WEDNESDAY MORNING JAN. 23.

The Use and Abuse of Sunlight.

(From the Edinburgh Quarterly Review.)

ADJUSTMENT OF LIGHT.

Very few give any attention to this subject until warned by evidences of the failure of eyesight. This warning is often practically too late; light may be deficient, or may be excessive in quantity. The introduction of gas into our private houses has undoubtedly produced injury to the vision on account of its extreme brilliancy, but oftener far on account of its misapplication and mismanagement. The argand burner furnishes light of as good a quality, and a flame as steady, as can be procured in any way. If properly shaded and guarded, no better light need be desired. Several of our eminent jurists, who have much experience in night work, prefer sperm or wax candles. There is no doubt that great improvements will yet be introduced, so that the gas flame will be made to furnish a light more like the white light of day, and more steady. It must of necessity be concentrated, and for this reason be less excellent than daylight; besides, it lacks the chromatic constituents of the light which the sun supplies.

THE BEDROOM.

The window of the bedroom should not look toward the rising sun. Unless designing to rise before the sun is up, the bedroom window looking toward the east should be carefully protected by a shutter or blind. We have a case of serious opthalmia now under our care, which owed its origin to a short exposure to sunlight before rising in the morning. Such cases are not unfrequent. For the same reason, namely, that the pupil is in a dilated condition, and therefore unprepared for the accession of light, evil results have occurred from gazing at the moon or at an eclipse, viewing panoramas, and other similar exposures.

SHADES FOR GAS.

When gas is used it should never be unshaded. The shade should be diaphanous; it should never be made of thick paper, or tin, or any opaque substance, nor should it ever be lined with a reflecting material.

We have suggested a shade of "blue barege," or "tissue," which being cut of the proper shape, it can be readily drawn over the ordinary wire frame, which is sold in the shops, to sustain the common paper shade. This contrivance is employed and gives much satisfaction in several of our seminaries of learning.

BAD HABITS.

Looking at panoramas, fireworks, lightning, reading by the light of the moon or at twilight, the use of the telescope or the microscope, are all dangerous modes of employing the eyes. On this subject we might say much if space afforded. There are two methods of injuring the eye by the false direction of light, which we must pause to mention; that is, reading by a side light, or while lying in bed. The universality of the first habit has led to the frequent observation among oculists that the left eye is most apt to be diseased. The evil effects of the latter are illustrated in the case of a patient who has applied to us while writing this page. He has asthenopia in the left eye, caused by reading in bed while lying upon his right side. It is true the light should come over the left shoulder, but it should fall from above, and the head should be erect.

LIGHTS IN CHURCHES.

We do not know of a better place than this to enter our protest against the method of lighting churches. We are often told, by our patients that it takes half the week to recover from the effects of the gas light on Sabbath evening. The subject of deranged vision must enter the church, after having passed through darkness from his own lighted house, to meet a glaring, dazzling light wherever he turns his eyes. If he would look at the preacher he must endure the ordeal of facing argand burners, or gas jets, shining directly in his eyes. Surely on this subject there is too little consideration.

Philip of Spain.

The following extract from Mr. Motley's new volume, descriptive of Philip II, we find in the London Athenæum:

"A small, dull, elderly, imperfectly-educated, patient, plodding invalid, with white hair and protruding under-jaw, and dreary visage, was sitting day after day, seldom speaking, never smiling, seven or eight hours out of every twenty-four, at a writing table covered with heaps of interminable despatches, in a cabinet far away beyond the seas and mountains, in the very heart of Spain. A clerk or two, noiselessly opening and shutting the door from time to time, fetching fresh bundles of letters and taken away others—all written and composed by secretaries, or high functionaries—and all to be scrawled over in the margin by the diligent old man in a big schoolboy's hand and style—if ever schoolboy, even in the sixteenth century, could write so illegibly or express himself so awkwardly; couriers in the court-yard arriving from or departing for the uttermost parts of earth—Asia, Africa, America, Europe—to fetch and carry these interminable epistles—all contained the irresponsible commands of this one individual, and were freighted with the doom and destiny of countless millions of the world's inhabitants—such was the system of government against which the Netherlands had protested and revolted. It was a system under which their fields had been made desolate, their cities harassed and pillaged, their men hanged, burned, drowned, or buried to places, and their women subjected to every outrage; and to put an end to which they had been devoting their treasure and their blood for nearly the length of one generation. It was a system, too, which, among other results, had just brought about the death of the foremost statesman in Europe, and had nearly effected simultaneously the murder of the most eminent sovereign in the world. The illustrious Philip, safe and tranquil in the depths of the Escorial, saying his prayers three times a day with exemplary regularity, had just sent three bullets through the body of William the Silent at his dining-room door in Delft. Invisible as the Grand Lama of Thibet, clothed with power as extensive and absolute as had ever been wielded by the most imperial Cæsar.

SAVE THE PIECES!

ECONOMY! DISPATCH!

☞ "A Stitch in Time!" ☜

As accidents will happen, even in well-regulated families, it is very desirable to have some cheap and convenient way for repairing Furniture, Toys, Crockery, etc

Spalding's Prepared Glue

meets all such emergencies, and no household can afford to be without it. It is always ready, and up to the sticking point. There is no longer a necessity for limping chairs, splintered veneers, headless dolls, and broken cradles. It is just the article for cane, shell, and other ornamental work, so popular with ladies of refinement and taste.

This admirable preparation is used cold, being chemically held in solution, and possessing all the valuable qualities of the best 'cabinet-makers' Glue. It may be used in the place of ordinary mucilage, being vastly more adhesive.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

A compound remedy, designed to be the most effectual Alterative that can be made. It is a concentrated extract of Para Sarsaparilla, so combined with other substances of still greater alterative power as to afford an effective antidote for the diseases Sarsaparilla is reputed to cure. It is believed that such a remedy is wanted by those who suffer from Strumous complaints, and that one which will accomplish their cure must prove of immense service to this large class of our afflicted fellow-citizens. How completely this compound will do it has been proven by experiment on many of the worst cases to be found of the following complaints:—

SCROFULA AND SCROFULOUS COMPLAINTS, ERUPTIONS AND RUPTIVE DISEASES, ULCERS, PIMPLES, BLOTCHES, TUMORS, SALT RHEUM, SCALD HEAD, SYPHILIS AND SYPHILITIC AFFECTIONS, MERCURIAL DISEASE, DROPSY, NEURALGIA OR TIC DOULOUREUX, DEBILITY, DYSPEPSIA AND INDIGESTION, ST. ANTHONY'S FIRE, OR ST. ANTHONY'S FIRE, and indeed the whole class of complaints arising from IMPURITY OF THE BLOOD.

This compound will be found a great promoter of health, when taken in the spring, to expel the foul humors which, if left in the blood at that season of the year. By the timely expulsion of them many rankling disorders are stopped in the bud. Multitudes can, by the aid of this remedy, spare themselves from the endurance of foul eruptions and ulcerous sores, through which the system will strive to rid itself of corruptions, if not assisted to do this through the natural channels of the body by an alterative medicine. Cleanse out the vitiated blood whenever you find it obstructed or bursting through the skin in pimples, eruptions, or sores; cleanse it when you find it is obstructed and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it whenever it is foul, and your feelings will tell you when. Even where no particular disorder is felt, people enjoy better health, and live longer, for cleansing the blood. Keep the blood healthy, and all is well; but with this pabulum of life disordered, there can be no lasting health. Sooner or later something must go wrong, and the great machinery of life is disordered or overthrown.

Sarsaparilla has, and deserves much, the reputation of accomplishing these ends. But the world has been egregiously deceived by preparations of it, partly because the dose alone has not all the virtue that is claimed for it, but more because many preparations, pretending to be concentrated extracts of it, contain but little of the virtue of Sarsaparilla, or any fluid else.

During long years the public have been misled by large bottles, pretending to give a quart of Extract of Sarsaparilla for one dollar. Most of these have been frauds upon the sick, for they not only contain little, if any, Sarsaparilla, but often no curative properties whatever.

Hence, bitter and painful disappointment has followed the use of the various extracts of Sarsaparilla which flood the market, until the name itself is justly despised, and has become a synonyme with imposition and cheat. In order to call this compound Sarsaparilla, and intend to supply such a remedy as shall rescue the name from the load of obloquy which rests upon it. And we think we have ground for believing it has virtues which no Sarsaparilla or the ordinary run of the diseases it is intended to cure. In order to secure their complete eradication from the system, the remedy should be judiciously taken according to directions on the bottle.

PROF. WOOD'S Restorative Cordial AND BLOOD RENOVATOR

IS PRECISELY WHAT IT'S NAME INDICATES— for while pleasant to the taste, it is revivifying, exhilarating and strengthening to the vital power. It acts directly, dissipates and removes the blood in all its original purity, and thus restores and preserves the system invulnerable to attacks of disease. It is the only preparation ever offered to the world in a popular form so as to be within the reach of all, that can be depended on as a thorough and effectual blood purifier, and at the same time a powerful tonic, and yet so perfectly adapted as to do not to be over-stimulating
