Tory Growls. Rebel Shrieks! Copperhead Bites!

[From early edition of Marshall's Life of Washington, Vol. V.]
[On page 648, speaking of Jay's Treaty with England, approved by President WASHINGTON, and the "abominable misrepresentations" which "affrighted misinformed minds" respecting it, the revered Chief Justice MARSHALL says:]

"Such hold had the President taken of the affections of the people, that even his enemies had deemed it generally necessary to preserve, with regard to him, external marks of decency and respect. Previous to the mission of Mr. Jay, charges against the chief magistrate, though frequently insinuated, had seldom been directly made. That mission usually obscured towards him, and the ratification of the treaty brought into open view sensations which had long been ill concealed. With equal virulence, the military and political character of the President was attacked, and he was ascribed to be totally destitute of merit either as a soldier or a statesman. The columns with which he was assailed, were not confined to his public conduct; even his qualities as a man were the subjects of detraction. That he had violated the Constitution in negotiating a treaty without the previous advice of the Senate, and in embracing within that treaty subjects belonging exclusively to the Legislature, was openly maintained, for which an impeachment was publicly suggested; and that he had drawn from the treasury for his private use more than the salary annexed to his office, was unobscuredly asserted. This last allegation was said to be supported by extracts from the treasury accounts which had been laid before the Legislature, and was maintained with the most persevering industry. Through the secretary of the treasury denied that the appropriations made by the Legislature had been exceeded, the atrocious charge was still confidently repeated; and the few who could trumpet in any spot which might tarnish the laurels of Washington's fame, selected themselves on the prospect of obtaining a victory over the reputation of a patriot, to whose single influence they ascribed the failure of their political plans."

[Upon retiring from the Presidency, Congress passed resolutions complimentary to Gen. Washington. Opposing this expression of approval, a Member of Congress named Giles, spoke upon the floor, (see p. 722, &c.) as follows:]

"With respect to the wisdom and firmness of the President, he differed in opinion. He had not that grateful conviction there mentioned, and if he was to come there and express it, he should prove an inconsistent character. He should not go into a lengthy discussion on this point, but, if they turned their eyes to our foreign relations, here would be found no reason to exult in the wisdom and firmness of the administration. He believed, on the contrary, that it was from a want of wisdom and firmness that we were brought into our present critical situation. He was one of those citizens who did not regret the President's retiring from office. He believed there were a thousand men in the United States who were capable of filling the Presidential chair as well as it had been filled heretofore. He wished the President as good happiness as any man; and, hoping he would retire, he could not express any regrets at the event. He, for his part, retained the same opinions that he had always done with respect to those measures, nor should any influence under heaven prevent him from expressing that opinion—an opinion in which he was confident, ere long, all America would concur."

Thus much for Giles and those other assailants of WASHINGTON. What is their comparative rank in history? Giles & Co. are remembered only for their vain assaults upon Washington—like to "flies preserved in amber!"

Mr. Foote was willing that the preamble and resolution should be tabled, with the understanding that it would indicate the unqualified contempt of the House for Abraham Lincoln and his Message and Proclamation alluded to.

Mr. Miles said there would be misunderstanding about that.

The motion was unanimously adopted.

Similar resolutions offered by Mr. Miller, of Virginia, went the same way.

Very brave—very brave! But their knees smote together, no doubt, as they tried in efforts to fud big swelling words to comfort fainting hearts. How vivid the contrast to the day when the Rebel Congress first received President Lincoln's call for 75,000 volunteers to put down the Rebellion! That call was read to them, and was "answered by shouts of derision and laughter." They thought nobody would respond to his call, and that they would have everything their own way. Now, Lincoln commands a million of tried warriors, and the late proud Confederacy is crumbling into dishonored, blood-stained ruins. The Rebels' laugh is changing to the sardonic cry of despair and death!

public interests, or interrupt, for a moment, that cordial co-operation between our State and National Governments, so necessary in this crisis. It is true, some time must yet elapse before my presence in Harrisburg is actually required, yet, as I have no hope of release by general exchange, the Richmond authorities, I am convinced, will retain me as long as possible, because I am a Senator, and my vote important.

Under the circumstances, it behooves me to do what I can to relieve the difficulty likely to result from my continued imprisonment. I am sure you will not dub me when I confess it would be much more acceptable to my tastes and feelings, to spend the months of the coming winter in active legislation in our Senate Chamber, than to languish within the gloomy walls of a Southern prison. My present situation places the less agreeable alternative in prospect, and I see but one solution to the difficulty. Other and greater interests are involved in this matter, than my personal comfort and private inclinations. My health, my life, are nothing to the success of those great principles I was elected to represent. The good people of my district are chiefly interested in this matter, and my duty to them in the premises has given me many an hour of anxious soliloquy in this weary prison life. I can not now in any way consult with them. They should, however, not at this time go unrepresented. Their generous confidence was but recently given me, and they will, I trust, give the approval of their voice to the step I now take, and select as my successor one who will be as faithful to their interests as I, at least, desired to be. Be pleased, therefore, to accept my resignation as a Senator from the Twenty-first Senatorial District. Be kind enough to convey to my brother Senators, assurances of respect and esteem. Tell them, "though cast down, I am not dismayed. Though in bonds, I am full of hope." Tell them my prayer and trust is that no word or deed may go out of the councils of your Senate to weaken the arm or make faint the heart of those brave soldiers of the Union who are bearing in the field to a sure and triumphant success the greatest struggle in history.

Accept, my dear sir, my kindest wishes for your good health and future prosperity. I am yours, truly,
HARRY WAITER.

Dr. Christ writes from Cincinnati, that his regiment, (the 45th Pa.) together with all the Pa. regiments in the 9th Army Corps, arrived at that place, last week, and will proceed to Harrisburg as soon as paid off, which will require several days. The boys, including Frank Sterner, who was wounded, are all well.

In the course of a few days, we are requested to publish the names and amounts of all subscribers to the Lewisburg Military Bounty Fund—also the names of enrolled men who have declined paying anything to the Fund. The books are open until Saturday evening, with E. C. Wolfe and J. B. McLaughlin. Payments to be made to J. B. McLaughlin, at the Bank, day-time—and at J. H. Goodman's store, evenings.

Our people are up, and our quota (48) will be provided for. New Berlin and Jackson have sent off their first quota. Kelly Twp. is at work. Roll on the ball, and gallant little Union will be in the van as usual.

We learn that the Cops are seeking to break the force of Frank Montgomery's fun by saying that he is a Colonel in the Army, and pay. This is false; he is only a militia "Colonel," and having lost all his property in his flight from Reidsville, lives by the compensation paid him for his specimens of Southern fun and chivalry.

Union County Court a week from next Monday. One or two Clubs for the Star & Chronicle, expire that week—renew, if you desire it. As we see Mr. Miller is this week before the Supreme Court in Philad. a full court may be expected.

Young men fond of adventure have a chance now to gratify their desire. Gen. Burnside asks for 50,000 men to fill his Corps, which is to be sent on some expedition not yet made public, but it is supposed to be on the water; and those wishing to test the realities of "a life on the ocean wave," had best hand in their names to Lieut. Beale.

More Land Sales in the Union County Star & Lewisburg Chronicle, to-day.

Correspondents will be attended to on our next issue.

HALF A MILLION IN ALL—As the Rebels are cutting out all their arms-bearing men, with the energy of despair, for a last frenzied blow, the President has thought proper to add two hundred thousand men to the previous call of three hundred thousand—making half a million in all. This will make the Potomac and the Cumberland army each able to meet the Rebels in any force they may show at any point. The movement seems to be approved as timely and judicious—strike one more blow at the reeling tyrant, and his overthrow seems certain. Let the force be large enough so that there need be no lack—no mistake.

We received a two dollar bill, a day or two ago, endorsed as follows: "The last two dollars I've got in the world; but must have a drink." Poor fool!

Notwithstanding our near three years of war, it is often remarked that the Rebels' Sales were never so low as they now are.

Recruiting Officer for the 9th Army Corps. Lewisburg, Feb 2, 1864. Lieut. J. F. BEALE.

Ninth Army Corps.
AUTHORITY having been given to the undersigned to recruit the Ninth Army Corps to fifty thousand men for special service, to be hereafter designated by the War Department, he earnestly appeals to the citizens of Pennsylvania to assist in filling up the following veteran regiments of this Corps belonging to their State: The 45th, 48th, 50th, 51st and 100th, also Durrell's Battery.

He calls upon all having the good of the country and the triumph of our arms at heart, to use every effort to help on this work by voting large bounties for the respective Companies, by recruiting, by securing recruiting officers and by such other means as an ardent patriotism may suggest. In no place can volunteers be so useful to the cause and so soon become good soldiers as in the ranks of veteran organizations under experienced officers. The undersigned has every hope that the loyal people of Pennsylvania will send those regiments back to the field with full ranks to bear a proud part in the closing scenes of this glorious war.
