertainment to the members of the Institute. Their intelligence and interest in the cause of education will guarantee to the teachers a welcome reception.

At Northumberland, over one hundred, of the hundred and twenty teachers of the county, attended their county Institute. Almost every house in the town was open for the reception of teachers and friends of education. The sessions were well attended. The citizens manifested a deep interest in the deliberation of the Institute.

Let all concerned try to make our Institute equally interesting and praiseworthy.
