

THE GRAVE.

"Earth to earth, and dust to dust," Here the evil and the just, Here the fruitful and the old, Here the fearful and the bold, Here the matron and the maid, In one silent bed are laid; Here the vassal and the king, Side by side lie withering; Here the sword and scepter rest— Earth to earth, and dust to dust!

Age on age shall roll along, O'er this pale and nightly throng, Those that wept then, those that weep, All shall with these sleepers sleep— Brothers, sisters, of the worm, Summer's sun, or winter's storm, Song of peace or battle's roar, "Ne'er shall break their slumbers more." Death shall keep his sullen trust— Earth to earth, and dust to dust!

From Co. D, 150th P. V. FORT TILTON, Near Petersburg, Va., August 24, 1861.

MR. EDITOR:—We had quite a time here on the 30th of July: I, A. M., we were awakened and ordered to take down tents preparatory to a siege which was to commence by blowing up a fort in front of the Ninth Corps, at S. A. M. But by some reason it was put off until 4 1/2 A. M. The first we heard was a low, rumbling sound, and in looking up that way we could see human beings, timber, dirt, &c., ascending into the air, the fort being only one-half mile from us and in plain sight. Immediately after the explosion, the artillery from one end of the line to the other, began such cannonading as has not been heard since the siege of Vicksburg. The Rebs to the left of the Jerusalem Plank Road did not fire. To the right of it and near the fort that was blown up, they kept up a slow fire by sharpshooters. But our Reg't (121st and 142d) were acting as sharpshooters, and when one of them showed his head several bullets were sent at him. Fort Tilton's armament consists of six 32 pounders, four 12 pounders, four 10 pound rifs cannon. There are embrasures for sixteen guns in all. Immediately after the explosion, it was followed by a charge by the 9th corps. They carried the works, took some prisoners, and some artillery. The enemy made three charges on the 9th corps, and in the third succeeded in driving our boys back to where they started. This took place about 3 P. M. The negroes were engaged in the fight. Our loss was considerable. That of the enemy more than ours. The dead and wounded were left on the field. Sunday morning, Burnside sent in a flag of truce asking leave to remove the wounded and bury the dead that lay between the lines. It was not granted until Monday morning. All this time, our wounded lay in the scorching sun, which was so hot that we could hardly stand it without being wounded. In this time the Rebs had given our white men water, but none to the wounded blacks. They made the blacks that they had taken prisoner bury our white soldiers that lay between their breastworks, and carry all the blacks over in front of them and between the two lines and lay them all in a row, for our boys to bury.

It has been very quiet here since the fight, the Rebs not daring to open on us for fear of our rifled 32 pounders. There was not one man wounded in our Brigade as I can learn. It is supposed that they are undermining the fort that we are in, but measures are being taken to foil this attempt. Florida men continue to come in whenever they are on picket. Enclosed you will find a note sent me by one of the Florida boys. The paymaster is here and is paying off our Brigade to-day. It makes us feel good to see a drawback, having seen nothing but graybacks for some time.

[The following is a copy of the note from a Rebel to a Yankee:] Mr. Yank: Dear Friend—I write you this to let you know that we have orders prohibiting our trading or communicating in any way with you, but in this hard case will find top pieces of Tobacco that I wish to exchange for a good canteen and haversack; if you wish to exchange just bring them half way and leave them and I will get them. Your Friend, E. M.

A Wise Private. A soldier in the 30th Maine had on the allowance roll $10 per month to be deposited in a Portland Bank, leaving $3 per month for his personal use. At the end of twenty months, he had $200 in Bank, and his banknotes due amounting to $750. By express, he sent home $250, and has also expended $10 or $50 in presents. Of his $3 per month, all was not used, and by taking care of and not abusing clothes he drew money for clothing &c. undraw. At the close of service he will have a good start in life. We commend this example to all our soldier boys and men. Good habits and thoughtful management are the secrets of his success. Tobacco nor liquor nor any other useless or injurious habit stole away all his income.

EXTORTION THE RULING PASSION OF THE HOUR.—Prices rule supremely high, and are on the ascending scale. Without shame, conscience or remorse, everybody (the printer excepted) asks three, four and five prices for every article in the market, with the sublimated assurance that they do not care to sell even at that.

THE REASON.—The Copperhead persuasion seem to have a regard for fitu-a-of things. They have illustrated this, in a striking manner, by changing the time for holding their National Convention from the 4th of July, the birthday of American Independence, to the 29th of August, the birthday of Benedict Arnold, the traitor.
