ARMS!

To Arms again!

The danger of invasion, against which our Government warned us, was not groundless, and men are needed!

Last Thursday night, the advance of the Robel army was met at Frederick, and, after three attempts to enter it was gallantly driven back to the shelter of the mountain between that city and Hagerstown. On Friday and Saturday, however, the Rebel force in full, (concealed before) came on, driving our men before them, and taking the way towards Baltimore.
