[This song will not be likely to please your Secession neighbors, (if you are so unfortunate as to have any,) but, as sar- Jan... casm is often more effective than argument, it may help to shut their mouths. At all events, it is a genuine and earnest gush of patriotic feeling, and the music is Feb. bright and sparkling. A novel effect is produced in the chorus, where the laugh comes in.]

Said Beauregard to Lee and Jeff, "These Yankee sons of thunder Will scatter us from right to left, Or cause us to knock under, Unless we find some other way Of meeting their advances;

We've made up faces now so long, They do not mind our glances. Chorus-Ha, ha! ha! ha! ha! ha! ha! ha! They do not-ha, ha! ha! ha! ha!

They do not mind our glances." "O true," said Jeff, "I know it well-How shall we change our game, sir?" "O dear !" said Lee, "I can not tell." Quoth Beau, "We'll call em names, sir. "That's good, 'said Jeff, 'you've hit it Beau." Cried Lee, "That's what's the matter, "We'll call them 'Abolitionists,'

And then you'll see them scatter." They rubbed their traitor hands in glee, And issued stringent orders, . Signed by the polite Beauregard,

That henceforth, through their borders The only word that should be used To name the Yankee soldier, Should be "an Abolitionist," And then they strutted bolder.

They really thought that calling names Had strengthened their position; Then, all their sneaking tools up North Ran, screaming "Aboution!" But soon we made the traitors know

'Twas something else the matter : The more they "Abolition" howled, The more we did n't scatter!

We'll take the name you give us, Beau ! We mean to make it true, sir; We'll first abolish Slav'ry's power, And then abolish you sir ! You thought we'd guard your niggers, Jeff

And keep them raising corn, sir, To feed the traitor hordes you lead-We'll do it-in a horn, sir. We'll free your blacks and fight your whites,

And dig, for traitors, graves sir, Until there's not, in all the land, A traitor or a slave, sir.

When that is done, we'll home return-The home to us so dear, sir-And soundly kick and cuff the curs Now barking in our rear, sir.

an early period, soccumb to its healing and life-giving properties.

For ages has the treatment of pulmonary diseases exception of the attention of the scientific of the medical world, but none acquired more eminence in his treatment of these diseases, than the celebrated Prussian III. Hoofmad, the originator of the Balsamic Cordial. His life was devoted to the predoction of remelies that would stand unrivaled. How well he has succeeded, the American people are able to judge; and we positively assert, that too preparations that have ever been placed before them, have conferred the same amount of benefits on authoring humanity, or have elicited so many commendations from all classes of society, as the remedies of Hoofmad, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson & Co., of Philadelphia.

The Cordial is designed for a class of diseases more general and more fatal than any other to which the people of this country are subject—those springing from a slight cold. That emment authority, Dr. Bell, says: "I will not say that Colds are to our inhabitants what the Plague and Yellow Fever are to those of other countries; but I can aver confidently that they usher in disease of greater completity and mortality than these latter.
