Correspondence of the Star & Chronicle

A Concert among the Colored Folks.

NASHVILLE, Dec. 22, 1862

"The harp of a thousand strings," most hargel upon by Rebellion, is, that "slaves are happy—consequently, slavery is a blessed thing"—an argument not less conclusive than the "cursed be Canaan" of another class. My observation convinces me, that, just now, here, "the slaves are happier than their masters." By some unaccountable means, they have heard of "one Linkum's" Proclamation, to take effect Jan. 1st, 1863, and it somehow interests them, for they have been improving in singing and dancing, while their masters wax in swearing and drinking. Let us go down to the

[illegible]

As we adjourned from our pleasant table to the lawn, Sergeant B. gave the order, "Hist! make room for the auditors," and the audience took position in front.

Performers—OTHELLO, a light colored gentleman, with silvery hair, long legs and arms, and lean like a canoe, seated on a bench, with a rickety old fiddle, cello stick bent like a half-moon, and horse-hair, for a bow, is leader of the orchestra. PLATO, a portly old Philosopher, color as light it would be hazardous for the reputation of somebody to trace back his genealogy, was the Tenor. He and Othello were cousins, "bof raised on dis yer plantation." JUBE, a fancy darkey, buff color, buttercut shirt and pants, African hat and shoes, the pride of the gals, was the "Drummer."

Order. "Now, Uncle, give us the best on the plantation, 'De Tennessee Jubilee,' on the right. Plato, you join the chorus in the center. Jube, you put in the big licks on the flesh movement. And the audience will bring up the reserve. Forward—sing!"

Othello rubs the bow—a chromatic run on the fiddle, a la Gottschalk, brings Plato in position—Jube takes the ring with saucy jerks and twists—and the grand carnival begins.

Firstly, a slow sort of chant, in which Plato keeps time with his foot, and Jube, with a fantastic wriggle, keeps time all over, manifesting great impatience. Next commences a song, introducing all styles of poetry and music—requiem, march, song and dance. Plato's voice grows loud and shrill, touching distinctly and correctly every note made by the fiddle: a finer and sweeter falsetto voice I have never heard. The excitement rages. "Go it, uncle," says the Lieutenant, and Othello's elbow "goes it" a little swifter. "Go it, Plato!" and the philosopher adds another step to his organ. "Go it, Jube—put in the double shuffle"—and Jube turns a somersault and dances on all fours, foaming like a bottle of ale. But old Othello is becoming excited—into the ring he pitches, fiddling, singing, and dancing. "The orchestra" is now "in tantrums"—it is a "regular break down." For ten minutes, the space next me—but all attempts to describe Ethiopian Minstrelsy are utterly useless. We laughed until we were weary, and both "orchestra" and the "Audience" tired out—simmered down. "The oath" having been administered "strictly as a medicine," the performance closed with a vote of thanks to the actors.

For general information, I would state that this "oath" is quite popular in the Western army, and is no longer confined in its medicinal use to the Mackeral Brigade, No. 2. The Sanitary Commissioners have recommended its use in place of surgical operations, but that is very strongly opposed by the army corps of enterprising young surgeons, who regret that the soldiers have not four legs instead of two, the supply of limbs being too small.

This Barley Dance, I have no doubt, will convince the fanatics of the blessedness of the Southern institution of human slavery and all its concomitants, and set the "everlasting nigger question" for ever at rest.

As a matter of history, I may state, that Othello, Plato, and Jube are reported to have joined the army of Gen. Rosecrans, and are giving Concerts for the benefit of their Rebel masters—but the last item is considered by some as a "grape vine" of the largest growth.

NASHVILLE.

A chap out west, named Barnes, who had made a speech at a war meeting, was criticised by the village paper, which said it was a very patriotic address, but the speaking "slandered Lindley Murray awfully." The next day Barnes wrote a note to the editor, declaring he never knew such a man as Lindley Murray, and therefore could not have slandered him. Mrs. Barnes, the wife, being at a tea party, also took up the cudgel for her husband, when the matter was discussed, by declaring that "Murray began it, by abusing her husband, and got as good as he gave."

Patent medicine manufacturers are very fond of producing certificates attesting the merits of their medicines. Here is one that will pass:

"Dear Doctor—I will be one hundred and seventy-five years old next October. For ninety-four years, I have been an invalid, unable to move except when stirred by a lever. But a year ago I heard of the Granicular Syrup. I bought a bottle, took it the same, and found myself a new man. I can now run twelve miles and a half in an hour, and throw nineteen somersets without stopping."

The London Times some weeks since admitted that the cotton mills dare not make such fuss the war should cease, and leaving with peace reduced prices, bankrupt them—for that it is not war but peace they fear.

BEST WORK FOR CANVASSING AGENTS

Harper's Pictorial History
OF THE
GREAT REBELLION
IN THE UNITED STATES.

MESSRS. HARPER & BROTHERS have commenced the issue, in Numbers, of a Complete History of the Great Rebellion in the U.S. The work has been for many months in course of preparation, by a writer every way qualified for the task.

The INSURRECTION contains a clear account of the formation of the Confederacy of the States; the formation and adoption of the Constitution of the United States, and the establishment of the National Government; the origin, development, and progress of the doctrines of Nullification and Secession, and the various phases which they assumed, until the final culmination in the Great Rebellion.

The HISTORY comprises an account, drawn from the most authentic sources, of the Events of the War; intrigues of the Southern leaders at home and abroad; the gradual defection of one section; the great Uprising of the People for the maintenance of the National Life and Existence; the rapid creation of an immense Army and Navy; Battles by Land and Sea.

The ILLUSTRATIONS comprise Portraits of those who have borne a prominent part in the struggle; Maps of different localities; Plans of leading actions; Views of scenes of interest, and of the most important Battles. These Illustrations are mostly from drawings taken on the spot, by artists deputed for that purpose, to accompany every division of our Army and Navy.

Every facility at the command of the Publishers has been employed in the preparation and execution of this work; and they confidently believe that it will form the most trustworthy and valuable history which can be prepared of THE GREAT STRUGGLE FOR THE AMERICAN UNION.

Mode and Terms of Publication.

The work will be issued in Numbers, consisting of 24 pages of the size of "Harper's Weekly," printed from clear type, upon fine paper, and will probably be completed in about Twenty Numbers.

The Numbers will be issued at intervals, if possible, of about three or four weeks.

The Price of each Number, which contains matter equivalent to an ordinary volume, will be Twenty-five Cents.

The Illustrations in each Number are alone worth the price asked. Men out of employment, especially SICK OR DISABLED SOLDIERS, can find no other work so sure of ready sale and good profits. For further particulars, apply to the Publishers.

THE DAY SCHOOL BELL.

A New Singing Book for day schools, called the Day School Bell, is now ready. It contains about [illegible] pieces, by such Composers as Mrs. C. Carter, Mrs. Hemans, Mrs. Sigourney, Whittier, Longfellow, Bryant, Holmes, Carleton, Dr. Muhlenberg, and Chas. Mackay, many of them written expressly for this work. The Exercises are very full and progressive, that ordinary teachers will find themselves entirely competent to instruct even young scholars to sing correctly and scientifically, while the pieces are of such a character as to please the children, and render the practice of singing a delight instead of a task. The Exercises and pieces are so arranged that the book can be used with great success in mixed schools, or in those composed entirely of boys or girls. The Exercises are so graded as to be adapted to all who may have use for a book of the kind, from the primary class to the High School. A few examples of the Elements, Tunes, and Songs are given in a circular, and can be had gratis. It is compiled by HORACE WATERS, author of "Calkhalt School Bells." Nos. 1 and 2, which have had the enormous sale of [illegible] copies, are now published. Paper cover, 25 cents, $18 per 100, bound, 30 cents, $25 per 100; cloth bound, embossed, gilt, 40 cents, $35 per 100. Specimen copies furnished at the following rates: Paper cover, 20 cents; bound, 30 cents; cloth bound, embossed, gilt, 40 cents. Sent by mail, postage free, on receipt of price.
