Why am I so weak and weary? See how faint my heated breath; All around to me seems darkness-Tell me, comrades, is this death? Ah! how well I know your answer; To my fate I meekly bow, If you'll only tell me truly Who will care for mother now!

CHORUS. Soon with angels I'll be marching. With bright laurels on my brow; I have for my country fallen, Who will care for mother now?

Who will comfort her in sorrow? Who will dry the falling tear? Gently smooth her wrinkled forchead? Who will whisper words of cheer? Even now I think I see her, Kneeling, praying for me now; Can I leave her in her anguish?

Who will care for mother now?

Give my knapsack for a pillow, Lat my mantle be the sky, Hasten, comrades, to the battle, I will like a soldier die. Soon with angels I'll be marching With bright laurels on my brow, I have for my country fallen-Who will care for mother now?

ANSWER.

Sleep, noble hero, let not one fear Steal o'er thy brave heart as death draws

For in her sorrow your mother will find True hearts around her, loving and kind; Though you have left her weeping for you, Kind friends are near her, constant and true.

They'll surely cheer her when you are

They will not see her mourning alone. CHORUS.

Friends will be near her, angels will come, To guard and cheer her, when you are Angels will guard her both night and day,

Gently they'll lead her up through the way; Though friends forsake her, they will be there. Ready to save her from dark despair. Should angols leave her yet there is One Who will receive her when all are gone; One who will guide her to that home Where no sorrow ever can come.

An Affecting Incident.

A correspondent of the St. Louis Democrat gives his experience in a trip by stage from Sedalia to Springfield, Ma, during the recent cold term. The distance one hundred and twenty six miles, and the ordinary time thirty-six hours. The trip occupied fifty hours. When the couch SOFAS, LOUNGES, latest patterns, left Sedalia the thermometer stood at fourteen degrees below z ro. The sufferings of passengers, drivers and animals were the trip :

What are its symptoms?

It is usually begins with a short, dry cough, which soon becomes babitant, but for some time nothing is raised except a fredsy soccar. The breathing is somewhat different and upon slight exercise much harried. A sense of tightness and upon elight exercise much harried. A sense of tightness and opportunes at the chest is often fett. As the disease advances, the patient becomes thin in flesh, is afflicted with loss of appetite, great langur, incidence, and dejection of spirits; may continue in this state for a considerable length of time; and is very readily affected by slight exposure or fatigus. If these occur, the cough becomes more troublesome, and is attended with expertoration, which is most copious and free early in the mortaling. It is sometimes streaked with blood. At this stage, night sweats assaily set in and in some cases a profuse bleeding of the longs may also occur. Fain in some part of the cheet is fair, and often a lift-cally of iging upon one or the other side without setter fits of caughing or a sense of fullness or suffication.
