Quack Nostrums.

THE NEW YORK DAY BOOK says:

"The quackery of Hair Washes, Unguents, Oils, Hair Tonics, Hair Oils, and the numberless preparations which are now before the public under such extravagant, hyperbolical and fantastic titles as to excite the ridicule of the sober and sensible, and scourger headings, as their real properties, are all branches of the first water; their real tendency is to do more harm than any, in that they do no harm. BOOTS LABEL WHALE OIL, LARD OIL, SWEET OIL, counted and colored to imitate the genuine article, and sold in white flint glass bottles, the costliest character of tonics, and when thus costly, are baptized with some trifling name, and retailed at by wonderful cheapness and all of both sexes." Such is not the character of Professor Wood's Hair Restorative. This gentleman comes before the world without any "high sounding" title, or any other adventitious aid, and in startling catchpenny terms; he simply advertises a Hair Restorative—what it proposes to restore, and as a historian states it as is. Buy Professor Wood's Hair Restorative and as you value your scalp, eye, your very bodies, apply nothing else to your hair for it will pay a thousand fold in appearance than performed last old or your cranium. Remember, Wood's Restorative for the Hair is the best article extant.

It Will, by Nature's own Process,

Restore Gray Hair to the Original Color,

Will make Hair Grow on Bald Heads,

Will restore the Natural Secretions,

Will remove all Scurf and Dandruff,

Will cure all eruptions—even Scald Head,

Will make the Hair Soft and Glossy,

Will make the old appear young again,

Will preserve the Color of Hair to old age,

Will prevent the Hair from falling,

And is one of the best Toilet Articles for the Hair now in use.

DO YOU WANT WHISKERS?

DO YOU WANT A MUSTACHE?

DO YOU WANT A MUSTACHE!

BELLINGHAM'S

CELEBRATED

STIMULATING ONGUENT,

For the Whiskers and Hair.

The subscribers take pleasure in announcing to the Citizens of the United States, that they have obtained the Agency for, and are now enabled to offer to the American public, the above justly celebrated and world renowned article.

THE STIMULATING ONGUENT

is prepared by Dr. C. F. BELLINGHAM, a eminent physician of London, and is warranted to bring out a thick set of

WHISKERS OR A MUSTACHE

in from three to six weeks. This article is the only one of the kind used by the French, and in London and Paris it is in universal use.

It is a beautiful, economical, soothing, yet stimulating compound, acting as if by magic upon the roots, causing a beautiful growth of luxuriant hair. If applied to the scalp, it will cure baldness, and cause a spring up in place of the bald spots a fine growth of new hair. Applied according to directions, it will force out or keep hair dark, and restore gray hairs to its original color, leaving it soft, smooth and flexible. The "Onguent" is an indispensable article in every gentleman's toilet, and after one week's use they would not for any consideration be without it.

The subscribers are the only Agents for the article in the United States, to whom all orders must be addressed.

Price One Dollar a box—for sale by all Druggists and Dealers; or a box of the "Onguent," (warranted to have the desired effect) will be sent to any who desire it, by mail (direct,) securely packed, on receipt of price and postage, $1 18. Apply to or address

MOFFATT'S LIFE PILLS.—

THE HIGH AND ENVIED CELEBRITY which this pre-eminent medicine has acquired for its invariable efficacy in all the diseases which it professes to cure, has rendered the usual practice of catechising puffing not only unnecessary but unworthy of them. They are known by their fruits; their good works testify for them, and they thrive not by the bills of the retailers. In all cases of Costiveness, Dyspepsia, Bilious and Liver Affections, Piles, Rheumatism, Fevers and Agues, obstinate Head Aches, and all General Derangements of Health, these Pills have invariably proved a certain and speedy remedy. A single trial will place the Life Pills beyond the reach of competition in the estimation of every patient.

Dr. MOFFATT'S PHŒNIX BITTERS will be found especially efficacious in all cases of Nervous Debility, Dyspepsia, Head Ache, the Fever and Ague of the South and West, Impure Blood, and every kind of Weakness of the Digestive Organs.

For sale by Dr. W. B. MOFFATT, 335 Broadway, New York, and by Medicine Dealers and Druggists generally throughout the country. se18:1yd&w

The Tonnage Tax.

Messrs. Editors: As Mr. M'Clure has been grossly assailed in the columns of the Dispatch, for his vote upon the Tonnage Tax bill, allow me to ask the publication of the closing part of that gentleman's speech upon that subject. I know you differ from him, widely, in your views, and I am aware, also, that the public sentiment of this community is with you; nevertheless, I think it is due to him, and to the friends of the measure, that his views should be laid before your readers, however widely you and they may differ from him. S.

Let me here suggest to the Senator from Berks how his eloquence might have appealed to this Senate with all the power of justice. Relying upon his promises as harmonizing with a correct State policy, he should have gone further than merely to demand that the transportation on the Pennsylvania Railroad shall pay a tax to the State. I can appreciate his flattering encomiums, lavished upon his own immediate constituents. I concede even that they might raise their hands and thank God that they are not as other men—that they are not radical, reckless innovators. But when we come to the question of taxation, looking to that equality that is due from the government to every citizen, and section of our people, I cannot subscribe and stand why a ton of goods must pay a tax when it passes through Lancaster to Philadelphia, and why it must go free if it passes through the County of Berks. Upon this point the Senator was strangely powerless. In his almost frantic energy in advocating a tax upon tonnage, he should not have forgotten that equal and exact justice to all, in imposing the burdens of the State, is one of the first duties of the Legislature. Which is fairer the beautiful City of Reading for the commercial emporium of the Commonwealth, he passes over a road, running through the fruitful farms of his constituents, that has a capital considerably greater than that of the Reading corporation that has thrown him into such violent paroxysms on this floor to-night; that pays less than one-third the ordinary taxes to the treasury paid by the Central Road; and yet it has never paid a farthing of tax upon its tonnage. Can he inform this Senate why the farmer, factor, or miner, who lives in the interior or western part of the State, along the Pennsylvania Railroad, must pay a tribute to the treasury for the right to reach a home market, while the farmer, factor, or miner, of Lebanon, Berks, Schuylkill, &c., are untaxed? Suppose that we should, to-day, impose a tax upon the tonnage of the Reading Road, upon the more than two millions of tons of coal it annually carries to market, as well as the rich harvests of the farms, and the fruits of the furnaces and factories, which have no other channel for transportation. In the present depressed condition of our industry it would beggar a thousand homes, and paralyze countless energy and capital. If we should adopt the policy of the Senator from Berks, he surely could not resist its general application; and if we were to impose this tax upon the industry of his own people, he could not return to his constituents. Yet, what answer could he make to their lamentations? He could only say that he advocated the doctrine of taxing the energies of the people of the State, and that the State had accepted his theory—that it had not wronged his people, but had been just to them. Do I err in this? If I had dug a pit and fallen into it on this question, by appealing to the passions or prejudices of my own people, I should, I think, at least be silent when one portion of the State asks merely to be placed upon terms of equality with those I represent; or if silence would, not even then I would say boldly—tax my own constituents, tax all, for all should pay alike. Is the Senator from Berks prepared for this? If so, he is consistent, and he should to-morrow bring in a bill to tax the thrift and sinews of his admired and admiring constituents. If he is not prepared for such a blow, how in the name of justice can he demand that the unequal restriction shall be imposed upon others? Nor does the force of his argument end here. We not only tax the tonnage of our own farms and mines transported to or from any point between Harrisburg and Pittsburgh, while all our other lines leading to Philadelphia are free; but we have opened a direct route to New York from this place, over which our produce can be carried free to a rival city, while it is taxed if it goes through Lancaster to our own great emporium of trade. Is this just to Philadelphia? Is it just to our own producers? Is it just to the State? The tax upon tonnage is either right and should be universal, or it is not right and should be abandoned. Upon this principle should we and discriminate against lines leading to our own city, or in other words make our trade to a foreign city free, while it is taxed when it comes to enrich our own State and people? Can the Senator from Berks, representing as he does a constituency that has free transportation, reconcile his opposition to this bill with that golden rule that bids him do unto others as he would have them do unto him?

I must here refer, in plain, practical terms, to a point that has elicited the bitterest denunciation from the Senator from Berks. He insists that we will diminish the revenues of the State by commuting the tonnage tax. Our revenues would certainly be greater with such a tax than without it, and if imposed equally upon Berks and Dauphin, Franklin and Westmoreland, would be much greater still. But it must be remembered that we have had no revenue from this source for three years, and the State was never more prosperous. It is, therefore, not now a necessity; and we provide in this bill that if it shall ever become a necessity, it must be reinstated on the Pennsylvania Railroad, and be also levied upon the Reading and other roads. Then it will be just, however unwise may be the policy. But the great issue is above the question of revenue. Shall Pennsylvania be paralyzed in her energies in a great struggle for the wealth of a continent, by unequal taxes imposed upon her own capital, her own energy, her own industry? Shall she still wield the sceptre upon the move on? Shall she be as a giant, bound hand and foot, while on every side of us the liberal teachings of experience have given new impulses to every branch of wealth, and enlightened legislation has gathered to rival commercial marts around us that which a beneficent God marked on this great map of nature as the tribute of our Western Empire to Pennsylvania? It may, in time, effect a million of direct revenue, or ten millions if you please, while, in the same period, its removal will enrich our commerce, and our producers of every kind, and add scores of millions to the taxable wealth of the State. The construction of the Pennsylvania Railroad has, in ten years, added fifty millions to our taxable property along its line; and, in addition, it pays in legitimate taxes, independent of tonnage duties, what is the interest on nearly two millions of our debt. For this it is treated as a monster and a curse. It pays more direct taxes for State purposes in ten years than the whole County of Berks has paid in the last century. Still it is to be regarded as a mere beast of burden in the State, while every other railroad is incorporated on the principles now recognized by all other States, and all other enlightened nations. If it be for revenue, remember it is thrown directly upon the strong arms of your own sons, who make your forests wave with golden harvests—your mountains yield up their exhaustless riches—who start the hum of your spindles, and the rude music of your forges—who rear your schools and churches, and scatter, in wild profusion, the beauty and bounty of progressive civilization. And it falls upon them unequally, and therein, at least, unjustly. It falls upon them, too, not for their own benefit, but for the benefit of the competing energy of rival cities—of rival States—of rival thoroughfares.

The Senator from Berks is also mistaken in the assumption that the Pennsylvania Railroad gains a million and a half by the bill over the bill of 1857 for the sale of the main line. Just the reverse is the truth. By the Act of 1857, the Railroad was to be released from all taxes upon tonnage, and also from State taxes on all its property perpetually, in consideration of the payment of one and a half millions additional for the main line. Under this bill it pays, as the Senator from Berks admits by his own multiplication table, more than the amount it owes for the main line with interest, and pays it, too, in a much shorter time than its contract with the State demands; and he overlooks the very important fact that in addition to that, they pay annually, for all time to come, the regular rates of tax upon all their property, which now amount to the interest of near two millions of their bonds. We have thus a certain and steadily increasing revenue from the taxes of this corporation, in addition to its payments to the State for thirty years under the provisions of this bill.

Another fatal blunder of the Senator from Berks—and perhaps the least excusable of all—is his assumption that the construction of the Railroad destroyed the value of our main line of improvements. He based a considerable portion of his argument on this point, and pressed it upon the Senate with almost startling earnestness. I cannot think that he is utterly indifferent to the truth of his assumptions; but when the facts on this important feature of his comedy of errors are of such easy access—when the figures are on the shelves of his Hall—how are such mistakes, going to the very heart of his argument, to be explained? So far from the Railroad destroying the main line of our public works, their revenue steadily increased from year to year after the Railroad was built. The Railroad brought to our State millions of produce that otherwise would have sought rival channels of trade, new sources of trade were created along the line, and all of it had to pass over the Columbia Road as it hurried onward to build up our own commerce. Look at the records, and the eloquence of the Senator is forgotten in his want of intelligence.

But when all argument is answered, we are met with the allegation that it is a solemn contract. They tell us that it is so denominated in the
