PITTSBURGH:

TUESDAY MORNING, MARCH 5, 1861.

APOLOGETIC.

In the haste in which the Inaugural Address was set up for yesterday's Evening Gazette several errors occurred, which in many instances destroyed the meaning of whole sentences. We this morning give a more correct copy of this interesting document. There are, however, still some inaccuracies which must, in a measure, be attributed to the haste with which it was telegraphed. When the reader is informed that this address was sent over the wires and put in type in less than two hours from the time of its delivery in Washington, they will readily excuse the printers and the telegraphic operators for the errors that may fall under his notice.

MR. LINCOLN'S INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

It is many years since we have had occasion to commend a message or address emanating from the occupant of the White House at Washington. We therefore the more readily express our approval of the manly and straightforward position assumed by the gentleman who has just entered on the Presidential duties, and who, for the next four years, should his life be spared, will have committed to him the duty of "seeing the laws faithfully executed." We feel assured, from a perusal of his inaugural address, that the people of the United States will find in Abraham Lincoln a Chief Magistrate worthy of their respect and esteem, and one whom, are his term of office shall expire, they will support with patriotic earnestness and unanimity.

It will be observed that Mr. Lincoln does not recognize the abominable doctrine of secession, but has announced his determination to administer the laws according to the requirements of his oath. If traitors oppose the measures of government, on their heads will rest the responsibility of the bloodshed which will follow their rebellious proceedings. While he has avowed his determination to protect the rights of all the states, and is willing that the people shall express their opinion as to the feasibility of amending the Constitution, he has resolved neither to treat nor temper with traitors. Had Mr. Buchanan pursued this noble course months ago, or at any period of his administration, the miserable league at Montgomery would not now have a nominal existence.

The people of the country will now feel that they have a government, and a man at its head upon whom they can rely. There is no bravado, no irritating threats—nothing, in short, to which the most conservative can take exception; and yet no language could more distinctly and emphatically declare his purpose, faithfully to execute the laws, and maintain the Union in its integrity, until released from that duty by the American people in their untrammeled sovereignty.

In the whole document there is not a sentence of dubious or doubtful meaning. Mr. Lincoln does not palter with either his friends or his antagonists in a double sense. Every word goes straight to the mark; and he announces his own high and solemn duties in language at once so firm, so mild, so kind and paternal, that none can doubt his purpose, or do what he says.

No one can read this Inaugural without being reminded of Jackson's celebrated proclamation against the nullification movement in 1832. It is no imitation of that grand State paper, yet it is like it in its lofty dignity, in its unanswerable arguments, and in its solemn appeals to the patriotism of the country. Jackson said he would hang traitors, and he did hang them; may we not hope that a like result will follow the firm utterance of the President now? The crisis now is tenfold more fearful than was that of 1832; but the great heart of the nation is yet sound, the people are ready to stand by its chief the moment they discover that he is a man in whose wisdom, courage, and integrity they can confide, and this address will satisfy them of that fact.

At Trenton Mr. Lincoln but foreshadowed his inaugural when he said that it would be necessary to plant his foot firmly. He has so planted it. He asked his auditors there if they would stand by him. "We will, we will!" was the full-hearted response; so now let the same response roll like the voice of many waters from the busy city, and from the secluded homes of our quiet villages, hamlets, farms, mines, and every place where freemen are found, "We will, we will!"

What will strike the reader most in this document is its mild and conciliatory tone, its entire freedom from passion, and the total absence of that partisan spirit that so often disfigures and disgraces public documents. He leaves no room for cavil; for no man who is true to the Union, and who wishes to see the government maintained, could have wished that he had said one word less than he has said, or object against his doing all that he says he will do.

President Lincoln's Inaugural Address.

Fellow-Citizens of the United States:

In compliance with a custom as old as the government itself, I appear before you to address you briefly and to take, in your presence, the oath prescribed by the Constitution of the United States to be taken by the President before he enters on the execution of his office. I do not consider it necessary at present for me to discuss those matters of administration about which there is no special anxiety or excitement. Apprehension seems to exist, that by the accession of the Republican Administration their property and their peace and personal security are to be endangered. There has never been any reasonable cause for such apprehension. Indeed, the most ample evidence to the contrary has all the while existed, and been open to their inspection. It is found in nearly all the published speeches of those who have addressed the public during the pending controversy, and in many speeches of mine before the people. The rightful means of preventing it being in the power of the National Government, I will take care, according to my oath, faithfully to execute all the express provisions of our National Constitution. It is seventy-two years since the first inauguration of a President under our National Constitution. During that period fifteen different and greatly distinguished citizens have, in succession, administered the Executive branch of the Government. They have conducted it through many perils, and generally with great success. Yet, with all this scope for precedent, I now enter upon the same task for the brief constitutional term of four years under great and peculiar difficulties. Disruption of the Federal Union, heretofore only menaced, is now formidably attempted. I hold that in contemplation of universal law and of the constitution, the Union of these States is perpetual. Perpetuity is implied, if not expressed, in the fundamental law of all National Governments. It is safe to assert that no government proper ever had a provision in its organic law for its own termination. Continue to execute all the express provisions of our National Constitution and the Union will endure forever, it being impossible to destroy it, except by some action not provided for in the instrument itself. Again, if the United States be not a government proper but an association of States in the nature of contract merely, can it as a contract be peaceably revoked by any one party to the contract, without the consent of all? Plainly, the central idea of secession is the essence of anarchy. A majority held in restraint by constitutional checks and limitations and always changing easily with the deliberate changes of popular opinions and sentiments, is the only true sovereign of a free people. Whoever rejects it, does of necessity fly to anarchy or despotism. Unanimity is impossible. The rule of a minority, as a permanent arrangement is wholly inadmissible, so that rejecting the majority principle, anarchy or despotism in some form is all that is left.

I do not forget the position assumed by some, that constitutional questions are to be decided by the Supreme Court, nor do I deny that such decisions must be binding in any case upon the parties to a suit, as to the object of that suit, while they are also entitled to very high respect and consideration in all parallel cases by all other departments of the government. And while it is obviously possible that such decision may be erroneous in any given case, still the evil effect following it being limited to that particular case, with the chance that it may be overruled and never become a precedent for other cases, can better be borne than the evils of a different practice. At the same time, the candid citizen must confess that if the policy of the government, upon vital questions affecting the whole people, is to be irrevocably fixed by the decisions of the Supreme Court, the instant they are made in ordinary litigation between parties in personal actions, the people will have ceased to be their own rulers, having to that extent practically resigned their government into the hands of that eminent tribunal. Nor is there in this view any assault upon the Court or the Judges. It is a duty from which they may not shrink to decide cases properly brought before them, and it is no fault of theirs if others seek to turn their decisions to political purposes. One section of our country believes slavery is right and ought to be extended, while the other believes it is wrong and ought not to be extended. This is the only substantial dispute; for the fugitive slave clause of the Constitution and the law for the suppression of the foreign slave-trade are each as well enforced, perhaps, as any law can ever be in a community where the moral sense of the people imperfectly supports the law itself. Would the great body of the people abide by the dry legal obligation in both cases, and a few break over in both? Would not the first clause in substance controvert the other, nor build a precedent for it? Circumstances, then, will govern the practice, and not the practice circumstances. Why should there not be a patient confidence in the ultimate justice of the people? Is there any better or equal hope in the world? In our present differences, is either party without faith of being in the right. If the Almighty Ruler of nations with his eternal truth and justice be on our side of the North, or on yours of the South, that truth, and that justice will surely prevail by the judgment of this great tribunal, the American people.

By the frame of the Government under which we live, this same people have wisely given their public servants but little power for mischief, and have with equal wisdom provided for the return of that little to their own hands at very short intervals. While the people retain their virtue and vigilance, no administration by any extreme of wickedness or folly, can very seriously injure the Government in the short space of four years. My countrymen, one and all, think calmly and well upon this whole subject. Nothing valuable can be lost by taking time. If there be an object to hurry any of you in hot haste to a step which you would never take deliberately, that object will be frustrated by taking time; but no good object can be frustrated by it. Such of you as are now dissatisfied still have the old Constitution unimpaired, and on the sensitive point the laws of your own framing under it; while the new administration will have no immediate power, if it would, to change either. If it were admitted that you who are dissatisfied hold the right side in the dispute, there still is no single good reason for precipitate action. Intelligence, patriotism, christianity and a firm reliance on Him who has never yet forsaken this favored land, are still competent to adjust in the best way all our present difficulties. In your hands, my dissatisfied countrymen, and not in mine, is the momentous issue of civil war. The Government will not assail you. You can have no conflict without being yourselves the aggressors. You have no oath registered in heaven to destroy the government, while I shall have the most solemn one to preserve, protect and defend it. I am loth to close. We are not enemies, but friends. We must not be enemies. Though passion may have strained, it must not break our bonds of affection. The mystic chords of memory stretching from every battle field and patriot grave, to every loving heart and hearthstone, all over this broad land, will yet swell the chorus of the Union, when again touched as surely they will be by the better angels of our nature.

WASHINGTON CITY, March 4, 1861.

DIED:

M'COMBE—On Monday, March 4th, at 11 o'clock a. m. THOMAS M'MELLEAD M'COMBE, aged 25 years.

For Sore, Weak, Inflamed Eyes and Eye Lids.

A true specific and invaluable remedy has been at last discovered. Dr. Humphreys argues that these affections invariably result from a constitutional disease, of which the local affection is only the outward manifestation. Hence, HUMPHREYS' SPECIFIC HOMEOPATHIC OPHTHALMY PILLS are not only taken internally, but get cure the worst forms of obstinate Sore Eyes and Eye Lids, which have resisted all other treatment. All cases of Sore and Inflamed Eyes and Eyelids, or Failing, Weak or Defective Sight, will be promptly benefited, and the cure of the worst cases is only a question of time.

Price 50 cents; with directions.

N. B.—A full set of HUMPHREYS' HOMEOPATHIC SPECIFICS, with Book of Directions, and twenty different Remedies, in large vials, morocco case, $5; ditto, in plain case, $4; case of fifteen boxes, and Book, $2. Single boxes, 25 cents and 50 cents.

These Remedies by the single box or case, are sent by mail or express, free of charge, to any place, on receipt of the price. Address DR. F. HUMPHREYS, 562 Broadway, New York.

TEETH EXTRACTED WITHOUT PAIN,

BY THE USE OF AN APPARATUS WHEREBY NO DRUGS OR GALVANIC BATTERY ARE USED.

Cold weather is the time when the apparatus can be used to its best advantage.

Medical gentlemen and their families have had their teeth extracted by my process, and are ready to testify as to the safety and painlessness of the operation, whether they had been a call by persons interested in assuring the contrary, having no knowledge of my process.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH inserted in every style.

DRS. SCRIBNER & MUNSON,

Having formed a partnership, and opened an office at

No. 103 Fifth street,

WOULD call the attention of the Public to their superior facilities for the manufacture and insertion of all kinds of ARTIFICIAL TEETH, and for the performance of all other branches of DENTISTRY.

Without making a specialty of any one style they still recommend the VULCANITE OR GUTTA PERCHA TEETH as the most Healthy, Durable and Comfortable Substitute for the Natural Teeth. They are guaranteed to be superior in every respect to the best Mineth Plate Teeth, fastened or mounted on gold or any of the baser metals, and can be furnished at a cost considerably less.

Those having Teeth to extract will find Cold Soda can have them removed with the VULCANITE, at a small additional expense above the value of the Old Plate. mch14:yd
